PREFACE

This volume was intended to be a double volume, covering the years 1941—42. It was a step proposed particularly to reduce the time lag, but owing to the Government's restriction on the use of paper we were not entitled to use more paper than we used for Vol. III. Besides, it became obvious that a double volume would involve us in substantial cost, which under present financial condition, we cannot afford. The plan had, therefore, to be dropped and only a single volume for 1941 issued.

Added to our financial stringency, the unrest in the country, difficulties of speedy communication, and the prevailing strain on our printers, heightened the gravity of the situation. This will explain how this volume has taken so long to appear.

Vols. V and VI will be double volumes, covering the years 1942—43 and 1944—45 respectively. Would that one could hope that it would be made practicable to expedite publication of Vol. V which is practically ready for the press. We are extremely anxious to reduce the time lag and render the maximum service to scholars. We have taken in hand also Vol. VI, and we trust, this plan for reducing the time lag, will have the approval of scholars.

A new feature in this volume is the inclusion of Reviews. Reviews of important books which have appeared during the year, irrespective of the year of publication of the books, have been included. In this case, the titles are shown in square brackets.

The world conditions have greatly affected the collation. Many European and American journals and Indological publications have not reached this country; even many Indian journals have appeared sporadically, with the result that this volume remains incomplete. However, in conformity with our usual practice, the publications which are omitted here will be included in the next volume.

It is our desire to present to scholars a bibliography as complete as we can make it. We therefore, once more appeal to the institutions devoted to Indic studies and the learned Societies to supply us with their publications. We believe that however energetic may be our personal efforts, these efforts will not succeed to the full unless there is co-operation from outside.

We take this opportunity of thanking the Publishers and Authors who have helped us by sending their publications. We have again to thank Dr. P. M. Joshi, the Chief Librarian of the Bombay University, and his staff, for their help in the collation of this volume.

ANNUAL BIBLIOGRAPHY OF INDIAN HISTORY AND INDOLOGY

FOR 1941

India

(A) TOPICAL

Anthropology and Ethnology

Ahmad, Fakhruddin,—The Aborigines of the Tarai Region. IGJ. XVI, pp. 287-308. [1]

A descriptive ethnology of the Tharus, Bhukas, Bhars, Lepchas, Limbus, Mechs and Chanbus, Bhutias and Koch or Kocch.

Barman, Uendra Nth,—Rajbansi Kshatriya Jatir Itihas, (Bengali text), 7" x 41½" x pp. 80, 7 plates. Bijay Kumar Barman, Jalpaiguri (Bengal), 1941. [2]

"Gives an account of the Rajabansis at present included by Government among the Scheduled Castes and who claim Kshatriya descent. The author has laid under contribution not only the Hindu Shastras and standard works on history but also the publications of different departments of both the Government of India and the Government of Bengal and in the process revealed his industry and his wide learning." H. C. Mookerjee, CR. LXXIX, p. 276.

Bhaduri, Manindra Bhusan,—The Aboriginal Tribes of the Udaipur State. MII. XXI, pp. 92-126. [3]

Chowdary, Kotha Bhavayya,—History of the Kammas, Part II, (Telugu text), Sangam Jagarlamoody, 1941. [4]

"The origin of this community is traced to the twelfth century and 1,229 families are discovered, indeed not an easy enterprise. The name however appears to have been known since the Vedic period. They adopted and followed the manners and customs of Brahmins, and added a suffix, Varma, to their names but in later times had to give it up as the Brahmins objected. The author says that the Kammas were Kshatriyas belonging to the Andhra country, descended from the stock of Colas and the Calukyas, connected with the family of Karikala Durjaya of Suryavarma." QJMS. XXXII, pp. 245-246. For Part I, see ABIHI, II. No. 4.

Culshaw, W. J.,—Some Beliefs and Customs relating to Birth among the Santals, JRASBL. VII, Pt. 1, pp. 115-127. [5]

Das, T. C.—Cultural Anthropology in the Service of the Individual and the Nation. SC. VI, (Supplement, Benares Science Congress 1941). pp. 8-10. [6]

Cultural Anthropology is defined as the direct product of contact between European nations and the coloured people of the earth. Based on observations of practical men, and applies those observations in determining the various phases of culture—legislative, educational, social, and administrative.

Datta, Bhupendra Nath,—The Rise of the Rājputs JBORS. XXVII. pp. 34-49. [7]

Traces the origin of Rājputs from the word Rajanya used in the Vedic period. The assertion is reiterated that the Śakas, Hūṇas and other tribes of foreign origin formed in course of time a separate Kṣatriya clan under the name Rājput. In order to substantiate the claim of purity of descent from the ancient stock, he applies the test of physical anthropology. He cannot say that anthropologically the Rājputs and the Marāthas are united. They cannot be said to be same biotypes. Further, to speak of an Indo-Aryan biotype is a misnomer. Hence, he concludes, the ancient Kṣatriyas, the present-day Rājputs and the Marāthas cannot be held to be identical in race. There is an ethnic connection between the Gurjaras (modern Gujars) and the various Rājput clans.

Desai, Ramanlal V.—Hriday Vibhuti (Gujarati text), pp. 295 + 60, Pub: Lakshmi Printing Press, Baroda, 1941. [8]

The work is divided into two parts, (1) author's observations of the mode of life of the criminal tribe of Gujarat, and (2) a story based on them. The first part is important from an anthropological point of view.

Dwivedi Manibhai,—Gujarāti Rani Paraj Kom. (Gujarati text), SFGST. VI, Pt. 2. pp. 161-188, Pt. 3, pp. 397-420. [9]

Deals with the aboriginal tribe of Bhils in South Gujarāt known as the tribe of Rani Paraj. Anthropological, ethnological and linguistic points of view; the manners and customs and linguistic peculiarities of their dialect.

Enthoven, R. E.,—[The Naked Nāgas], by Christoph von Furer —Haimendorf, London, 1939. See ABHI. II, No. 9. [10]

"Indian ethnologists are already in debt to writers such as Hutton, Mills, and others for valuable studies of the Angami, Sema, Lhota, and Ao Nāga tribes, who vary the monotony of life on the north-eastern frontier of Assam and Burma by cutting off heads for spirit scaring purposes. The writer of the present work succeeded, with official assistance, in penetrating these remote regions to reside for a time among the Konyak Nāgas, of whom he gives a delightful and most sympathetically written description." JRAS, 1941, pp. 178-179.

— [The Baiga], by Verrier Elwin, London, 1939. See ABHI. II, No. 7. [11]

"To Baiga dreams and Baiga sexual practices the writer devotes a somewhat over liberal share of his very noteworthy work. As in the case of a recent book published on the Lepchas, the intention seems to have been to throw light on sexual inhibitions and their freudian results; but the reader will soon gather that the term inhibition is completely uncalled for in regard to Baiga flirtations. Three final points; the suvasini or female attendant at a wedding, usually a married woman with her husband living, here seems to be an unmarried girl. Halrakki vakkal on p. 517, is a slip for the well-known Halvakki-vakkal caste in Kanara. Dr. Crooke's well-known work has been quoted frequently from an obsolete edition." JRAS. 1941, pp. 177-178.

Fuchs, S.—Changes in the Low Castes of Central India. NR. XIV, pp. 370-377. [12]

Notes the changes and development in the cultural and material life of the low castes of Central India.

Furer-Haimendorf, Christoph von,—Seasonal Nomadism and Economics of the Chenchus of Hyderabad. JRASBL. VII, Pt. 2, pp. 175-196, 3 plates. [13]

Of all the aboriginal tribes of the Deccan the Chenchus are racially and culturally the most primitive, and though at present they form but a small group they may be considered as representative of those larger populations of hunters and collectors that roamed the jungles of the tableland when the first invaders of higher culture penetrated the country south of the Godavari.

Gopani, A. S.—Ājivika Sect—A New Interpretation. BaV. II, Pt. 2, pp. 201-210; III, Pt. 1, pp. 47-59. [14]

Deals with the life history of Gośālaka; his association with Mahāvīra; his difference with Mahāvīra, and discusses Gośālaka's principal doctrine. Concludes that there is no authentic reference to the Ājivikas, and this points to the fact that they became quite disorganised, followed and practised whatever they liked. There was no common tie which could unite them under a common leadership and thus they vanished after 13th century leaving as the remnants the modern vagrant, gypsy-like, nomadic Bāvās, Bhūvās, Jatis and Garodās.

"The book abounds in materials of great interest to students of cultural evolution in this part of India. There are traces of couvade and a well-developed system of matriarchate among many of the tribes dealt with in the present volume. Some of the tribes are hunters and collectors; while others have taken to the predatory as well as the wet form of cultivation...The entire field covered by the book is thus of supreme interest to anthropologists of all schools." Nirmal Kumar Bose in TMR. LXX, pp. 179-180.

Law, B. C.—Some Ancient Indian Tribes. ABORI. XXII, Pts. 1-2, pp. 94-96. [22]

Refers to five ancient tribes, the Anūpas, the Kikaṭas, the Tukharas, the Kukuras and the Agras. Assigns the Anūpas to the tract of country south of Surāṣṭra and around Māhiṣmati on the Namaḍa. Identifies the Kikaṭa country with Magadha. Tukharas were a northern race bordering on the Himālayas, who seem to have continued as a tribe till as late as the 9th and 10th centuries A.D., when they seem to have played an important part in the history of Kāshmir. The Kukuras of the Dvārakā region, and the Ugras or Uggas, were very old and once a well-known tribe.

Narayan, Baldeva—The Musahars. TMR. LXX, pp. 368-375, 4 illus. [30]

Describes the tribe known as the Musahars. They are said to be the poorest and most backward tribe, living mainly in the Province of Bihar. They are found also in Oudh, the eastern part of the United Provinces. But the cream of the race inhabits the Nepal territory bordering on the districts of Darbhanga, Bhagalpur and Purnea of Bihar where they have succeeded in keeping, comparatively speaking, their racial purity and peculiarities intact.

A study of the culture based on the remains found in the excavations, points out the permanent impress left by the culture on later culture.

Beck, Horace C.—The Beads from Taxila. Edited by Sir John Marshall. Memoir of the Archaeological Survey of India, No. 65. $12\frac{1}{2}'' \times 9\frac{1}{2}''$, pp. 66, 12 plates, Manager of Publications, Delhi, 1941. [37]

Beads discovered from the archæological site at Taxila have provided proof of a trade connection between Europe and Asia before the time of Alexander, when typical European beads from settlements dating as far back as the 5th century B. C., were imported into India. The author has recorded the results of the examination of about 950 selected beads dating from about 700 B. C. to 500 A. D., which were recovered from excavations at Taxila by Sir John Marshall. The author has also found about half a dozen beads from Taxila which appear to belong to an altogether earlier civilisation. Among other interesting types of beads are those representing animals, birds and forms of human life. These are undoubtedly associated with some symbolism and were probably used as amulets. A number of glass beads from the Bhir Mound, the earliest site at Taxila, have been found to connect with early Mediterranean culture, being similar to finds recovered in Corsica, Sardinia and the Etruscan tombs in Italy. The study of glass beads from the Sirkap site, which dates from 200 B. C. to 100 A. D. has, on the other hand, revealed some influence of the Roman Empire.

Chanda, Ramaprasad,—Harappa. SC. VI, pp. 377-381, 1 plate. [38]

A detailed review of excavation work done at Harappa, based on Madho Sarup Vat's Excavations at Harappa, Delhi, 1940. (See ABIHI, III, No. 1587)

Childe, V. Gordon,—[Excavation at Harappa], by Madhu Sarup Vats, Delhi 1940, See ABIHI III, No. 1587. [39]

".....the historian of civilisation is profoundly indebted to Mr. Vats for his clear and scholarly report. The delay in its appearance cannot be regarded as at all excessive, especially when it be remembered that the author had to write his report in the intervals between his normal duties as Inspector and then as Deputy Director-General of Archaeology. His Department and the Government of India must be commended for producing the work so lavishly at so very modest a price. Of course I should have liked larger figures in many instances but that would have raised the cost. The blocks, all made in India and including a coloured reproduction of a polychrome jar, show a high standard of workmanship. The reading is facilitated by good type and very helpful marginal headings. Appendices deal with technical subjects. Analyses of the bronzes by Dr. Sana Ullah disclose in all samples both nickel and arsenic as impurities. He points out that precisely these elements occur in the Rājputana ores that may therefore very likely represent the sources of the Indian copper. Mr. Vats himself adds a note on relics from other prehistoric sites, including Rupar on the Sutlej, 200 miles east of Harappa. Though typical painted pottery and seals were not picked up at this remote spot, the relics figured can all be matched in the Harappa culture of which Rupar can thus be regarded as the furthest outpost." Aty. XV, No. 59, pp. 292-295.

Das, Dwarika Nath,—Ruins of Māyāpur. JARS. VIII, Pt. 2. pp. 43-49. [40]

Describes some remains of the ancient Māyāpur in Assam, on a hill called Ita. The writer narrates the traditional story of a refugee king from Assam building a fort on Ita. Suggests that Māyāpur may have association with the name of Hita, and the capital of the refugee king Māyāmatta.

Dikshit, Moreshwar G.,—Fresh Light on the Pitañkhorā Caves. JBHS. VI. pp. 112-121. [41]

Describes the caves. Apart from the peculiarity of the stone surfaced structural walls, necessitated by the friability of the rock, points out an important point—the stone ribs in the quadrantal roof of the aisles. At Bhājā and Konḍāne both the vaults and the aisles have been ribbed with wood. The stone structure in the aisles of this chaitya therefore marks an advanced stage in the gradual transformation of the wooden structures into stone, a fact which is also noticed in the cave No. 10 at Ajantā.

Gives a short historical account of the Fort under the Portuguese, under the Marathas and under the English, and then describes the various ruined buildings.

Goetz, H.—Archæological Observations on Satara Fort. In No. 1434 pp. 200-205. [43]

Describes the Fort and some other monuments of Rājapūr rule.

Gordon, M. E. and D. H.—The Rock Engravings of the Middle Indus. JARSBL. VII, Pt. 2, pp. 197-202, 9 plates. [44]

A number of rocks situated in an area surrounding a stretch of the Middle Indus near the Attock Bridge show a mass of miscellaneous engravings,—human and animal figures, bullock carts, various symbols and inscriptions in Kharosthi. The study suggests that all these pictographs and petrographs date from the close of the first millennium B. C., and the early centuries of the first millennium A. D.

Gyani, R. G.—The Cave Temple of Mandapeshwar. JGRS. III, Pt. 3, pp. 174-180. [45]

J. C. A. in criticising Mr. Billimoria's article, says. "The writer omits all references to publications which criticize adversely the assumption that the scripts are identical or even similar". J. C. A. does not agree with Mr. Billimoria that Mohenjo Daro script resembles the Easter Island script.

A note to point out that the figure of an animal on the Asokan capital at Sānikisa (Sāṅkāśya of Buddhist classics), is an elephant and not a lion as described by Hiuen Sang and Fa Hien. The trunk of the elephant has been broken away and the figure therefore can easily be mistaken for a lion.

A broad survey of the "Miri" at Taung in the Kohistan Mahal of Dadu District, evidence from which is referred to the Chalcolithic period, and gives some remarks on its significance with regard to the prehistoric civilisation west of the Indus.

Law, Bimala Churn.—Mathurā: An Ancient Indian City. QJMS, XXXII, Pt. 1, pp. 1-7. [55]

Points out the importance of the city as the birthplace of Kṛṣṇa, and where Kṛṣṇa killed Kamsa, the tyrant king of Mathurā. A careful study of the Mathurā school of sculpture leads the writer to conclude that the flourishing period of the Gandhara school must have preceded the reign of Kaṇṭaka. Under the Kuśāns, Mathurā was an important religious centre of the Jains. The great Kuśāns in Mathurā were succeeded by the Nāga kings who, according to the Purāṇas, established themselves at Mathurā as at other places. The Nāga rule continued right up to the time of Samudragupta whose all-India conquest gave a death-blow to the independence of the Nāgas.

Minakshi, C.—The Historical Sculptures of the Vaikunthaperumal Temple, Kanchi. pp. 64, 24 plates. Memoir of the Archaeological Survey of India No. 63, Manager of Publications, Delhi, 1941. [56]

"The historical sculpture of the Vaikunthaperumal at Kanchi (Modern Conjeevaram), whose ancient monuments present a pageant of South Indian history, from the glorious age of the Pallavas to the Empire of Vijayanagara, has been described. The Vaikunthaperumal temple is the earliest and the most important Vaishnava shrine in Kanchi. Although they have been noticed for the last 50 years, the historical sculptures in bas-reliefs which run in a continuous series of panels on the inner walls of the court have hitherto not been correctly understood or described. Dr. Minakshi made an intensive study of the panels and brought out their true significance as a continuous panorama of Pallava history enshrined in stone. The series begins with the origin of the dynasty from the mythological Asbathama and his son, the first Pallava. This is followed by various events in the reign of each sovereign beginning with the coronation. A blank space represents anarchy while religious persecution is illustrated by a man being impaled. A great deal of the interpretation depends upon the epigraphic evidence which, in many cases, is corroborated. Unfortunately the author did not live to see her work in print; she died in March 1940. SC. VII, p. 202.

A temple ranking in excellence with the Hoysala temples at Belur and Halebid, is the Keshava temple at Somanathpur, a little village some twenty miles from Mysore. Built in the Hoysala style of architecture, it is a superb example of the wonderful work of ancient India's artists in stone. The writer describes the temple and discusses the sculpture.

"The book under notice contains twelve chapters (pp. 1 to 267) on Geography, History (ancient, early mediaeval and mediaeval), Architecture, Sculpture, Cults, Iconography, Epigraphy, Numismatics, Administration, Society, Religion and Culture. It is provided with thirteen Appendices. The author himself admits that chapters on 'Administration, Society and Religion are not strictly pertinent to the main body of the thesis'. The chapters on Geography and History are mostly reproductions of what has appeared in the Bombay Gazetteer, Vol. I, Part I, with such changes as have been necessitated by later researches. The author shows a sort of originality in the chapter on Architecture, Sculpture, Cults and Iconography where he has described Sculpture, Stones etc., on scientific lines.....He has compared mediaeval and later temples with those of neighbouring territories and tried to show wherein lie the local peculiarities of the Gujarat builders and what they borrowed from others". A. S. Gadre in JIII. XX, pp. 237-239.

"Many Knotty points have been successfully opened for which he deserves congratulations. It has not been always possible, however, to see eye to eye with the author's conclusions. There are several points on which his conclusions can be easily challenged. I shall quote but one instance. Tarn, following Smith, thinks that Vasumitra defeated the Yavanas on either the Yavanas or either the Kali Sindh or the Chambal during his grandfather's āśvamedha. Dr. Sankalia has followed in this regard, so to say, the official view and concurred with it. This view is not at all possible to defend when a number of data can be put forth to show that Mālwā (also Vidarbha as a dependency) and Mathurā were under the possession of the Suṅgas and the horse naturally moved beyond Mathurā and Vasumitra was challenged not on the bank of an inland stream but on that of the Indus."

The Purāṇā Qilā, which is believed to have been built first by Humayūn and then by Sher Shāh over the ancient site of Yadhīshthira's Indraprastha, preserves a blending of Hindu and Muslim styles of architecture. The lion engaged in combat with a man represented on the gateways of the citadel is regarded by the writer as of Muslim origin. The figures are surmised to have been inserted to commemorate Sher Shāh's daring engagement with a lion in his early career.

Starr, Richard F. S.—Indus Valley Painted Pottery. A Comparative Study of the Designs on Painted wares of the Harappa Culture. pp. xiii + 106. The Princeton University Press, Princeton, 1941. [72]

"The author, as he declares in his foreword, does not pretend to solve problems in relationships, but merely to present them and to add some suggestions, especially in respect to the Harappa painted pottery. In this treatment he regards pottery as an isolated unit, but in modern archæology it has little value apart from accompanying cultural manifestations, i.e. architecture, funerary customs, etc., In its context it can distinguish to a certain extent the races which used it, but it is an integral part of the culture to which it belongs... . . .

In view of the highly speculative nature of conclusions based on pottery designs we will say here only that Dr. Starr sees a definite schism between Harappan artistic expression as reflected in the mass of the painted pottery and that reflected in the seals, sculpture, and the certain naturalistic pottery designs. The former, he believes, is based on western tradition, retained through religious conservatism, and derived from the Halaf culture by way of Sialk III." Marian Welker in JAOS. Vol. 61, pp. 111-112.

An address delivered at the Bhandarkar Or. Res. Institute, Poona, on August 27, 1941, on the sixteenth Anniversary Day of Sir R. G. Bhandarkar. After paying tribute to the memory of the founder of the Institute, deals with the paintings and sculpture of Ajantā and Sānchi. He then refers to the Āndhras, who he says, had a strong Scythian admixture and developed a culture of their own embracing the fine arts of painting and sculpture. The author then deals with the subject of his address,—the Excavation at Kondapūr.

Vyavahāranirṇaya deals with both substantive and adjective law. It throws interesting light upon the views taken on these subjects in what may be regarded as the middle ages. The conclusion arrived at by the author is that the work cannot be later than 1250 A. D., and that its upper limits must be the middle of the 12th century A. D.

The first volume constitutes a revised edition of the work published by the author, under the caption, Ancient India, more than thirty years ago. It presents a bird's-eye-view of the history of India down to c. 700 A. D., stressing in particular, the folk movement of the Satavatas gradually into the South, glimpses of the Mauryan penetration into the Tamil land, and a possible Tamil equivalent of Asoka's agniskhanada, the Hun problem in Indian History, a study of the Vākātakas, some problems of Gupta history, and the Gurjara empire. Then follows a survey of Kalingādēśa with a note on the main styles of Hindu architecture. After closing this part with the essentials required for historical research, begins the South Indian history, its evolution through the ages of the Pallavas, the Chōlas, the Hoysalas and the imperial Pandyas of the 13th century. Ends with a paper on Indian expansion beyond the seas and the maritime enterprise of South Indians.

The second volume deals with the history of the Vijayanagara empire the history of the early Wodeyars of Seingapatam-Mysore, the declining days of the Hindu empire of the Rāyās in the 17th century, and then the age of Shāhji and Shivāji in their expansion into South India and the Akkanna and Madanna, the powerful Hindu ministers of Golkonda in the last days of the Sultanate. Concludes with a glimpse of the legendary hero Raja Desing of Gingee and of some aspects of the early English trade.

Aiyar, M. S. Ramaswami.—Bibliography of Indian Music. See No. 159.

Aiyar, P. S. S., and Sastri, S. S., Eds.—Sangitasudha of King Raghunatha of Tanjore, pp. 24 + 347, Madras 1941. [79]
A treatise on music.

Ali, A. Yusuf.—A Cultural History of India during the British period. D. B. Taraporwala, Bombay, 1941. [80]

A broad survey of the cultural forces moulding the modern Indian life during the British Period.

"The work opens with the picture of 'Immediate Back-Ground' of the conditions of anarchy, following the disintegration of the Mughal Empire and the rise of the East India Company, with its predatory conquest and exploration leading to a state of social, moral and economic demoralisation during the period, when the company 'stood forth as Diwan' the period from 1773-1818 characterised as the Approach of the Two Cultures, deals with the important cultural revolution following the decline of the classical traditions of both Hindus and Muslims, and the rise of the newer classes more amenable and docile to the British influences, both economically and culturally. JUB. X, Pt. I, pp. 204-208.

"Here one will discover poets and dramatists and novelists whose names do not occur in the standard histories of India, and sympathetic discussion of movements and factors unknown to the average student of British rule in India. Retired civilians and soldiers will be surprised to learn that there were important cultural developments taking place of which they were unaware, many doors to which they found no key, and many veils past which they could not see". C. Collin Davies, AR. Vol. 37, p. 185.

Apte, D. V., Ed.—Grahagaṇitādhyāya (Uttarardhah) of Bhāskarācārya with Vāsanā Bhāṣya and Siromāṇi-prakāśa Tika of Ganeśa Daivajñā. Edited from a rare MS, for the first time. Part II (Sanskrit text). Roy. 8vo, pp. 3 + 167, Anandashram Press, Poona, 1941. [81]

Second part of Bhāskarācārya's work on astronomy, with his explanatory notes called Vāsanābhāṣyam and commentary called Siromāṇi-prakāś by Gaṇesh Daivadna.

Bagchi, P. C.,—New Materials for the study of the Kumāratantra of Rāvaṇa. IC. VII, pp. 269-286. [82]

The Kumāratantra of Rāvaṇa is a treatise on children's disease. The writer here examines a Nepalese manuscript of the work, and translates some passages and compares it with another work on medicine called Kasyapasambita.

— [Some Aspects of Ancient Indian Culture] by Dr. D. R. Bhandarkar. See ABIHI. III, No. 88. [83]

“Deals with the problem of the Ārya, Dāsa and Sūdra. He next determines the special character of the Āryan culture, and then deals with the question of Āryanisation of India at length. Last of all the questions of Brāhmaṇisation and Indianisation have also been treated at some length. Ārya; according to Dr. Bhandarkar is a racial term. The Dāsas or Dasyus were originally the Dahae of the Caspianne steppes, some of whom seem to have embraced the Āryan religion. But Dr. Bhandarkar also points out that in course of time the word Dāsa had lost its ethnological significance and denoted any foreigners who did not conform to the Āryan practices. The word Sūdra was a tribal name even up to the time of Patañjali.” IIIQ. XVII, pp. 131-132.

Balaratnam, L. K.,—Mural Paintings at Trivandrum. NR. XIV, pp. 299-303. [84]

Describes mural paintings in the temple and the frescoes discovered in a rock-cut cave temple at Tirunandikāra in South Travancore.

Barman, Chandicharan,—On the Ancient Art of Assam. JARS. VIII Pt. 1, pp. 21-25. [85]

Gives a few examples of Assamese art.

— Hindusthani Sangit Paddhdati, Kramik Pustakmālikā. 5th Edn. (Marathi text). Royal 8vo. pp. 516, Bombay, 1941. [87]

Bhatnagar, K. C.,—Some Yogic Hymns from Bullah Baghat (Sam. 1750-1825). CR, LXXXI, pp. 255-260. [88]

Birney, William S.,—Painted Glass Windows. Reredos, Mosaics, Fresco-paintings etc., at St. Paul's Cathedral, Calcutta. BPP. LX, pp. 77-85. [89]

Bose, Nandalal,—Ornamental Art. Pub: Author. pp. 13. Santiniketan, 1940. [90]

Chaghtai, M. Abdulla,—Pietra-Dura Decoration of the Tāj. IsC. XV, pp. 465-472, 3 plates. [91]

An important feature of the Tāj is that it is embellished with many varieties of decoration simply with a view to relieve the monotony of the white marble. This particular form of decoration of the Tāj has caused a good deal of controversy as to its being of Italian origin. The writer discusses the art and traces its history as a part of the Muslim fine Arts.

— Indo-Muslim Architecture. ABORI. XXII, Pts. 1-2, pp. 85-93. [92]

Finds that the style of architecture created by the Ghaznavid dynasty was based on the prototypes of the Tulunid monuments of Egypt and those of the Abbasids at Samarra. The author discovered an inscription from the Kach mosque in Ahmedabad, dated 445 H. (A. D. 1053), which shows that the mosque was built just twenty-four years after the death of Mahmud of Ghaza. He begins the actual history of Indo-Muslim architecture with the mosque Quwat-ul-Islam at Delhi.

Chatterji, Nandalal,—Who Built the Qutb Minar? IR, Vol. 42, pp. 549-552. [93]

Suggests that the minar is of Hindu origin.

Chintamani, T. R., Ed.—Vyavahārāśiromāṇi of Nārāyaṇa. Royal 8vo. pp. vi + 56, University of Madras, 1941. [94]

The work is a small treatise on law and judicial procedure by Nārāyaṇa, a disciple of Vijnāneśvara, the celebrated author of the well-known Mītākṣara. The author traces all quotations to their sources, and specifies those that could not be found in the available texts. The preface deals with the date of the author.

Datta, Dandi Ram,—Old Assamese Mathematics (Kaitheli anka.) JARS. V1II, Pt. 1, pp. 19, 20. [95]

Considers how indeterminate equations were discussed and solved by the old Assamese mathematicians.

Datta, Hirentranath.—Indian Culture: Its Strands and Trends. A Study of Contrasts, pp. 119. Calcutta University, Calcutta, 1941. [96]

Denies with emphasis the cultural ruin brought in the wake of British conquest, which was asserted by Mr. Gandhi. He is no believer in the doctrine of non-violence, which he regards as un-Aryan and as likely to produce national enfeeblement. He looks with confidence to the death of imperialism in the war now raging. But he affirms that "it is not only futile but foolish to work for separate sovereignty for India—what has been called Pūrṇa Svarāj—this preferring the ideal of isolation to that of integration." He believes in Varnāśaramadharma, as the cause of India's escape from any calamities and as the real cement of future social order. The argument of the five discourses on Indian Culture are turned to the establishment of this conclusion, and the vindication of faith in India's great destiny as world teacher, by the universal acceptance of India's cultural ideals." K. V. Rangaswami, BmV. VI., Pt. 3, pp. 234-237.

Dikshitar. V. R. Ramachandra.—Craftsmanship and Culture in India: The Five Trades. AP. XII, pp. 252-257. [97]

Brings out facts about the admirable organisation of society in ancient and mediaeval India and shows craft guilds, which appeared in Europe only in mediaeval times, to have been flourishing in India long before the Christian era. Economically self-contained and politically autonomous, and with a culture with more than made up in depth what it may seem to have lacked in breadth, the village democracies of this country established an all-time record for smooth functioning and for longevity.

Gangoly, O. C.—The Primitives (On the art of Primitive man). Calcutta, 1941. [98]

Ghosh, Batakrishna.—[Our Cultural Heritage], by Dr. Iswara Topa. Allahabad, 1940. See ABIHI, III, No. 153. [99]

The author has launched theories galore without in any way trying to establish them. There is not a single reference to any source-book. And some of the author's theories are so radically wrong that one would be inclined to suspect that he does not know the source-books at all. There are some good suggestions in the second part devoted to the Indo-Muslim kingship as a cultural force. But of the first part I would question almost every sentence". TMR. LXIX, p. 85.

Ghoshal, Tarun—Hindu Contribution to Music CR. LXXIX, pp. 257-266. [100]

The author does not dispute the Western assumption that Pythagoras established the octave as the natural great division for the musical scale; but finds that the Hindu system has many analogies with that of the Greek and that the Hindus form diverse modes by effecting changes in the disposition of the intervals of the scale.

Gode, P. K.—The Role of the Courtezan in the Early History of Indian Painting. ABORI. XXII, 1941, pp. 24-37. [101]

Examines if there is evidence to assume that painting was practised by the courtezans before the 8th century of the Christian era. Gives references which go to show that painting was associated with the daily life of the Courtezans in the early history of Indian painting.

Goetz, Herman.—The Crisis of Indian Industrial Art. AP. XII, pp. 154-157. [102]

Deplores the lack of taste for India's industrial art tradition. This unfortunate phenomenon is due to the demand for new fashions. The old textile designs which made the fame of India all over the world have been disappearing, old furniture has been deteriorating, the metal ware digenerating, the pottery declining in type and in quality.

Guha, B. S.—Human Culture in India during the Stone Age. SC. VII, pp. 240-241. [103]

A review of Studies on the Ice Age in India and Associated Human Culture by H. de Terra and T. T. Paterson, (Washington, 1939).

Harib, Mohammad.—Indian Culture and Social Life at the Time of the Turkish Invasions. JAHRI. I. Pts. 2-3, pp. 1-125. [104]

A broad study of Indian culture: Discusses first the Ghori conquest of India, and then touches upon Hindu religious system; their sciences; their caste system; their dress and manners; their laws and customs.

Johnston, E. R.—Culture Understanding Between Britain and India. IAL. XV, Pr. 2, pp. 73-77. [105]

General review. Limits himself to the general question how Englishman can be induced to take a more intelligent interest in Indian culture.

The Confluence of culture. A historical review of the contact between Indian and foreign cultures.

Khar, Chintamani Sastri.—Rasaratna-samuccaya Tika. pp. 6 + 8 + 226, Poona, 1941. [107]

A treatise in Medicine.

Lahiri, N. C.—The Length of the Year in Hindu Astronomy IC. VIII, pp. 114-116. [108]

Investigates the reasons which are responsible for the determination of the length of the year that is in excess of the true value.

Mallayya, N. V.—Studies of Sanskrit Texts on Temple Architecture with Special Reference to the Tantrasamuccaya JAU. XI, Pt-1, pp. 25-66. [109]

Mankad, D. R.—The Yugas. PO. VI, pp. 206-216. [110]

Considers the question of the real sense of the word yuga and the number of years given to each yuga in the ancient literature.

Mathur, Sushil Chandra—Dhurpad and Khayal, IR. Vol. 42, pp. 226-228. [111]

Traces the Dhurpad school of music to the 15th century, while the origin of the Khayal school is left in obscurity.

Menon, Chelnat Achuta—Modern Tendencies in Kathakali. AOR. V, Pt. 2, 1 plate. [112]

Discusses the situation which developed in which people were obliged to neglect their language and culture and take to the study of English. Points out how, owing to the same reason, the Kathaksli Dance suffered.

Mookerji, R. K.—[Elements of Hindu Culture and Sanskrit Civilisation], by Dr. Prasanna Kumar Acharya, Lahore, 1940. See ABIHI. III, No. 1022. [113]

The subject has been classified under Family, Social, Economic, Political, Moral and Religious life. All subjects connected with the formation of family, such as marriage, sacraments, food, clothes, house and furniture have been briefly but lucidly described in the first section with authentic quotations from literary and archaeological sources. In the second and Economic section the significance of castes and communities, division of labour, sources of income, origin of writing, development of literature, agriculture, mineralogy, industry, trade and commerce, medium of exchange, trade routes, marketing, banking and the general prosperity of the country have been similarly elucidated. In the Political section have been described the sources of power, political institutions, forms of Government, sources of royal revenues and Courts for justice. Dr. Acharya has made full citations to show that the Parliamentary form of Government was known and practised in Hindu India. The moral and religious basis of human civilisation has been discussed in the last section". JUPHS. XIV, Pt. I, pp. 113-114.

Mulay, Krishnarao Ganesh—Bharatiya Samgit. (Marathi text). Crown, pp. 260. Yashoda-Chintamani Trust Series Vol. X, Bombay, 1941. [114]

Treats on music and shows that in the Vedic period alone its real value was properly understood. After that Indian music deteriorated in the hands of the later artists and scholars into mere mathematical tables of integral and fractional equivalents.

Padmanabhachari, T. R.—Dress and Ornaments in Buddhist India. M-B. Vol. 49, No. 7, pp. 244-249, (to be continued). [115]

Describes dress and ornaments worn by people in the time of Buddhism in India, based upon sculpture, painting and travellers' accounts.

Aryans

Allan, J.—[Pre-Musalman India.] Vol. II, Pt. 1, Vedic India. The Aryan Expansion over India, by V. Rangacharya, Madras, 1937. See ABIHI, II, No. 1066. [137]

“It is some eight years since we noticed the first (prehistoric) part of Mr. Rangacharya’s ambitious history of India down to the Muhammadan conquest. The present volume deals with the historical aspect of the Vedic period down to about 600 B. C., a complimentary volume will deal with the culture of the period. This volume then deals with what the author conveniently calls “Aryan” and “non-Aryan” elements in early Indian Culture”. JRAS, 1941, pp. 72-73.

Sampurnanda.—Aryan ka adi Desh, (Hindi text), pp. 266. The Leader Press, Allahabad, 1941. [138]

A challenging book on the thorny question: What was the original home of the Aryans? The author’s thesis is that the Aryans lived, millenia ago, in the Sapta-Sindhwas region (i.e., the Punjab and the Frontier) from where they radiated their culture to the distant ends of the earth.

— Poems of Cloister and Jungle. A Buddhist Anthology, (Wisdom of the East Series). 12mo. pp. 128, London, 1941. [218]

"These anthologies ascribed to men and women of the Gotamic Order, who in most cases had of their own forsaken their world, are a feature in the old Pali Canon, dating from about the beginning of the sixth century B. C., and following centuries, being for the most part originally oral compositions. Of high religious interest for students they are also of historical interest, as testifying to both the earlier teaching and the supervening superstructure of monastic outlook, and also as betraying the editorial tendency to dump word-work of forgotten singers on to names of abiding fame. The verses also afford a field of comparison with like efforts in other religious literature, notably the nuns' anthology, which is perhaps as such, unique. LOL. LII, No. 4, p. 96

— A Note on the Battle of Vallala: A. D. 911-2. EI. XXVI, Pt. 3, pp. 112-114. [250]

Discusses a record of a Chōla king Parakēsarivarma, who is identified with Parantaka I. As Pr̥ithivipati had been granted the title of 'Bāñā-dhirāja' before A.D. 912-13, the northern campaign in which this Gaṅga feudatory had helped his suzerain against a Bāñā chieftain, success in which had evidently earned for him both the Bāñā title and the Bāñā territory, must have occurred between A. D. 910 and 912-13, i.e., in about A. D. 911-12.

Balasubrahmanyam, S. R.—Panangudi Agastīśvara Temple: A Cōla Temple—9th Century A. D. JMU. XIII, pp. 101-104, 3 plates. [251]

Discusses a temple of the 9th century A. D. and the period of Vijayālaya the founder of the Chōla house of Tanjore.

Dikshitar, V. R. Ramachandra,—Mūnram Kulottunga Śoļan. (Tamil text), Crown 8vo. pp. ix + 180, 1 plate, 1 map, Madras. 1941. [252]

A study of the great Chōla ruler, Kulottunga III, who reigned for nearly quarter of a century, based on epigraphic records.

"A biographical treatment in Tamil confers on an author of a study like this two advantages: it enables him to concentrate attention on the chief figure and it also allows him the freedom to make good use of the extant literary and inscriptional material by appropriate citations from them, which a writer in English will not have the same freedom to utilise to the same extent. Mr. Ramachandra Dickshitar has made good use of his opportunities. The result is an eminently readable, reliable and interesting Tamil history, in which the material is handled with deftness and literary skill". K. V. Rangaswami Aiyangar, BmV. V, Pt. 2 pp. 97-98.

Govindasami, S. K.—A Note on the Nomenclature of Chōla Officialdom. JIH. XX, Pt. 1, pp. 93-94. [253]

The mediaeval Chōla imperialism and the sāmanta or feudal barons had borne titles which almost in all cases ended with the suffixes rāya, mārāya and adirāya. These terms meant chief, great chief, and chief of chiefs. Points out the antiquity of the terms and believes that the nomenclature of the mediaeval Chōla officialdom was an inheritance from early Tamil tradition and not an innovation.

Delhi Sultanate

Halim, S. A.—Relation of Delhi Sultanate with the Kingdom of Multan. JAHRI. I, Pt. 1, pp. 72-83. [254]

A broad survey of the history of Multan.

Quraishi, I. H.—The System of Assignments under the Suntals of Delhi. JAHRI. I, Pt. 1, pp. 63-71. [255]

A study of the system of assigning land or its revenue to a public servant in lieu of services rendered to the State, and its origin.

 See No. 272.

Saletore, G. N.—Two Minor Kadamba Dynasties. JBHS. VI, pp. 48-67. [258]

Some scholars are of the opinion that there was a later Kadamba dynasty at Ucchaṅgi. The writer says that the survey of records pertaining to the so-called Kadambas of Ucchaṅgi reveals to him that there is no basis for such an assumption. He points out two minor Kadamba dynasties, one in possession of Kōgāli 500 and the other of Kadambalige 1000.

Kuṣāṇas

Puri, Baij Nath.—The Nationality and Original Habitat of the Kuṣāṇas. IC. VIII, Pt. 1, pp. 91-96, [259]

Discusses the original habitat of the Kuṣāṇas and the racial stock to which they belonged. Concludes that the original home of the Kuṣāṇas was in Western Asia. Their physical features, their deities and their patronage of the Greek language confirm his theory. He thinks that the ethnological consideration of the problem alone is sufficient data on which to rely when building any theory as regards the origin of the Kuṣāṇas. But it has been possible for the author to confirm and corroborate his contention through other pieces of evidence. He cannot say when the Kuṣāṇas migrated from Western Asia, but they were living, he says on the upper side of the river Oxus when the Chinese Ambassador Chankien visited them in about 125 B.C.

— The Date of the Kadphises Kings and their Relations with the Saka Kṣatrapas of Western India. JIH. XX, Pt. 3, pp. 275-257. [260]

Discusses the dates of the Kuṣāṇa kings of the Kadphises group, and their relations with the Saka Kṣatrapas of Western India, and shows the relationship between Wima and the Saka Kṣatrapas of Western India. By accepting 66 B.C. as the initial year of the old Saka era, he comes to the conclusion that Wima Kadphises died in 124 A.D. Nahapāna declared his independence in the year 45-46 of the Saka Era equivalent to $46+78=124$ A.D. Nahapāna was acting as a Kṣatrapa of Wima Kadphises and his declaration of independence was subsequent to the death of his overlord resulting in the usurpation of power in the North by Jihonika of the Taxila Silver Vase Inscription. Assumes that the old theory of Kanishka as the founder of the Saka Era has to be given up.

Mookerjee, Dharendra Nath,—Chandragupta and Bhadrabāhu.

JIH. XX, Pt. 3, pp. 249–274.

Discusses the tradition that Chandragupta, the Maurya, abdicated and committed suicide by slow starvation, and concludes that the monarch Chandragupta who accompanied Bhadrabāhu was no other than Chandragupta I, Vikramāditya who founded the era of 58 B. C., and as Bhadrabāhu died in V. S. 27, Chandragupta I, left the crown about V. S. 26 and as according to Jaina tradition he lived for twelve years more after Bhadrabāhu's death, Chandragupta I died about V. S. 39=19 B. C. during Samudragupta's rule. The Meherauli Iron Pillar inscription of Chandragupta I, was therefore incised sometime after V. S. 26=32 B.C.

Sehadri, M.,—Commerce of the Maurya Period. HYJMU. I, Pt. 2. pp. 165–170. [262]

Sen, S. N.,—Aśoka. (Bengali text). Calcutta University, Calcutta, 1941 (?) [263]

Presents a brief but accurate account of the important facts known about Aśoka.

Shah, Tribhuvandas L.,—Emperor Aśok Dislodged. $9\frac{1}{2}'' \times 6\frac{1}{4}''$, pp. 14, Baroda, 1940. [264]

Tries to prove that Aśoka and Priyadarshin were two distinct monarchs.

Mughals

Ahmad, M. B.,—Court diaries During the Mughal Period. JAHRI. I, Pt. 1, pp. 32–43. [265]

Gives a few specimens of records of Court Diaries of the Mughal period, preserved in the Daftār e Diwāni in Hyderabad Deccan. These records mostly tell of the procedure of court sittings, the personal, etc.

Ali A. F. M. Abdul,—Mughal Administration BPP. LXI, pp. 50–54. [266]

A short study of the administrative machinery set by the Mughals, in which the author detects the basis on which the present day edifice of British administration in India rests.

Askari, S. H. — An Unknown phase of Mughal-Koch Relations (Based on a newly discovered Persian Manuscript). In No. 1222, pp. 139-148. [267]

The writer discovered an old, incomplete, and damaged Persian manuscript containing more than 70 letters throwing light on the activities of the Mughal officials in Koch Bihar in the last few years of Aurangzeb's reign. Fourteen of these letters are summarised in this paper.

— Nawab Munir-ud-Dowla; A Minister of Shah Alam JBORS. XXVII, pp. 187-220. [268]

A brief life-history of the Persian noble who was in service of Alamgir and Shah Alam, and shows that though an able officer, he had harmed the Mughal cause by his policy of appeasing the East India Company.

Avasthy, R. S. — The Delay in Humāyūn's Accession: An Explanation. JUPHS. XIV, Pt. 1, pp. 58-65. [269]

Critically reviews the two standpoints—whether Humāyūn was present or absent from Agra at the time of death of his father, the Emperor Babar. Concludes that the delay was due to his absence from Agra and not to the conspiracy which had already fizzled out earlier.

Banerji, S. K. — Humāyūn Badshāh, Vol. II. pp. xvi + 444. Maxwell Company, Lucknow, 1941. [270]

The first volume was published in 1939. See ABHI No. 899.

"An honest and reasonable study of a stormy but significant period and of a peace-loving cultured gentleman unfortunately called upon to play the warrior king. In this volume Humāyūn appears in a more pleasing light. Gone were his earlier lethargy, unaccountable fits of cruelty and sentimentalism, irresponsibility and irresolution, and we now find in him a man of action,—energetic, firm and calculating. Whether his non-sectarianism was dictated merely by his own self-interest or was the expression of a genuine catholicity of mind (I wish the author had developed this point a little more fully), his remarks on p. 355 would imply that his profession of Shia faith was a diplomatic conformism but on p. 128 he is suggested to have had no deep sectarian attachment. The latter part of the book deals with a variety of interesting topics. A discussion on Akbar's childhood brings to light what I believe has not been properly stressed, namely his indebtedness to the tradition of culture and liberalism created by his father and grandfather" A. B. Habibullah, IHQ. XVIII, pp. 284-286.

"The author has utilised several sources which were not available to Erskine when he wrote on the subject in 1854:....The writer throws some new light on certain political topics among which may be mentioned the following:—(1) Humāyūn's dealings with Shāh Tahmasp, (2) Maldeo's attitude towards the Mughals and Sher Shāh, (3) The reason that led to Kamran's defeat at the hands of his brother, and (4) Humāyūn's final victory over the Afghans" Radha Kumud Mookerji, JUPHS. XIV, Pt. 2, pp. 128-129.

Banerji, S. K.—Kingship and Nobility in Humāyūn's time
JUPHS. XIV, Pt. 1, pp. 25-38. [271]

Shows that the Mughal kingship in Humāyūn's time was a Central-Asian conception.

Basu K. K.—A letter of Jehāngir to Khurram and its Reply. in No. 14²4, pp. 63-66. [272]

Gives a summary of the letter of Emperor Jehāngir to Prince Khurram and of the latter's reply. These two letters are undated, and have been incorporated in Guldastah, a Persian manuscript.

Hasrat, Bikrama Jit,—Dārā Shikuh. Part V. Mullah Shāh and Other Saints VBQ. VI, pp. 331-345. [273]

Biographical sketch of Mullah Shāh. His birth and parentage; his spiritual gifts and miracles; his letters to Dārā Shikuh and a selection of his poetical compositions.

This series began with Vol. V, Pt. 3 of VBQ. (See ABIHI. No. 382)

Hosain, M. Hidayat.—Contemporary Historians during the reign of the Emperor Shāh Jahān, IsC. XV; pp. 64-78, [274]

Describes historical works written by contemporary or Court historians of Shāh Jahān (1628-1659). As many as nineteen histories dealing with the life of the Emperor were written.

Hosain, M. Hidayat, Ed.—Qānūn-I-Humāyūnī (Also known as Humāyūn Nāma) of Khwāndamir. A work on the rules and ordinances established by the Emperor Humāyūn and on some buildings erected by his order. (Persian text). Bibliotheca Indica Series No. 260. 8 $\frac{1}{4}$ " \times 5 $\frac{1}{4}$ ", pp. xxxvi+144. Royal Asiatic Society of Bengal, Calcutta, 1940. [275]

Only one MS. copy of this work is known to exist in the British Museum, on which this edition is based. Khwāndamir received the emperor's commands for its completion in Gwalior in A. H. 937 (A. D. 1530). A complete English translation of the book fol. 25-114 by Munshi Sadashukh Lal is preserved in the British Museum. (See also Nos. 277 and 278).

Pawar, A. G.,—Some Documents Bearing on Imperial Mughul Grants to Rajā Shahu, (1717-1724). In No. 1222. pp. 204-215. [276]

An account of the Mughul Grants of Chauth, Sardeshmuki and Swaraiya Given to Rajā Shāhu in 1719.

Prashad, Baini, Tr.—Qānūn-I-Humāyūnī (Also known as Humāyūn Nāma) of Khwāndamir. A work of the rules and ordinances established by the Emperor Humāyūn and on some buildings erected by his order. Translated with explanatory notes. Bibliotheca Indica Series No. 263. 9 $\frac{1}{4}$ " \times 5 $\frac{1}{2}$ ", pp. xx+92. Royal Asiatic Society of Bengal, Calcutta, 1940. (See No. 275). [277]

Prashad, Baini—Qānūn-i-Humāyūnī and 'Humāyūn. BPP. LX, pp. 44-48. [278]

Gives a brief outline of some of the observances, rules and ordinances of Humāyūn as detailed in Humayun Nama or Qanun-i-Humayuni of Kawāndamir.

Rahman, Ataur.—Aurangzeb and his Policy. JAHRI. I, Pt. 1, pp. 102-120, [279]

It has generally been said by historians that the Rājput policies of Akbar and Aurangzeb were quite opposite; the one built up an empire and the other lost it. The writer shows that this theory is not only wanting in reason but also in facts.

Roychaudhuri, Makhanlal,—Din-i-Ilahi, or the Religion of Akbar. Foreword by Sachchidananda Sinha. 8½" x 5", pp. xviii + 337. University of Calcutta, 1941. [280]

"After having surveyed the historical and cultural back-ground of Akbar's period, the author describes at length the various forces that were at work at that time. He then deals with the various religious communities, who, as important factors at the Court of Akbar, contributed their respective shares to the evolution of the Din-i-Ilahi,—the Sunnis, the Shias, the Hindus, the Jains, the Sikhs, the Buddhists, the Parsis, the Jews and last but not the least, the Christians. The author accurately summarises the result of the impact of these various communities at the Court of Akbar and the resultant trend thereof which ultimately culminated in the establishment of the Din-i-Ilahi." Foreword.

"A clear, exhaustive and thought-provoking account of one important aspect of Akbar's career, viz., his religious views and policy. The author has made a thorough study of contemporary Persian and Portuguese materials. He has successfully exposed the orthodoxy of Badauni and his perverted jealousy of Faizi and Abul Fazl". A. C. Banerjee, in IHQ. XVII, pp. 525-526,

Saran, P.,—The Provincial Government of the Mughals (1526-1658), 8" x 6", pp. xxvi + 483. Kitabistan, Lahore, 1941. [281]

"The most refreshing part of the book is the criticism of the mis-handling of Mughal institutions by certain writers, and most of this is thoroughly convincing to the reader. Thus when Moreland takes Sir Thomas Roe's list, of the administrative divisions of the Empire under Jehāngir a little too seriously, Dr. Saran goes into much detail, and after having delved into authorities, both Indian and European, comes to the conclusion that Roe, in order to make it appear in keeping with his dignity and influence at Court, gave a list prepared at random from memory the importance of a document emanating from no less a source than the 'King's Register' itself.

Dr. Saran's criticism is always very convincing and dignified, even though the party criticised may have a name with certain amount of authority attached to it. Thus while describing the judicial system of the Mughal Empire in all its aspects, Dr. Saran almost tears to shreds the theory propounded by Sir Jadunath Sarkar in his Mughal Administration". IsC. XV, pp. 393-394.

Review of Sri Ram Sarma's The Religious Policy of the Moghal Emperors, (Oxford University Press, 1940.) See ABIHI III, No. 391.

Saxena, Banarsi Prasad,—Ideals of Moghul Sovereigns. JUPHS. XIV, Pt. 1, pp. 89-104. [283]

An attempt to examine the ideals of the Great Moghals in the light of the theoretical conception of the so-called ultimate political authority. Concludes: That the political ideals of the Moghals were not static but dynamic; that they were essentially secular but only incidentally religious. The one note-worthy feature of these ideals was imperialism but unlike the modern imperialism it had not for its objective the exploitation of others. The Moghal sovereigns were dictators and despots but they were true to their professions, and they did what they said.

Chapters XI and XII. Appendices, Supplementary Bibliography.

Deals with Nizam-ul-Mulk; Disintegration of the Empire, Persian invasion, Battle of Karnal, Panipat and after, and the last of the Moghals.

Shahani, T. K.—[The Religious Policy of the Moghal Emperors], by Prof. Sri Ram Sharma 1940. See ABIHI. III, No. 391. [285]

"It is well known in history that the word "religion" has been often subjected to a perverted use in the hands of selfish domineering tyrants whose real aim is power. Mediaeval India like most of the then known world was, on several occasions, victimised by this outburst of passion for Power and plunder under the guise of religious fervour; but this Muslim foreigner always in a minority, though militarily strong, could not but come to terms with the vast Hindu majority. Conversion of the whole mass of Hindus to Islam was at once recognised to be an impossibility: and the rigidity of Muslim law had often to bend down before expediency, if Muslim rule India was to be at all possible. Prof. Sharma has, therefore, chosen a great theme for historical research which, to say the least, he has done honestly." JUB. X, Pt. I, pp. 202-203.

Spear, T. G. P.—The Moghal Family and the Court in 19th Century Delhi. JIH. XX, Pt. 1, pp. 38-60. [286]

Describes the Delhi Fort, gives a short Moghal chronology, and pictures the Court life.

Srivastava, A. L.—The Failure of Shah Alam II's First Expedition to Delhi, 1765-66. In No. 1222, pp. 195-198. [287]

Before his final expedition that ended in his triumphal entry into Delhi on 6th January, 1772, Shah Alam had made two abortive attempts to quit the British protection at Allahabad and regain his throne. How the first expedition failed is narrated in this paper.

Rāṣṭrakūṭas

Desai, P. B.—Rāṣṭrakūṭa Rājadharigaṇu (Kannada text)

Describes Mānakhetā (Malkhed) and evaluates its importance in the history of Karnāṭaka and of India.

Ayyar, A. S. Ramanatha—A Note on the Dates of Three Rāshtrakūṭa Kings. EI. XXVI, Pt. 4, pp. 161-165. [289]

Discusses the dates of three Rāṣṭrakūṭa kings and concludes:

(1) Indra III, whose date of accession was February 24, A. D. 915, may have actually reigned till at least the end of A. D. 927. He may have continued for some time longer.

(2) Actually the reign of Govinda IV is reduced to a short period of about four years only—from May 930 to the middle of 934. It is not definitely stated anywhere that Govinda died on the occasion of the invasion by the Chālukya king Bhīma II—he may perhaps have lived some years longer; but his career as Rāṣṭrakūṭa king probably ended with A. D. 934.

(3) It is inferred that the accession of Kṛṣṇa III, was calculated from August or September A. D. 934, though his actual coronation as 'king' took place only in December of that year, that he reigned for 27 full years and a portion of the 28th year, and that his death may have occurred in about December 966, or January 967.

Aiyar, Subrahmanyam, K. V.—Three Lectures, Embodying a course of three lectures delivered under the auspices of the Kannada Research Institute, Dharwar, on 6th, 7th and 8th January 1941, on the method of Historic Research and some dark spots in the history of the Rāshtrakūṭas, pp. 120, R. S. Panchmukhi, Director of Kannada Research Institute, Dharwar, 1941. [290]

The first lecture gives some specific instructions for a research student in the method of proper assessment of the material at his disposal. The second and third lectures, discuss at length the points of interest in the ancient history of the Deccan and the Karnāṭaka. He holds that Akalavarsha Subhatunga mentioned in the spurious Mercara plates of the Western Ganga king Avinita is a historical person and an earlier Rashtrakuta king whom the Western Chālukya Jayasimha I is said to have defeated and that Prithividuvaraja mentioned in the Kopparan plates as a subordinate of Pulakesin II is to be identified with Prithivi Pallava king Mahendravarma I.

Desai, P. B.—The Capitals of the Rāṣṭrakūṭas. (Kannada text) JKLA. Vol. 26, Pt. 2, pp. 174-185. [291]

Tughluqs

Rashid, Sh. Abdur.—Agrarian System of the Tughluqs. Section I. JAHRI. I, Pt. 1, pp. 84-101. [292]

A connected account of the system of land-revenue obtained in Northern India under the Tughluq Sultans on the basis of the fragmentary account preserved in the pages of Baruni's Tarikh-i-Firoz Shahi and Shams-i-Siraj Afif's Tarikh-i-Firoz Shahi,

— The Transfer of Capital from Delhi to Daulatabad. JIH. XX, Pt. 2, pp. 159-180. [294]

Consideration that might have weighed with Sultān Muhammad bin Tughluq in transferring his capital from Delhi to Daulatabād is discussed, specially his religious zeal for propagating Islam in the south. Evil effects of this wild experiment of the Sultān have also been dealt with.

Basu, K. K.—Firūz Shāh Tughluq as a Ruler. IHQ. XVII, pp. 386-393. [295]

Narrates the Sultan's efforts at introducing various decrees by which all persecution, annoyance and troubles of the people were removed.

Job, T. J.,—The Pallava Rule in South India. NR. XIV, pp. 139-146; 405-417. [296]

From epigraphic records it is concluded "that Vishnugopāla who was undoubtedly one of the early Pallava kings of Canjeevaram, might have reigned some time about A. D. 340 to 350. Reckoning the chronology from this base, we can broadly say that the Pallava power in South India must have extended roughly from the beginning of the 3rd century A. D. to the end of the 9th. As regards the Pallava origin, the theory of their foreign or Persian origin is unconvincing because it rests merely on the superficial resemblance between the two words Pallava and Pahlava or Palhava or Pahnava (meaning Parthian) who are mentioned in the Purāṇas along with the Sakas and the Yavanas, as a people of Western India in the 2nd century A. D."

Mirashi, V. V.—New Light on the History of the Paramāra Dynasty. NUJ. No. 7, pp. 34-39. [297]

Discusses the Doīgaragoan inscription which is incised on the architrave of dilapidated old temple of Siva. It belongs to the reign of Jagaddēva, a son of Udayāditya and is dated in Saka 1034 (A. D. 1112). Doīgaragoan is in the Yotmal District of Berar. The tenour of the description is verses of the inscription suggests that Jagaddēva was a half-brother of Lakshmadēva who perhaps bore the biruda Raṇadhavalā. He seems to have been nominated by Udayāditya as his successor, but the inscription leaves no doubt that he never ascended the throne of Mālwā.

Disagrees with Prof. V. V. Mirashi in assigning Berar as the original home of the Śātavāhanas simply because large number of Śātavāhana coins were found there. Gives references to prove that the original home of the Satahānas was Pratishthāna. At the end of the article Prof. Mirashi replies upholding his theory.

East India Company

Chandra, Prakash,—The Board of Control. In No. 1222, pp. 191-194. [300]

The Government of India Act, 1784, established a dual Government in London for the administration of India. The day-to-day administration and the power of initiative were left in the hands of the Company, but a Board of Commission was appointed to superintend, direct and control all acts, etc. How this system actually worked out in practice is studied in this paper.

Joshi, V. V.—Marquess of Wellesley and the Conquest of India. JUB. IX, Pt. 4, pp. 8—48. [304]

Shows how military causes were responsible for the British conquest of India and that these military causes were the outcome of the state of political feelings. The writer says, the conquest was really accomplished during the short span of Wellesley's administration, when within a few years the Company rose from the position of a second-rate power in the country to that of virtual paramountcy. Marquess of Wellesley's aggressive policy was successful only because he had a powerful army to back him in his decisions.

Philips, C. H.—East India Company (1784—1834), pp. 374. Manchester University Press, 1940 (?) [305]

“Dr. Philips gives us, I believe, for the first time, a very thorough account of the influence exerted by the Board of Control, the Court of Directors and the Court of Proprietors on British policy in India and the relative value and importance of these parts. He gives us very full information as to the extent of influence exercised by the President and the force and direction of the pressure exercised by the East India Company's interest in England.” *N. Traces the origin of India's foreign trade from the earliest time.

Srikantan, K. S.—Kautilya on Economic Planning. JUB. IX, Pt. 4, pp. 71-78. [313]

Discusses Kautilya's scheme of economic planning. "His skill of planning was not a piecemeal reform," says the writer, "nor was it a cut and dried programme devoted for a static world. It was a dynamic planning which was fundamentally a revolt against the brutality of economic adjustments."

Venkataramana, Y.—Kṛṣṇa Deva Rāya's Economic Policy. IHQ. XVII, pp. 97-103. [314]

Outlines the economic policy of Kṛṣṇa Dēva Rāya of Vijayanagar, gathered from two main sources, (1) Rayavācakama, an almost contemporary evidence of his economic policy and the state of finance in his time, and (2) Āmuktamālāyada, a work containing autobiographical glimpses into his economic policy.

Education

Adam, William,—Report on the State of Education in Bengal. Edited by Anathnath Basu, 8½" x 5½", pp. lxvii + 578 Calcutta University, Calcutta, 1941. [315]

"William Adam's inquiry was undertaken at the request of Bentinck who admitted the obvious truth that 'to know what the country has done and is doing for itself.' Three Reports were prepared in the three years 1835-38: the first was a general resume of previous knowledge of Hindu and Muslim schools; the second was a detailed account of the single district of Rajshahi; the third dealt comprehensively with Bengali and Hindi schools, Sanskrit schools, Persian and Arabic schools, English schools, domestic instruction, and adult education. One has to dip anywhere into these Reports, now conveniently edited, to see for oneself the candour, sense, and statemanship of their author." T. N. Siqueira, in NR XVI, pp. 348-349.

Altekar, A. S.—The Conception and Ideals of Education in Ancient India. JBHU. VI, pp. 115-129. [316]

A broad study of the education and educational system in ancient India. Concludes: "The aims and ideals of ancient Indian education were to promote their simultaneous and harmonious development. Discussions are introduced and Sanskrit text quoted to show that infusion of a spirit of piety and religiousness, formation of character, development of personality, inculcation of civic and social duties, promotion of social efficiency by the proper training of the rising generation in different branches of knowledge and the preservation and spread of national culture may be described as the chief aims and ideals of ancient Indian education.

A study of the educational activities of the Muslims in India from the 7th century A. H. Gives reasons for educational decay in India after Muslim rule.

Sastri, G. Krishna—Soul-Education of the Masses. AP. XII, pp. 123-126. [325]

A plea for spiritual knowledge. Recommends the rudiments of Sankhya-yoga which is extolled by Kauṭilya, the last great authority on Arthaśāstra.

Sen, Priyaranjan—Pooree English School (1835-40). JBORS. XXVII, pp. 473-484. [326]

Narrates how the school was organised, and its development, and how the enterprise failed.

Shahani, Ranjee G.—Osmania University and the Growth of Urdu Literature. IAL. XV, Pt. 1, pp. 12-24. [327]

The paper raises two questions: the place of Urdu, of any vernacular, as a medium of instruction in educational institutions in India; and secondly, the question of the use of Urdu as a common language for India.

Sharma, V. N.—Some Thoughts on Indian Education. ER. XLVII, pp. 69-75; 326-335. [328]

A portion of author's forthcoming work India's Contribution to the Science of Education.

Finds in ancient Indian literature the words Siks, Adhyayana, Vinaya and Prabodha which corresponds roughly to the modern expression 'Education.'

Siqueira, T. N.—The Secret of Jesuit Education. NR. XIII, pp. 238-248. [329]

Since education is one of the most successful works done by the Jesuits, the writer probes into the secret of their success. The writer concludes: "As I have pointed out elsewhere, whatever may have been the backwardness of Hindu and Muhammadan education as compared with the present system, it had two good features which we have since all but lost: it gave the first place to religion, and it was a personal discipleship of the pupils to the teacher. And these are the very features which distinguish the Jesuit system of education. Religion permeates the Jesuit school and everything else is subordinate to it; and intimate contact between teacher and pupils and among the pupils themselves—which Oxford and Cambridge have inherited from their Catholic founders—is the very soul of a Jesuit which is often felt but seldom known." —See writer's The Education of India, Oxford University Press, 1939.

Sinha, Nirmal Chandra—Education Under Auckland : 1836-42. CR. LXXVIII, pp. 124-136. [330]

A brief sketch of the educational measures of Auckland is attempted. The writer's view is that on the score of educational policy Auckland deserves to be ranked along with Bentinck, Dalhousie and Curzon.

Epic

Acharya, N. C. Narimha—The Āndhra Mahābhāratam. ABORI. XXII, Pts. 1-2, pp. 97-102. [331]

Points out that the whole of the Mahābhārata was rendered into Telugu poetry by three ancient poets of Āndhra, Nannayabhaṭṭa, Tikkana Somayājī and Errana.

Banerjee, Romesh Chandra—New Light on Kashiram Das. CR. LXXVIII, pp. 153-156. [332]

The twin epics of mediaeval Bengali literature—the Rāmāyaṇa of Krittibash and the Mahābhārata of Kashiram Das, are subjects of perennial interest. The question whether Kashiram Das was actually the author of the whole of the work that passes under his name is discussed. A recent discovery makes the writer believe that the sphere of Kashiram's actual composition in the Bengali Mahābhārata named after him is very small.

Dandekar, R. N. Ed.—Jñāna-Dīpikā. A Commentary by Devabodha on the Ādi-parvan of the Mahābhārata. Bhandarkar Oriental Research Institute, Poona, 1941. [333]

The Jñāna-dīpikā Mahābhārata-tātparya-tikā of Devabodha is the oldest known commentary on the Mahābhārata, that of Nīlakanṭha being one of the latest. The manuscript of Devabodha's commentary are extremely rare, and obtainable only in fragments and on some of the individual Parvans. The editor has given an authentic edition of the Ādi-parvan commentary, based upon three Devanāgarī paper manuscripts, but the manuscript material does not appear to be as satisfactory as one would wish it to be. The text is carefully edited with full critical apparatus and references.

De, S. K.—A Further Note on the Udyoga-Parvan Passage. 5-19-15. JRAS. (1941), pp. 149-152. [334]

Points out to Prof. Johnston that the word Kūñcana is a name of a tree and it is found in the Mahābhārata itself, and also in other ancient literature. Answers other questions which Prof. Johnston raised in JRAS. (1946).

Dharma, P. C.—The Rāmāyaṇa Polity. With Foreword by The Hon'ble V. S. Srinivasa Sastri. 9 $\frac{1}{2}$ " \times 6", pp. ix + 100. The Madras Law Journal Press, Madras, 1941. [335]

“Depicts political institutions as described by Vālmiki in the Rāmāyaṇa. After briefly referring to the Rāmāyaṇa as an Itihasa and Kavya, to the different dates assigned to the Rāmāyaṇa, to the geographical data contained therein, the social organisation of India at the time of the Epic, the authoress devotes eight chapters to the system of government, the central administration, the ministry, permanent higher officials, revenue administration and taxation, administration of law and justice, local administration and military organisation. The writer assumes that Vālmīki was a contemporary of Rāma and the polity described in the Rāmāyana may be considered to reflect the age in which Rāma lived.

"The book reveals an intimate acquaintance with the Rāmāyana material on polity. But one misses in it the treatment of the subject from a comparative vision which is so essential to relieve the monotony implied in the dry cataloguing of facts from a single source." JUPHS. XIV, Pt. 2, p. 130.

"Miss Dharma has collected in this slim volume much material, the value of which however cannot be said to have been enhanced in any way by her evident effort to read 'constitutional' history into quite harmless texts. It is difficult to see how she could permit herself the liberty of using ultra-modern political terms such as 'cabinet', 'prime minister' "etc." Batakrishna Ghosh, IC. VIII, p. 121.

Harshe, R. G—Arabic Version of the Mahābhārata Legend. BDCRI. II, Pts. 3-4, pp. 314-324. [336]

Gives the Arabic version of the Mahābhārata legend as translated into French by M. Reinaud in Fragments Arabes et Parsans, inédits, relatifs à l'inde, antérieurement au XIe siècle de l'ère chrétienne, Paris, 1845.

Iyer, P. R. Chidambara—Rāvaṇa (A study in the Light of the New Psychology). ABORI. XXII, Pts. 1-2, pp. 45-68. [337]

Discusses psychopathic personality of Rāvaṇa and tries to discover how he developed into what he was and why he did all that he did. Traces the origin and childhood of Rāvaṇa as given in the Uttarakāṇḍa. Being the progeny of a mixed marriage between a female of the Rāksasa stock and a male of a Ṛṣi, it was natural, says the author, that Rāvaṇa should have the heritage of a mental and physical constitution, forming a battle-ground for two conflicting congenitally-determined instinct-disposition.

Kibe, M. V.—Is the Uttara Kāṇḍa of Vālmīki Rāmāyana Un-Historical? JIH. XX, Pt. 1, pp. 28-34. [338]

The historicity of the tragedy given in the Uttara Kāṇḍa in Vālmīki's Rāmāyana, is doubted by many scholars. The writer expresses the view that the Uttara Kāṇḍa forming, as it does, a necessary portion of the Rāmāyana, cannot be an interpolation. The Kāṇḍa contains facts that are corroborated by archaeological excavations.

— [Rāmāyana and Laṅkā], by T. Paramasiva Iyer, Bangalore City, 1940. See ABIHI. III, No. 452. [339]

"In this work the author identifies Laṅkā with the Trikūṭa cum Suvela Hill, that in the Indrana Hill in the Sehora Tahsil of the Jubbulpore District of the Central Provinces. The book consists of 152 pages and is embellished with maps. It is regrettable that the grounds on which the author bases his conclusions are disjointed, uncritical, wrong in certain particulars and therefore unconvincing. There are also many repetitions, as in the case of Yojanas. The part II of the book contains sound matter and his interpretation of the Yojanas, and the location of the Laṅkā, as given in the astronomical work, on the equator, at Lingga Island in the Dutch Rio Lingga Archipelago, extending from Singapore to the North of the Indragiri Riverian Sumatra, are original and convincing.

The occasion which provoked the author to write the book was Dr. Rabindra Nath Tagore's speech made in June 1934 and published in The Hindu saying that Ceylon was Rāvana's Laṅkā. the author proceeds to describe and criticise my alleged theory of the location of Rāvana's Laṅkā near Maheshwar on the Narmadā in the Indore State. I have done nothing of the kind. I have located Laṅkā on the Amarkaṇṭaka near the source of the Narmadā. The theory which he criticises was propounded in the newspaper articles by the late Mr. Vishnupant Karandikar, to whose credit stands the discovery and excavation of an ancient site on the South Bank of the Narmadā, almost opposite to Maheshwar, which is perhaps as old as Mohenjo Daro and Harappa". ABORI. XXII, Pls. 1-2, pp. 123-127.

Mehta, C. N.—Sundar Kāṇḍam, (Sanskrit-English text). pp. 359. Pub. : Author, Nadiad, 1941. [340]

Exposition on the chapter of Rāmāyaṇa describing the flight of Hanuman to Laṅkā by air, containing the original text in Sanskrit with annotation in English. Also some stray thoughts on the three principal races of mankind, the Laṅkā of Rāvana and the extent of Sugriwa's empire.

Menon, Chelnat Achyuta—Māvāratam Paṭṭu (Malayalam text). AOR. VI, Pt. 2, pp. 1-24. [341]

A Ballad based on Mahābhārata in which the anonymous author narrates the story of the Pāṇḍavas with considerable local colouring.

Sukthankar, Vishnu S. Ed.—The Mahābhārata, Fascicule 11, Āraṇyakaparvan. Critically edited with the co-operation of other scholars. pp. 509. Bhandarkar Oriental Research Institute, Poona, 1941. [349]

"The text of the Āraṇyaka", in the words of the editor, "is, relatively speaking, remarkably smooth". As a result of the critical analysis of the text and the collation of the mss. several passages occurring in the vulgate have been omitted in the edition. Of these special mention may be made of the sections dealing with Arjuna's temptation by Urvaśi (chapters 45-6 of the Bombay Edition) and the killing of Naraka and the rescue of the earth by Viṣṇu (chapter 142 of the Bombay edition). These and other long omissions will be given in the form of an appendix in the concluding fasciculus of the parvan while minor omissions of lines and couplets are recorded in footnotes". Chintaharan Chakravarti, IHQ. XVIII p. 181.

— Epic Studies. In No. 1434, pp. 472-487. [350]

Triveda, D. S.—Five Thousand Years ago—The Mahābhārata War. In No. 1434, pp. 515-525. [351]

Discusses the date of the Mahābhārata War and concludes that definite evidences show the Āryans are not the invaders of India but they are the children of the soil. Hence it is finally concluded that the war was fought in 3137 B. C., 3080 B. C., or 5078 years (3137+1941) ago.

Epigraphy and Palaeography

Ahmad, Khwaja Muhammad.—Some New Inscriptions from the Golkonda Fort. EIM. 1937-38, pp. 47-52. [352]

Six inscriptions are edited. (1) On a gun, Persian-Arabic text. Dated 1077 H. gives the names of the founder as Muhammād 'Ali-'Arab, and the capacity of munitions, (2) On a gun, dated 10,0 H. Same information (3) Over an entrance to a mosque, records the building of the mosque by one Mulla Khiyālī in 977 H. (4) In the interior of a mosque refers to repairs. (5) Records the construction of the bastion called Haidārī Bastion in the fort of the city of Muhammādanagar, dated 1077 A. D. The architect's name is given as Dharmāchār.

Ahmad, Maulavi Shamsuddin.—The Navagram Inscription of Sultān Muṣrat Shāh of Bengal. EIM. 1937-38, pp. 37-38. [353]

The epigraph edited records the erection of a mosque by one Miyān Murazzam on the 4th Rajab, 932 H.

— Two Inscriptions from Sherpūr, Bogra District, Bengal. EIM. 1937-38, pp. 17-22. [354]

The two epigraphs here edited are found fixed in the front wall, on one side of the central entrance leading to the prayer-chamber of a mosque called Kherua mosque, now in ruins. (1) Indicates that the sanctuary was built by Mirza Mūrād Khān on 20 January, 1582. (2) Indicates the virtues of one who leaves a monument behind.

Aiyangar, A. N. Krishna—Two Dindima Inscriptions from Mullandram. BmV. V, Pt. 2. [355]

The two inscriptions contain records of land-grants made by two members of the Dindima family, which had produced a number of Sanskrit poets who were connected, with the ruling house of Vijayanagara as composers of royal Śāsanas. These inscriptions in Tamil-Grantha character found in a temple at Mullandram, the native village of the Dindima poets, help to ascertain the exact relationship of some of the well-known members of the family.

Aiyangar, S. Krishnasvami.—The Vēdanārāyaṇa-perumāl Inscription: Anūr (No. 76 of the Epigraphist's Collection of 1932-33). JSVOI. II, Pt. 1, pp. 107-120. [356]

The inscription is built into the wall of the temple of Vēdanārāyaṇa-perumāl at Anūr, a village in the Kalattūr division of the Chinglepet District. It refers to the time of a king, Rajakēsarivarman. The prasasti begins with a Tamil expression well known in Chōla inscriptions and refers to an achievement of Rājarāja I. The expression is the equivalent of "the destruction of ships in the roads of Kāndalūr". The actual date is A. D. 999. Gives text and translation.

Altekar, A. S.—Six Saindhava Copper-Plate Grants from Ghumli. EI. XXVI, Pt. 4, pp. 185-192. [357]

Six copper-plate grants were discovered in 1935 near Ghumli in the Nawangar State of Kathiawar. They were briefly noticed in the Annual Report of the Archaeological Survey of India for the year 1936-37, pp. 102-05. They are here re-edited.

— Two Yūpa Inscriptions from Barnāla: Kṛita Year 284 and 335. EI. XXVI, Pt. 3, pp. 118-123, 1 plate. [358]

The inscriptions belong to the 3rd century A. D. The first records erection of seven yūpas by a person whose name is lost. The second inscription records the gift of 90 objects to the Brāhmaṇas. The names of the objects and the donor are lost.

Bhattacharya, Sachchidananda—Select Aśokan Epigraphs. (With Annotations). pp. xiv+82, Chuckerverthy Chatterjee & Co. Calcutta, 1941. [359]

"In this short and handy volume Prof. Bhattacharya has given us several selected epigraphs of Aśoka in translation along with notes. For this study he has selected only those that speak of definite events in the career of the emperor and has arranged them in the order in which the events took place. In his translation he follows the text of Hultzsch as presented in Corpus Inscriptionum Indicarum, Vol. I, which is no doubt a standard work. The present book is very largely in the nature of a compilation, but the author has shown his power of judgment and has not hesitated to reject the interpretation of Hultzsch, where it has been found obviously unsatisfactory, in favour of more plausible ones, put forward by other authorities". S. K. Saraswati, IHQ. XVIII, pp. 83-85

Bengeri, H. G.—Akālavarsaṇa Śilālipi (Byadgi). With notes by N. Lakshminarayana Rao and B. Rama Rao. (Kannada text). KSPP. XXVI, pp. 189-195. [360]

Dated in Darnati Ś. S. 823, the inscription refers to the reign of the Rāṣṭrakūṭa Emperor Kṛṣṇa II, and to the administration of his governor Lokate, in charge of the Banavasi 12,000 province. In the notes Lokate is identified with Lokaditya, s/o Bankeya of the Chellapataka or Chellaketans family.

— The Byādgi Inscription of Akālavarsa-Kṛṣṇa: 901 A.D. (Kannada text), JKLA. Vol. 26, Pt. 2, pp. 189-195. [361]

The inscription is edited, with notes by N. Lakshminarayana Rao and B. Rama Rao.

Bhattachari, N. K.—The Badganga Rock Inscription of Mahārājā-dhirāja Bhūtivarmman. JARS. VIII, Pt. 4, pp. 138-139, 1 plate. [362]

The inscription in Gupta script, the earliest hitherto discovered in Assam. It is dated in the 234th year of the Gupta Era. The inscription merely records that Mahārājā-dhirāja Śri-Bhūtivarmman performed the Aśvamedha sacrifice in the year 554 A. D.

Bhattasali, N. K.—Two inscriptions of Gopāla III, of Bengal. IHQ. XVII, pp. 207-222, 2 plates. [363]

Two inscriptions, (1) The Nimdighi (Māndā) stone inscription, (2) The Rajibpur (Bāngād) Sadāśiva-image inscription, are edited and translated. The first commemorates the sacrifice of a number of heroes of Bengal who fought on the side of Gopāla and gave up their lives for their master. The second records the consecration of the image in the reign of Gopāla Dēva, by Puruṣottama.

Billimoria, N. M.—Inscription on the Tomb of Abu Turab in Sind. JSHS. V, pp. 135-136. [364]

Recounts how the writer obtained a copy of the inscription, gives English translation and a few notes on Abu Turab.

Biswas, Akhil Bandhu—A Note on the Ajanṭā Inscription of the Vākāṭakas. IC. VII, pp. 372-375. [365]

The inscription belongs to the reign of Harisēṇa. The writer here points out certain discrepancies. Discusses whether the family whose exploits are recorded in the inscription is not different from that of Pravarasena II, son of Prabhāvatiguptā and grandson of Chandragupta II.

Chaghtai, M. A.—An incomplete inscription from Ahmedabad. JGRS. III, Pt. 3, pp. 171-173. [366]

A study of five lines of Persian inscription dated 815 A. H. which is found in the central mihrab of Alam Dīn's mosque situated towards the west of Shāh Wajih-ud-Dīn's tomb. It contains an incomplete information of the construction of some monument by one Sayyad Alam Abu Bakar Hussaini.

Chakravarti, S. N.—The Sohgaura Copper-plate Inscription. JRASBL. VII, Pt. 2, pp. 203-205. [367]

— Bihar Kotra Inscription of Naravarman's Time; Malava Year 474. EI. XXVI, Pt. 3, pp. 130-132, 1 plate. [368]

This inscription is in the Prince of Wales Museum, Bombay. It was discovered at Behar Kotra in the Rajgadh State, Mālwā. Language is Sanskrit. It records the digging of a reservoir in the name of the bhikshusamgha of the four quarters for the quenching of thirst of all beings. The gift was made by Virasēṇa in the reign of Mahārāja Naravarman, when four hundred and seventy-four years had elapsed, i.e. in A. D. 417-18.

Chaudhury, P. D.—The Khōnāmukh Copper-plate Grant of Dharmapāla of Prāgjyotiṣha. JARS. VIII, Pt. 4, pp. 113–120, 5 plates. [369]

A set of three plates discovered at Khōnāmukh (Assam). The language is Sanskrit and the script North-Eastern Nāgarī. There is no date but on palaeographical grounds it is assigned to the 12th century. Text and translation are given.

Das Gupta, C. C.—Indian Museum Plates of Gaiga Indravarman. EI. XXVI. Pt. 4, pp. 165–171, 1 plate. [370]

Found in the Ganjam district. Records the gift of land by Indravarman, in the village of Bhēthiśringa on the fourth day of the bright fortnight of the month of Phālguna for the benefit of his parents and self, to Lōkamādhava, Svayambhukēśvara and some other Brāhmaṇas.

Das Gupta, Nalini Nath—Viṣṇusomācāryya of the Kāmarūpa-Viṣaya. JARS. VIII, Pt. 4, pp. 134–136. [371]

Points out the copper-plate grant of the Eastern Gaṅga Anantavarman (EI. XXVI, pp. 62–68). It is a grant to one Viṣṇusomācāryya who belonged to the Pārāsara goṭra and hailing from Śrīṅgātīka-agrahāra in the Kāmarūpa-viṣaya. The writer here does not agree fully with Mr. R. K. Ghosal when he says in EI that Kāmarūpa-viṣaya may be just another district in ancient Kaliṅga. The writer thinks it is meant to be Kāmarūpa (Assam).

Dishit, Moreshwar G.—Śivapūra (Goa) Plates of Candra-varman. NIA. IV, Pt. 5, pp. 181–184, 1 plate. [372]

A set of three copper-plates found in Goa. They bring to light an hitherto unknown prince of Goa whom the writer assigns to the Kadamba dynasty.

— Ambivle Cave Inscriptions. ABORI. XXII, Pts. 1–2, pp. 72–73, 2 plates. [373]

Four inscriptions from the Ambivle Cave are edited for the first time. Two of these inscriptions are given in Dr. Luder's list of Brahmi Inscriptions in EI. X Appendix, Nos. 1069 and 1070, the reading of which make no sense. The other two are merely names, probably of some devotees.

Dikshitar, Ramachandra—Yavanas and Dharmayavana in Karli Inscriptions. HR. LXXIV, pp. 92–101. [374]

A re-examination of the inscriptions at Karli, Junnar and Nasik has been made here in the light of the observations made by Dr. W. W. Tarn in his treatise The Greeks in Bactria and India.

Diskalkar, D. B.—Inscriptions of Kaṭhiāwāḍ. NIA. III, pp. 371–382: 398–410. [375]

This is continuation of writer's collection of inscriptions of Kaṭhiāwār. The last article of this series appeared in NIA. III (1940) p. 353. Twenty-two inscriptions are here edited; dated from 1694 to 1748 A. D.

Ganguly, D. C.—Date of Ashrafpur Plates. EI. XXVI, Pt. 3, pp. 125-126. [376]

This is the copper plate published by Mr. Ganga Mohan Laskar in the Memoirs of the Asiatic Society of Bengal, Vol. I, No. IV. The writer here does not agree with Mr. Laskar, nor with Dr. R. C. Majumdar in reading of the date. Points out that symbols should be read neither as 73 nor as 63 but as 7, which is obviously the regnal year of the King Dēvakhadga, during whose reign the inscription was issued.

Garde, M. G.—Tumain Inscription of Kumaragupta and Ghatotkachagupta; G. E. 116. EI. XXVI, Pt. 3, pp. 115-118, 1 plate. [377]

The inscription is on a stone stuck upon a wall of a small dilapidated mosque at Tumain in Gwalior State. It records the construction of a temple to a god (name is lost) by five brothers residing at Tumbavans.

Ghosh, A.—A Buddhist Tract in a Stone Inscription in the Cuttack Museum. EI. XXVI, Pt. 3, pp. 171-174. 1 plate. [378]

Inscription on a stone slab housed in the Provincial Museum of Orissa, Cuttack. The text of the inscription is a question of some Buddhist dharanī followed by a discourse on the use and virtues of the dharanī. The tract purports to have been uttered by the Buddha himself to his disciple Ananda.

— Paraśurāmēśvara Temple Inscriptions. EI. XXVI, Pt. 3, pp. 126-127. 1 plate. [379]

One of the five inscriptions in the Paraśurāmēśvara temple at Bhuvanēśwar in Pūri District. The script is of the first half of the 9th century A. D. It records some daily offering in favour of Paraśesvarabhaṭṭaka, by which word is probably meant the god installed in the temple, as well as those who were to cook (?) the offering to the god.

Ghoshal, R. K.—Two Eastern Gaṅgā Copper-Plate Grants from Sudava. EI. XXVI, Pt. 2, p. 62, 3 plates. [380]

Two sets of copper-plates which form the subject of the paper, were found in course of some excavation near the temple of Dharmalin-gēśvara at the village of Sudava. The author now re-edits the inscriptions.

The first set is of Dēvēndravarma, son of Guṇārṇava, year 184. Records the gift of a village of Haduvaka to the learned Brāhmaṇa teacher Pataṅga-Śivāchārya. The date given in words as well as in figures, is the Year 184, which presumably refers to the Gaṅga era.

The second set is of Anantavarman, son of Dēvēndravarma, Year, 204. It records the gift of the village of Tālatthēra to the Brāhmaṇa Vishṇusōmāchārya.

Ghoshal, R. K.—Kamauli Plate of Govindachandra, King of Kanauj; V. S. 1184. EL. XXVI, Pt. 2, pp. 68-74. 1 plate. [381]

This is one of the twenty-five copper-plate inscriptions found in 1892 in the village of Kamauli. They are now in the Provincial Museum at Lucknow.

The inscription records that Govindachandra, on the Manvādi the full-moon tithi of Kārttika of the (Vikrama) Year 1184, after bathing in the Ganges at Vārānasi, he made a gift of the village of Bhāni to Jagūśarman.

— Dhavalapēṭa Plates of Mahārāja Umavarman. EL. XXVI, Pt. 3, pp. 132-135, 1 plate. [382]

Turned up while digging in a field in the village of Dhavalapēṭa in Vizagapatam district. The record is incomplete as one plate has been lost. The inscription is of Mahārāja Umavarman, issued from Sunagara. It records the gift of the village of Kuttura to a Brāhmaṇa named Khallasvāmin.

— Tekkali Plates of Ānantavarman; Gaṅga Year 358 EL. XXVI, Pt. 4, pp. 174-177, 1 plate. [383]

Records the gift of the village of Sinicharana to a Brāhmaṇa called Vithubhaṭa by King Ānantavarman of the Gaṅga kula.

Guleri, Shaktidhar Sharma—The Jhunta Rai Temple Marble Stone-Slab Inscription of V. S. 1716. J.A. VII, Pt. 2, pp. 89-97. [384]

The inscription was formerly attached to the Jhunta Rai Temple at Amber in Jaipur, and is now preserved in the Jaipur State Museum. It supplies the genealogy of the Kachhvāhā rulers. Text is given.

Hařichandan, Lakshminarayana—Kapilēśwara Deb's Copper Plate Grant. JBHS. VI, pp. 94-111. [385]

Grant of Kapilēśwara Deb of Orissa to the Brāhmins residing near the river Krishna. Gives the reading and the gist.

Hasan, Zafar—An Inscription of 'Alāud-Dīn Khaljī Recently Discovered at Muttra. EIM. 1937-38, pp. 59-61. [386]

Epigraph over a tomb. Persian text. Mentions Sultān 'Alāi-Dunya-wa-Dīn Shāh Sikandar-i-Thānī, but the event to which the epigraph refers is not clear. According to the author, the record seems to belong to the emperor 'Alāud-Dīn Khaljī.

Kataki, Sarbeswar—An Inscribed Cannon in the Lucknow Museum. JRAS. VIII, Pt. 1, pp. 16-18, 1 plate. [387]

The cannon bears a Sanskrit inscription engraved in old Assamese characters saying that it was cast under the order of Swargadeo Sivasingha in the Saka era 1657.

Kavi, M. Ramakrishna—Grant of Paramachālta Village by Śrīranga (S. S. 1568 or 1646 A. D.) JSVOI. II, Pt. 1, pp. 97–135, 1 plate. [388]

The grant is inscribed in Nandināgari characters except at the end the letters Śrīrāma are in Telugu script. It records the gift of two villages, Paramachālta and Māneṭṭla in Chandragiri-rājya by Śrīranga in S. S. 1568 Pārtiva year, Vaiśākhi śuddha Dvādaśi. Gives the text, summarises the contents, but does not give translation.

Khan, Fazul Ahmad—Three Inscriptions from Gingee. EIM. 1937–38, pp. 42–45. [389]

(1) Persian text, Says the Husaini bastion was built in 1063 H. (2) Persian text, Records the building of a mosque by one Sa 'id, Governor of Gingee in 1130 H. (3) Persian text, In Sa 'd' ullah Khan's Mosque, Gingee. It records the construction of a canal by Sa 'id, Governor of Gingee. It is dated 1135 H.

(1) Inscription of 'Alāud-Dīn Ahmad Shāh Bahmani from Halsingi Records the death of Sūlṭān Alāud-Dīn. It is dated 839 II (A. D. 1435). (2) Persian text mixed with Arabic, from a dargāh at Pirapūr. It records the building of a mosque by one Malik 'Abdul-Qādir, in the time of Sūlṭān Ibrāhīm 'Ādil Shāh II, of Bijapur (3) Persian text, records the construction of a well by the mother of Malik 'Abdul-Qādir. Date 101 H.

Kokil, Muhammad Umar—Haldarvā nā bē Arabī Silālekh. (Gujarati text). SFGST. VI, Pt. 370–372, [391]

Translation of two Arabic inscriptions of about 1300 A. D. which records the death of two brothers Nasiruddin and Badruddin Ahmad.

Majumdar, R. C.—Some Dates in the Pāla and Sena Records. JRASBL. VII. Pt. 2, pp. 215–218. [392]

Doubts the correctness of the dates of the following inscriptions as read by previous scholars: (1) Nālandā copper-plate of Dēvapāla, (2) Jayanagara image inscription of Madanapāla, (3) Rajilpur Sadasīva image inscription of Gopāla III, (4) Barrakpur copper-plate of Vijayasēna, (5) Two Imadpur image inscriptions of Mahipāla.

The dates found in the first three inscriptions have been read afresh and corrected.

Menon, V. K. R. and Nambiar V. N. D.—Two Vatteluthu Inscriptions in the Iranikkalam Temple. BRVRI. IX, Pt. 2, pp. 134–136. [393]

Both the inscriptions are undated, nor do they contain references to any ruler or to any important historical incident. They relate to lands dedicated to the temple.

Mirashi, V. V. Ed.—Vākāṭaka Inscription in Cave XVI at Ajanta. Edited with Introduction and translations. Hyderabad Archaeological Series No. 14, Hyderabad, 1941. [394]

The inscription is one of the minister Varahadēva of the Vākāṭaka king Harisēna. The main interest of the inscription lies in the first part which gives the Vākāṭaka genealogy from Vindhyaśakti, the founder of the family.

— Rājim stone Inscription of the Nala King Vilāstuṅga. EL. XXVI, Pt. 2, pp. 49—58. [395]

This record is incised on a slab of stone which is built into the left hand wall of the maṇḍapa of the temple of Rājivalōchana at Rājim, 28 miles south by east of Rāipūr in C. P.

The inscription is one of a king, probably Vilāstuṅga, of the Nala dynasty. The object of it is to record the construction, by the king, of a temple dedicated to Vishnu.

— Kōthuraka Grant of Pravarasēna II. EL. XXVI, Pt. 4, pp. 155—161, 2 plates. [396]

Four copper-plates containing 36 lines in Sanskrit now in the Nagpur Museum, are edited. The inscription records the grant, by Pravarasēna II, of the village of Kōthuraka which was situated in the territorial division of Supratishṭha, to the celebrated Brāhmaṇa Kāluṭaka.

— Dōṅgargāo Stone Inscription of the Time of Jagaddēva; Śaka 1034. EL. XXVI, Pt. 4, pp. 177—183, 1 plate [397]

The inscription records a grant of the village of Dōṅgarāgrāma to the Brāhmaṇa Srinivāsa by the illustrious Jagaddēva.

Mirashi, V. V. and Mahajan, D. B.—Basim Plates of Vākāṭaka Vindhyaśakti II. EL. XXVI, Pt. 3, pp. 137—144, 1 plate; Pt. 4, pp. 145—155, 2 plates. [398]

The plates register the grant by Vindhyaśakti, of the village Ākāsapadda, situated near Tākālakhōppaka on the road going north from Nāndikāda, to certain Brāhmaṇas of the Ātharvaṇa charaya of Atharvavēda.

Moneer, Q. M.—Three Persian Inscriptions of Allāh Vardī Khān Turkmān from the ancient hill forts in the Nasik District. EIM. 1937-38, pp. 7-12. [399]

The three inscriptions edited here are engraved on rocks in the Sātmāla ranges on which are erected the forts of Indrāi, Chāndor and Dhōdap. (1) At Chāndor: Records the building of the fort and it is dated 12th of Shawwāl, 1045 H (20, March, 1636 A. D.) (2) At Indrāi: Records the conquest of the fort by Allāh Vardi Khān. A set of copper-plates found in Kunṭagāṇi village, 20 miles North-East of Sanikatta or Gokara, is edited. The grant is said to be of not much historical value.

— An Inscription of Jaitugi, Saka 1188. EI.XXVI, Pt. 3, pp. 127–130. [413]

This inscription is preserved in the Prince of Wales Museum, Bombay; it was found in the vicinity of Bombay. It records the gift of land to a Brāhmaṇa Vaidēva, in the reign of Jaitugi, who is called Mahārājādhirāja, Rūyapitāmaha, Kūkāṇachakravartin. These titles were usually borne by the Śilāhāra kings. It is therefore presumed that Jaitugi must have been a Śilāhāra king.

Sastri, K. A. Nilakanta—Gurzāla Brāhmī Inscription. EI. XXVI, Pt. 3' pp. 123–125, 1 plate. [414]

This inscription is engraved on a grey marble slab set up behind the Travellers' Bungalow, about two furlongs to the north of it, at Gurzāla in the Palnāq taluka of the Guṇṭūr District.

The script is Brāhmī, the language is Prākrit. It records a grant of a field to Bhagavān Halāmpūra sāmin by a certain Noduka-sīri, for securing longevity for the donor.

Shaikh, C. H.—The Original Place of some Indo-Muslim Inscriptions of Ahmadnagar. In No. 1434 pp. 423–427. [415]

A study of the Indo-Muslim inscriptions of Ahmadnagar reveals that some of them are to be found at places which are not their original homes. An attempt is here made to show where these should have properly been.

Shastri, Mathurānath, Ed.—शिला लेखलर्णितिका (Sanskrit text). Crown 16mo. pp. 56. Satyabhāmabai Pandurang, Nirnayā-sagar Press, Bombay, 1941. [416]

Thomas, E. J.—Epithets of an Arhat in the Divyāvadāna. IHQ. XVII, pp. 104-107. [423]

A discussion on the epithets which, he says, are not clear in either the reading or in the meaning.

Vandyar, V. Sundaresa—A Stone Inscription in the Vishnu Shrine at Tiru Inḍalūr. ST. Vol. 38, pp. 574-576 [424]

Describes one of the two epigraphs in the temple of Maruvimiyamaindār at Inḍalūr, identified with Tiruvaṇḍūr to the north of Mayavaram, in the district of Tanjore. The inscription is dated in the 17th year of Kōnērinmai kondān.

Venkataramanayya, N.—Rajahmundry Museum Plates of the Telugu Chōḍa Annadēva. EI. XXVI, Pt. 1, pp. 14–48
2 plates. [425]

These plates were originally discovered at Annavaram near Tuni in the East Godavari district; and they are at present deposited in the Municipal Museum at Rajahmundry. The set consists of four plates numbered 1, 3, 4 and 7; it is assumed therefore that plates numbered 2, 5 and 6 are missing.

The inscription is important as it furnishes valuable information about the history of the Ēruva branch of the Telugu Chōḍa family.

Varma, B. D.—Malik Raihan's Inscription of Visalgarh. BISMQ. XXII, Pt. 1, pp. 31–32. [426]

This is a Persian inscription and refers to a duty of doing sacrifice in a mosque given to the ancestors of Mir Muhammad, Ismail Ibrahim and Hussin, sons of Abdur Rahim.

Vyas, Akshaya Keerty—Bijholi Rock Inscription of Chāhamāna Someśvara: V. S. 1226. EI XXVI, Pt. 2, pp. 84–96; Pt. 3, pp. 97–112, 1 plate. [427]

The inscription is engraved on a flat rock near the shrine of Pārśvanātha near Bijholi. It is a Digambara Jaina record, recording the erection of a temple to Pārśvanātha by a Jain named Lōlāka. Its importance lies in the long list it supplies of the princes of the Imperial Chāhamāna dynasty of Sambhar and Ajmer.

Warriar, A. Govinda—Triprayar Inscription. BRVRI. IX, Pt. 2, pp. 137–138. [428]

Records a meeting of the Ūr (assembly) and Potuvāl of Tirupputraiyan in connection with the endowment for food offering and burning a perpetual lamp, ordered by Cañkaran Kunrappōlan of Murukanāṭṭu.

Yazdani, G.—Some Muslim Inscriptions from the Madras Presidency and Orissa. EIM. 1937–38, pp. 52–59. [429]

Eight inscriptions are edited. (1) From a mosque at Poonamalle. Persian-Telugu text. Records the building of a mosque. It is dated 20th Shawwāl 1063 H. The inscription shows Mir Jamla, the well-known Qutb Shāhī General as the Governor of the Carnatic, while the name of another official, Rustum, son of Dhu 'I-Fiqār is mentioned who was apparently in charge of a district, thus being subordinate to Mir. Jamla. The Telugu text which is translated by the Superintendent of Epigraphy, Southern Circle, records the building of the mosque by Sujāzīta Āsāri Rustum—b—Bēgu. (2) From a mosque at Cuddapah. Arabic—Persian text. Records the breaking of idols and the building of a mosque in the year 1103 H. The name of Aurangzeb is mentioned. (3) Arabic—Persian text. The Arabic text contains the Kalima. Persian text records the construction of a mosque by 'Abdu'n—Nabi in 1135 H. (4) From over the entrance of Hadrat Ahmad Shāh's tomb at Cuddapah. Persian text, dated 1159 H. Records that the tomb was built through the efforts of Sābū Bibi, the daughter of 'Abdu'n—Nabi. (5—6) From near a dargāh at Nizampatnam. Dated 1018 H and 1026 H. Begin with religious text in Arabic and end with Persian verses referring to the transitoriness of the world. (7—8) From the collection of Mr. B. N. Roy of Puri. (a) Dated 1147 H. Originally set up over the entrance of an Imām Bāra. Persian verse records the building of the gate. (b) Persian verse recording the building of a mosque by one Fātīma Begam in 1188 H.

Yazdani, G.—Five Inscriptions from the Provincial Museum Lucknow. EIM. 1937-38, pp. 38-41. [430]

(1) Persian text, Dedicatory to Alān—Dīn. (2) Persian text, Records the building of a mosque. (3) Arabic text, of the reign of Akbar, Dated 985 H. indistinct. (4) Persian text carved on a brick. Only two words are legible. (5) Persian text, Records the building of a gate in the year 1872 H.

— Inscription of Ghīyāthū'd-Dīn Tughluq from Asrawa Khurd near Allahabad. EIM. 1937-38, pp. 6-7. [431]

Inscribed on a tablet in Arabic. Mentions the names of Ghīyāthū'd-Dīn Tughluq and of the court noble, Ikhtiyārū'd-Dīn.

— Five Inscriptions from Bidar District. EIM. 1937-38 pp. 1-4, 2 plates. [432]

(1) Carved on the masonry of a sluice of the Kamthāna tank, in Marathi. Mentions the name of Ā'zam Maṇṣūr Khān as the builder of the embankment.

(2) Carved on a tablet which was found in clearing the debris from one of the old gateways of the Bedar Fort. Mentions the name of 'Ali Barid, and is dated Shahūr S.m 1001 which corresponds to 1018 H. Marathi text.

(3) and (4) From a well at Āshtūr, built by a royal officer named Jagapat Rāo during the reign of Mirza Wali Amir Barid in 1018 H. One is in Persian and the other in Marathi.

(5) From a mosque at Gōrnalli, a village some three miles from Bidar. In Persian. Mentions the name of Amir Barid Shāh as the reigning king in 1019 H. It mentions the building of a mosque, — Inscription of Sūltān Balban from Bayana, Bharatpur State. EIM. 1237-38, pp. 5-6. [433]

Records the re-digging of a well during the reign of Ghīyāthū'd-Dīn Balban and the governorship of Nuṣrat Khān, the fief-holder of Bayana.

Eras

Mookerjee, Dharendra Nath—The Gupta Era, JIH. XX, Pt. 1, pp. 71-84. [434]

Puts forth that astronomical verifications in support of the fact that the era introduced by the Gupta Vikramādityas is identical with the well known Vikrama era.

— The Hārāhā Inscription and the Gupta Era. NIA. III, pp. 437-440. [435]

A reply to Mr. Jagannath's criticism of writer's article on the subject in IC (1938).

Puri, Baij Nath—Some Dates of the Kuśāṇa Kharoṣṭhī Records and their Bearing on the Initial Year of the Kuśāṇa Era. IC. VII, pp. 490-492. [436]

Points out that the astronomical data are insufficient to determine the Kuśāṇa era.

Sankar, K. G.—The Epoch of the Gupta Era. NIA. III, pp. 419-428. [437]

Discusses how the epoch of 320 A. D. came to be accepted. Studies the legends on Gupta coins; examines the Chinese sources, etc., and shows that c. 273 A.D. and not 320 A.D. as generally believed is the true starting point of the Gupta Era, as it fits in well with the astronomical data given in the majority of the Gupta and Maitraka inscriptions.

— New Light on the Sangham Age. In No. 1434 pp. 380-387. [438]

Discusses the earliest extant Tamil works the Ettuttokai, Pattuppāṭṭu and Patinenkkil-Kaṇakku of the Sangham age, the age of which has not yet been settled. Throws new light on the subject and concludes that the Sangham age may be reasonably assigned to the second and third centuries A.D.

Sengupta, Prabodh Chandra—Kaṇiṣka's Era. IC. VII. pp. 457-462. [439]

The eras used in the Kharoṣṭhī inscriptions are still a matter for controversy. Dr. Sten Konow has collected together 36 instances of dates from these inscriptions and has divided them into two groups, A and B. The dates used in group A belong to an earlier era, while those in group B use the era or the Regnal year of Kaṇiṣka. The writer here ascertains the era used in this second group B.

Genealogy and Chronology

Gode, P. K.—Date of Dhaneśvara's Commentary on Bāṇa's Caṇḍīśataka A. D. 1309 (Śaka 1231) and Aufrecht's Mistaken Identity of this Author with his name-sake, the Author of a Commentary on the Anargharaghava. PO. VI, pp. 102-108. [440]

Examines Aufrecht's reference to a MS. of the Commentary on the Caṇḍī Śataka of Bāṇabhaṭṭa. Concludes that Aufrecht's entry regarding the identity of Dhaneśvaras is not borne out by evidence gathered by himself from the available MSS. of their works.

— Date of the Sūktiratnāvalī of Vaidyanātha Tatsat— Before A. D. 1698. BV. II, Pt. 2, pp. 192-195. [441]

Discusses the MS. of Sūktiratnāvalī, and reconstructs the genealogy of its author, Vaidyanātha Tatsat.

— Kṛṣṇa Kavi, the Author of Isvaravilasa Kavya: His Works and Descendants, Between A. D. 1669 and 1760. BISMQ. XXII, Pt. 1, pp. 15-23. [442]

A study of the genealogy of the Kṛṣṇakavi.

— Lolimbarāja and his Works. IC. VII, pp. 327-333; 447-456. [443]

A tentative study of Lolimbarāja and his works. Puts together chronological data that can be gathered from the Harivilasakavya and other available works of Lolimbarāja.

— Date of the Viṣṇubhaktikalpalatā of Pursuṣottama: Before A. D. 1495. BnV. V, Pt. 1. [444]

Records data to determine some definite limits to the date of Puruṣottama.

— Varadarāja, a Pupil of Bhaṭṭojī Dīkṣita and his Works: Between A. D. 1600 and 1650. In No. 1434 pp. 188-199. [445]

Records some data regarding the works of Varadarāja with the intention of clarifying to some extent at least the chronology of the author left in a nebulous state by previous schools in the field.

Jain, Khushal Chandra Vatsalya: Date of the Kalacuri Kokkale I. IHQ. XVII, pp. 117-120. [446]

Shows that Kokkala I who was a contemporary of the Rāṣṭrakūṭa Kṛṣṇa II (878-912 A. D.) and the Pratihāra Bhoja I (836-885), ruled between c. 840 and 885 A. D.

Kolte, V. B.—A Note on the Date of Hemādri's Death. NUJ. Pt. 7, pp. 96-98. [447]

Shows from the evidence of Lilā-caritra that Hemādri was put to death by Rāmdeorāo Yādava and that this occurred after the murder of Chakradhara. The date of Chakradhara's murder is 1198 Śaka, (A. D. 1276), which shows that Hemādri's murder took place sometime after 1276 A.D.

Radhakrishnan, E. P.—The Date of Vimuktātmāna. NIA. IV, Pt. 7, pp. 239-242. [448]

Concludes that Vimuktātmāna flourished somewhere about 850 A. D. "Though the figure may not be quite correct", says the writer, "his chronological position between Sureśvara and Śārvajñātmāna stands fairly established".

— Two Amṛtānandas: Both Vedantins. In No. 1434, pp. 345-350. [449]

Discusses the identity and probable date of Amṛtānandas, the author of Brāhma-prakāśikā, and points out that there were two Amṛtānandas, one the writer of tantric work and the other a vedantin.

Raghavacarya, E. V. Vira—Ancestry and Date of the Samskrit Dramatist Vātsya Vardācārya (1325-1400 A. D.) JSVOI. II, Pt. 1, pp. 85-91 [450]

Gives chronology and genealogy of Ghaṭikāśata Varadācārya or Vātsya Varadācārya, popularly known as Ammāl, who was one of the reputed Sanskrit savants and poets of South India.

Sarma, M. Sonasekhara—The Chronology of the Sultāns of Gulbarga JBORS. XXVII, pp. 455-472. [451]

The chronology of the Bahamani Sultāns of Gulbarga has not yet been properly studied and satisfactorily worked out. Of the fourteen kings of the Bahamani dynasty the first eight ruled from Gulbarga and the remaining from Bidar. An attempt is here made to settle the chronology of the Sultāns who ruled at Gulbarga.

Upādhyaya, B. S.—The Date of Kālidāsa. JUPHS. XIV, Gulbarga. Pt. 2, pp. 23-35. [452]

Examines briefly a few of the theories put forward by scholars, and attempts to bring the date closer and thus to indicate the utmost narrow range wherein the poet may have flourished. Assigns the date of his birth to about A. D. 375, and of his death about A. D. 445.

Geography and Travels

Aiyangar S. Krishnaswami—Seran Vanji: Vanji, The Capital of the Cheras. pp. 131. Cochin Government, Ernakulam, 1940. [453]

This book is the result of a controversy about the location of the capital city, Vanci, of the Chera kingdom. The Chera kingdom and its capital were usually located on the eastern coast, in the territory now known as Cochin. But recently some Tamil scholars have identified the capital with Karur in Trichinopoly district. See ABIHL. III, Nos. 600, 601, 617, 618, 619 and 637. The author reviews the situation of the available evidence and gives a verdict in favour of the older view.

Rates, Robert H.—Five Miles High. $8\frac{1}{2}'' \times 5\frac{1}{2}''$, pp. 320. Illus. and sketch maps. Robert Hale, London, 1940. [454]

A narrative of the American expedition to K2, the highest summit in the Karakoram range.

Chaghatai, M. A.—Poona in the Muslim Period. BDURI, II, pts. 3-4, pp. 406-410. [455]

Describes why and how Musalmans penetrated into Poona.

Chapekar, N. G.—Himalayant. (Marathi text). Demy 8vo. pp. 120. L. N. Chapekar, Poona, 1941. [456]

An account of travel in Nepal, Tehri, Garhwal etc., including information about local languages, usages, etc.

Choksi S. B.—Bharat Dharsa. (Gujarati text). Crown 16mo. pp. 164. Pub.: Author, Anil Printery, Ahmedabad, 1941. [457]

Contains descriptive account of places of interest in Upper India.

Dikshit, S. K.—Uddehika and Bazana. IC. VII, pp. 361-363. [458]

A short note to identify Uddehika and Bazāna. Uddehika is a place mentioned on a coin found in the excavation at Rairh, and which Al-Birūni places near Bazāna. Suggests that Uddehika was near Rairh and was the capital of the Uddehika country. He identifies it with Bari Udāi (Gangapur Tahsil, Jaipur State).

Gokhale, S. B.—Lonavla and its Surroundings. Booklet No. 1. Demy 8vo. pp. 17. Rajaguru Press, Poona, 1941. [459]

Description of Novala and its surroundings.

Ghoshal, U. N.—[Dvipamaya Bhārata] by Suniti Kumar Chatterji, Calcutta, 1940. See ABIHI. III, No. 606. [460]

"Not only does it describe lands and peoples till then almost unknown to Bengali-speaking readers, but it deals with history, topography, art, literature and, last but not least, the colourful life of the people..... The extraordinary range of his interest in men and things, his keen powers of observation and narration, his simple fascinating style, his sage reflections interspersed with humourous anecdotes, make his work a model of what a book of travel should be like".—JGIS. VIII. Pt. 2, pp. 117-120.

Gracias, Amancio—Alemais na India nos Séculos XI a XVIII. (Portuguese text). BIVG. No. 50, pp. 1-95. [461]

An account of the German travellers and adventurers in India during eleventh to eighteenth centuries.

Hinkson, Pamela—Indian Harvest. $8\frac{1}{2}'' \times 5\frac{1}{2}''$, pp. 320, illus. Collins, London, 1941. [462]

Varied observations and human experience into her seven months than many less intelligent travellers into as many years. Though her wanderings were confined to North and North-West India and her human contacts limited by ignorance of any native language, she acquired considerable understanding of linguistic, religious, social, racial, and economic problems, and vigorously conveys in her pleasant wholesome book some idea of their complexity to the uninformed readers.

Iyer, M. Subramania—Presidential Address of the 11th Geographical Conference (Held at the Rishi Valley, Chittoor District). IGJ. XVI, pp. 219-256. [463]

The address is divided into seven sections: Establishment of Modern Geography in the West and Madras: Development and Diffusion of Modern Geography in the West and Madras: The Nature and Scope of Geography; Modern Geography; Human Geography; Things Indian; and Purpose and Philosophy of Geography.

Jagavira, Pandiyan—Kamban Kalai Nilai: Pulavar Ulaham. (Tamil text), pp. 40, S. Varadarajulu Nayudu, Madras, 1941. [464]

A short thesis dealing with the greatness of Kambar.

Jain, Babu Kantaprasad—Shravanabelgola ke Shila lekhon men Bhangolik nam. (Hindi text). JSB. VII, Pt. 1, pp. 10-16; Pt. 2, pp. 81-84. [465]

Geographical names in the inscriptions at Shrāvaṇabēḷgoḷa. An attempt to identify the names.

Johnson, E. H.—Two Notes on Ptolemy's Geography of India. JRAS. Pt. 3. 1941. pp. 208-222. [466]

In the first note, the writer identifies Dounga of Periplus with Dongri in Salsette, and points out the parallel between the history of Dounga in the Greek sources and Dhenukākaṇa of the Kanheri Cave inscription.

In the second note, the writer attempts to identify certain mountains of the Periplus, and shows the parallel between Ptolemy's list of mountains of India and those of the Mahābhārata and the Purāṇas.

Khore, G. H.—A Note on the Daulatabad Plates. IC. VIII, pp. 113-114. [467]

The plates are of the Western Cālukya King Jayasimha II Jagadekamalla of Kalyāṇa, dated S. 938 and published as Hyderabad, Archæological Series No. 2. The author tries to identify the places mentioned in the plates.

Mirashi, V. V.—A Search for the Localities mentioned in the Poona plates of Prabhavati Gupta. (Marathi text). BISMQ. XXII, Pt. 1 pp. 1-3. [468]

A few place-names occurring in the plates are identified. All the places lie in the Hinganaghat tahsil of the Wardha district.

Nadvi, Syed Sulaiman—Arab Navigation. IsC. XV, pp. 435-448. [469]

Nainar, S. Muhammad Husayn—Arab Maritime Enterprise. AOR. V, Pt. 1, 7 pages. [470]

Points out that with the advent of Islam came a great impetus to travel, commerce and adventure which persisted until the 14th century when the Arabs receded into the background and lost their trade supremacy. Many books relating to kingdoms, roads by sea and land, the fauna and flora of various countries, important geographical literature was produced.

— Tuhfat-Al-Mujahidin. An Historical Work in the Arabic Language. AOR. VI, Pt. 1, 112 pages. [471]

Although the work is a brief narrative, it is remarkable for the information contained in it, and it constitutes an important addition to the knowledge of the geography of Southern India and the beginning of the Portuguese history in India. It gives a clear picture of the activities of the Portuguese in Malabar.

This work was translated into English by Lieut. M. J. Rowlandson so early as 1833.

Pillai, R. P. Sethu—Place-names suffixes in Tamil. AOR. V, Pt. 1, 8 pages; Pt. 2, 34 pages. [472]

Part 1 gives suffixes of the place-names of the Arable Region, and Pt. 2 gives suffixes of place-names denoting habitations, religious and charitable foundations, fortifications, communications, industry and commerce, villages and towns, territorial divisions, arid regions, and littoral regions.

Pithawalla, M. B.—Geography and Culture. IGJ. XVI, pp. 376-394, 1 sketch map. [473]

Points out the importance of Geography as an aid to the unification of India's culture, taking the example of the Indus Valley for the purpose.

— An Appeal to the Universities of India for considering the position of Geography as a Science. IGJ. XVI, pp. 33-41. [474]

Raghavan V.—Notes on some Ancient South Indian Political Geographical Names. AOR. V, Pt. 2, 6 pages. [475]

Following suggestions have been made in the notes:—

(1) Prebarā is the word that occurs in the Tālaguṇḍa inscription and neither Premarā nor Prebarā as read by some scholars. It is the name of a river near Aparānta.

(2) The Aśmakavayśa named in Bhāmaha's Kāvyālāṅkāra was a poem in the Vaidarbha style dealing with a line of kings of the Aśmaka territory that lay contiguous to the Vidarbhas.

(3) The word Pallava signifies the country ruled by the Pallava sovereigns with their capital at Kāñci. The expression Trairājyalallava occurring in several inscriptions means the Pallava kingdom comprising three units.

(4) Dramila originally meant the Tamil-speaking country as a whole, used on in its restricted application to the Pallava territory alone.

(5) Śibi was another name for the Cōla country.

Silabhadra—Fa-Hien's Indian Travel. M-B. Vol. 49, Pt. 11, pp. 398-405; Pt. 12, pp. 436-448. [476]

Follows the path of the traveller.

Sinha, Jogendra Nath—Puri : The Sacred City. HR. LXXIII, pp. 364-368. [477]

Sircar, Dines Chandra—A Reference to the Seafaring People of Gauda. HR. LXXIII, pp. 617-619. [478]

The maritime activities of the people of ancient Gauda is studied from epigraphic evidence.

Sircar, Dines Chandra—The Vählikas of the Meharauli Inscription. Pillar In No. 1434, pp. 469–471. [479]

An attempt to locate the Vählika country. He says the Vählikas were originally a people living on the Beas. The Vählika was beyond the Kurukṣetra and therefore was outside the boundary of the Brahmāvartta, its analogical connection with the word bahis may have been another cause of the expansion of its geographical sense.

Srinivasachari, C. S.—Notes on Schorer's Account of the Coromandel Coast. IHQ. XVII, pp. 236–240. [480]

Gives supplementary notes on Prof. Brij Narain's translation in IHQ. XVI, pp. 827–838. See ABIHI. III, No. 631.

Togan, A. Zeki Validi—Birūnī's Picture of the World. (Arabic text). Memoir of the Archaeological Survey of India, No. 55. $12\frac{1}{2}'' \times 10''$ pp. ix + 152 + 8. Archaeological Survey of India, Delhi, 1941 [481]

The 9th and 10th chapters of the fifth treatise of Birūnī's al-Qānūn al-Mas'ūdī, which contains the description of the world and the tables of latitude and longitude.

Ward, F. Kingdon—Through Assam to Monyul. GM. XII, pp. 168–181, 11 illus. and 2 sketch maps. [482]

Mr. Kingdom Ward is said to have spent twenty-five years exploring and plant-collecting in Tibet, the neighbouring mountains of Western China, Assam and Upper Burma. His most successful botanical expedition was to the great gorge of the Tsangpo, in 1924, and in 1935 he discovered the snowy range to the north of it. Here, he describes his expedition to Monyul from Assam.

Heraldry, Imagery and Symbolism

Deva, Krishna—Coin Devices on Rajghat Seals. JNSI. III, Pt. 2, pp. 73–77, 1 plate. [483]

Deals with a group of seals and tokens of burnt or unburnt clay, which bear some of the familiar devices and symbols occurring on the coins.

Mirashi, V. V.—Some Seal-Stamps from the Central Provinces. JNSI. III, Pt. 2, pp. 99–102. [484]

Describes and discusses five small seal-stamps discovered at various places in Central Provinces.

Hinduism and Hindu Philosophy

Adyar Library—Śrimad-Bhagvad-Gītārtha-Prakāśikā of Śrī Upaniṣad-brahma-yogin, with the Text. Edited by the Pandits of the Adyar Library. pp. xxxi + 457. Adyar Library, Adyar, (Madras), 1941. [485]

“The justification for the new edition of the Gītā in the presence of so many existing one lies in the hitherto unpublished gloss of Brahman-yogin, and the special merit of the gloss consists in the lucid presentation of the teachings as explained by the great Śankara whose commentary on the Gītā is comparatively abstruse”—JBORS. XXVII, pp. 433—434.

“Concluding volume of the attractive series of Upanisads published by the Adyar Library with the commentary of Upaniṣad-Brahma-Yogin. The reason for including the Bhagavadgītā in the series is that it is also regarded as an Upaniṣad. The present volume unlike its predecessors in the series has no indices and no variants are recorded. In fact no reference is made to the manuscript material utilised for the edition. No attempt is made to bring out the special features of the commentary, if any. Instead, we have a long introduction by Prof. C Cunhan Raja, which principally discusses the problem of the extent and nature of text of the Gītā.—Cintaharan Chakravarti, IHQ. XVIII, p. 83

Bhattacharya, Benoytosh, Ed.—Śaktisaṅgama Tāntra, Vol. II (Tārākhaṇḍa). Gaekwad's Oriental Series No, 91. Critically edited with Preface. pp. 12 + 271. Oriental Institute, Baroda, 1941. [497]

Based on four MSS. variants from which have been collected and recorded in the footnotes. Deals with the details of Vamacara in connection with the worship of different deities.

Vol. I (Kālikhaṇḍa) was published in 1932 as G. O. Series No. 61.

"The second volume of the Śaktisaṅgama Tāntra comprising the Tārākhaṇḍa is now presented to the Sanskrit-knowing public and all lovers of Indian mysticism. The text in this volume has been collated with four manuscripts obtained from the libraries of the Royal Asiatic Society of Calcutta, the Universities of Dacca and Bombay, and the Oriental Institute of Baroda. The Nepal manuscript which was used in the previous volume could not be utilised in this since the Tārākhaṇḍa was found wanting in the same. The void thus created by the Nepal manuscript was filled by the lucky find of the Bombay University manuscript The Śaktisaṅgama Tāntra, as the title indicates, is the 'Tāntra of Śakti Communion' and is concerned primarily with a purely psychic subject, and not connected with any material object whatsoever. It is connected solely with what is technically called the Śaṭcakrabheda or the 'penetration of the six nerve centres' as required in Yoga practices. It does neither deal with the Kāmaśāstra nor gives any scientific directions on the enjoyment of worldly objects. The Śaktisaṅgama Tāntra has to be taken and understood in that psychic spirit, and not from the purely material standpoint."—Preface.

Datta, B.N.—Brāhmanical Counter-Revolution. JBORS. XXVII, pp. 263-278. [499]

"It has been a matter of historical dispute whether the rise of Pushyamitra was due to Brāhmanical reaction. There cannot be any doubt that Brāhmanical reaction to the Sudra Buddhist regime came to a head under the Śuṅga General when the Hellenistic King of Balkh, Menander, invaded and advanced as far as Saket (modern Oudh). At that psychological moment, the blow fell on the head of the descendant of Āśoka who true to the injunction of his ancestor would conquer enemy by love. The Brāhmanical reaction under the leadership of the Śuṅga General has been called as orthodox counter-revolution by Jayaswal. The embodiment of this counter-revolution is the Manava-dharma-sastra. The writer examines Manu Smṛti with reference to the status of the Sudra.

Traces a similarity not only in the use of the term sakti by the different schools of religious and philosophic thought, but he goes further to say that the use of this common term implied the acceptance of a common concept, too.

Chakravarti, Rashmohan, Ed.—Sarvollasatantra of Sarvanandanatha. With a Foreword by Mahamahopadhyaya Gopinath Kaviraj, and an Introduction by Prof. Dinesh Chandra Bhattacharya. (Sanskrit text) $8\frac{1}{4}'' \times 4\frac{3}{4}''$, pp. 256. Rammala Library, Comilla (Bengal), 1941. [503]

Critical edition of a little-known Tāntric compilation, meagrely described in modern works and seldom referred to in older digests. It is attributed to Sarvananda (middle of 15th century A. D.). The edition is based on the collation of eight manuscripts collected from different parts of Eastern Bengal.

Chettiar, M. Kadiresan—Urainadai k-kovai, Part I, (Tamil text), pp. 223. Pub.: Author, Mahibalambatti, 1941. [504]

A collection of five lectures dealing with Saiva Siddhanta.

Chintamani, T. R. Ed.—Srimadbhagavadgita with Sarvabhadra of Rajanaka Ramakanta. (Sanskrit text). With Foreword and Introduction in English and Index of Ardas and Citations. Madras University Sanskrit Series No. 14. $9\frac{1}{2}'' \times 6''$, pp. 524, Madras University, Madras, 1941. [505]

“A critical edition of Rāmakantha’s commentary based on five manuscripts, four of which belong to the Bhandarkar Oriental Research Institute of Poona and one to the India Office Library of London. Three of the manuscripts are written in Nāgari and two in Sarada indicating that the latter were copied in Kashmir where the author of the commentary lived and wrote. A long and learned introduction draws attention to the characteristic features of the philosophical views of the commentator as revealed in the commentary. It also points out the textual differences from the Vulgate noticed in the so-called Kashmirian recension of the Gitā after comparing the text adopted by different commentators like Rāmakantha, Abhinavagupta and Bhāskara, the work of the last of whom still exists in the form of a manuscript in the possession of the learned editor..... Chronologically this appears to be the third of the hitherto-known commentaries on the Gitā written by a Kashmirian."—Cintaharan Chakravarti, IHQ. XVIII, pp. 82-83.

Gajendragadkar, K. B.—Some Thoughts on the Interpretation of Smṛti Texts. In No. 1434, pp. 182-187. [508]

Illustrates by giving some concrete instances the attitude of the later Nibandhakāras and commentators who do not give the true and correct interpretation of the original works on which they are commenting but in their exposition they put their own additional matter relying upon the passages in the other Smṛtis just to make a show that the views of the Smṛtis are commenting upon are in consonance with the other ancient Smṛtis and thus they try to prove that there is a sort of Samanvaya between the various Smṛtis.

Ghosh, Batakrishna—[Studies in the Tantras], Part I, by Praboth Chandra Bagchi, Calcutta, 1939. See ABIHI. II, No. 498. [508]

"The author has shown that the four Tantrik texts mentioned in the Inscription of 802 A. D. of the reign of Jayavarman II are partly preserved in old MSS. in the Nepal Darbar Library, and the states in his 'Further Notes' that it is wrong to suppose that the Mahayana Buddhism of Kambuja in the 8th-9th century was very much antagonistic to Tāntrik Śaivism. In the short note on Sandhābhāṣā the author has given a number of words of the cryptic language..... In the note on the Sādhanamālā some of the views of Dr. Benoytosh Bhattacharyya have been criticised, and Tibetan influence on Tāntra has been traced in the study 'On Foreign Element in the Tāntra'."—IC. VII, p. 379.

Gokhale, L. R.—Shrimadhbhagawadgita-Pravesh. Adhyaya Navava, (Marathi-Sanskrit text), Demy 8vo, pp. 272. Pub. : Author, Anand Press, Poona, 1941. [509]

A Marathi explanatory commentary on the ninth chapter of the Gitā.

Kak, R. and Shastri, H., Eds.—Devīrahasya with Pariśiṣṭas. pp. 23 + 574, Srinagar, 1941. [510]

Consists of the Tantric works Devīrahasya and Uddhārakosa printed in the Devanāgarī script. The former work Devīrahasya (The sacred worship of the Devi Tripurā) is written in the form of dialogue between Bhairava and Devi and is traditionally supposed to form part of the bigger compilation called Rudrayāmala. The Uddhārakosa, though written in the form of a dialogue between Dakṣināmurthi and his disciple, is a collection of quotations from no less than 47 Tāntric works.

A study of the Prāṇavopaniṣad. Points out that Prāṇava enjoys an unparalleled ubiquity in the successive stages or āśramas of the religious and spiritual life of the Hindus.

Mahadevan, T. M. P.—The Two-Fold Path in the Gitā. PQ. XVI, pp. 314-329. [516]

An attempt to present Śaṅkara's point of view. Brāhmaṇ-intuition is not Brahman, and so far forth it falls within the ambit of avidyā. The path of Jñāna too starts from avidyā; and what helps in the transcendence is itself avidyā.

— Is the Gitā a Gospel of War? JMU. XIII, pp. 105-113. [517]

The pacifist who believes in the teaching of the Gitā has to meet the charge which is often levelled against the Song of Kṛṣṇa, that it is an exhortation to violence, a gospel of war. The charge is neither new nor flippant. The writer first states the case for regarding the Gitā as a gospel of war, then examines the possible answers to the charge, and lastly makes an attempt to interpret the Gitā-teaching consistently with the doctrine of ahūṁsā.

Medhi, K. R.—The Brajāvalī Literature of Assam. JARS. VIII, Pt. 4, pp. 103-112. [518]

Brajāvalī is the sacred language of the Kṛṣṇa cult or Bhāgavata religion in Northern and Eastern India between fourteenth and sixteenth centuries A. D. As Sanskrit is the vehicle of the Brahmana, Pali of the Buddhist and Prākrit of the Jain, so is Brajāvalī of the Bhakti cult.

Mees, Gualtherus H.—Dharma and Society. pp. xvi + 206, N. V. Servire, The Hague, and Luzac & Co. London, 1940 (?) [519]

"Dr. Mees has sought to confine Dharma to spiritual interpretation; but the idea is broad-based in the people's heart. Irrespective of scriptural sanction, the word finds a sympathetic response in the man in the street in India, however 'unlettered' or 'unemployed' the man may be. At least in Bengal, where the cult of Dharma-Rāja has long been in vogue in the western parts, the associations of the word are difficult to understand only by reference to the ancient books of knowledge. This Dharma-Rāja is different from the personified form of Dharma of the same name referred to by the learned author." Priyaranjan Sen, CR. LXXVIII p. 73.

Sacharow, Boris—Anandalahari. With Translation and Commentary by Sri Swami Sivananda, Ananda Kutir, Rikhikesh. Edited with a Preface and English translation. The Sivananda Publication League, Calcutta, 1941 (?) [535]

Contains 41 verses of the well-known hymn of the Great Mother by Sankaracarya, generally passing under the name Anandalahari or Saundaryalahari, strictly titles of the two parts into which the hymn is supposed to have been divided. The translation does not always strictly follow the text. The Roman translation which follows the Devanagari text of every verse is far from satisfactory. The absence of diacritical marks mars its usefulness. Visarga is generally left out and the dental mute non-aspirated in Sanskrit is systematically represented as an aspirate.

Sakhare, M. R. Ed.—Liṅgādharana-Candrika by Nandikēśvara. (Sanskrit text). Edited with English Introduction and Notes. $8\frac{1}{2}'' \times 5\frac{1}{2}''$, pp. 76 + 104 + 250. Pub.: Author, Dhundiraja and Mahavir Press, Belgaum, 1941. [536]

English translation, notes and appendices, of the first part of a late Sanskrit work of the Liṅgāyats, based on two manuscripts and a little-known printed edition. The work seeks to show that the practice of carrying the Liṅga as observed by the Liṅgāyats is sanctioned by Brāhmaṇical texts occurring in the Vedas, Agamas, Purāṇas and Smṛtis. Variants from the manuscripts as well as the printed edition are recorded. The long introduction traces the origin and development of Śaivism and refers to the characteristic features of the Liṅgāyat school and its literature in Kanarese as well as in Sanskrit. The appendices quote extracts from a number of other works elucidating different aspects of the philosophy of the school.

Sanyal, Nisi Kanta—The Erotic Principles and Unalloyed Devotion. The Gaudiya Mutt, Calcutta, 1941. [537]

Attempt to elucidate and clear off the dubious knots that easily puzzle all mortal men to accept the accounts of the transcendental Hero busy with his own amourous achievements. This is an aspect of Kṛṣṇa-worship which has given infinite inspiration to the devotee but which has also afforded much scope for attack on Hinduism.

Sarma, D. S.—[Krishna and His Song.], Bombay, 1940. See ABIHI. III, No. 713. [538]

"An introduction to Bhagavad-Gitā, first published as a series of articles in the Aryan Path. The first chapter considers the historical problem concerning Krishna and the Gitā. The following chapters deal with various aspects of the Gitā's teaching, mostly in the light of modern ethical problems. The study is a good one, simple and quite readable." NR. XIII, p. 264.

Sastri, Dharmendra Brahmachari—The Jñāna-Svarodaya of Dariyā Sāheb. JBORS. XXVII, pp. 71-78. [539]

Jñāna-Svarodaya is one of the most important treatises of the religious order founded by Dariyā Sāheb who flourished in Dharkandhā (Shahābad, Bihar) from the latter part of the 17th century to the latter part of the 18th century A. D. The writer deals briefly with the subject-matter of the work.

Silva, C. L. A. de—Four-Fold Kamma. M-B. Vol. 49, Pt. 2, pp 47-50; Pt. 4, pp. 122-126; Pt. 10, pp. 382-386 (to be continued). [545]

Singh, Jaideva—Rebirth: A Rational Explanation. AP. XII, pp. 210-215. [546]

Examines the doctrine of reincarnation from the stand-point of its inherent reasonableness, and shows its appeal to the intuition of many a philosopher and many a poet of the West.

Subedar, Manu, Tr.—Gītā. Explained by Jñaneśvara Mahārāja. Translated into English. 2nd edn. pp. 336. Pub.: Translator, Pali Hill, Bandra, Bombay, 1941. [547]

The Translator has not only rendered a great service by bringing out this translation but he has put in valuable material in the introduction for those who are unfamiliar with the philosophy of Gītā. In his Introduction to the 2nd edition he has attempted to persuade cynics and materialists who pose and inquire into the why and whither of things that happen around them.

Sundararaman, V. R.—Sanatana Dharma of the Hindu View of Life. Theosophical Publishing House, Adyar (Madras), 1940. [548]

The first part of the book deals with the basic Hindu Religious ideas, the second part with the Religious customs and rites of the Hindus and the third part with their Ethical teachings.

Eighteenth century Tantric treatise dealing with the details of the Tantra form of worship and incidentally with the main principles of the different systems of Brahmanic philosophy as well as of metrics rhetoric, music and erotics.

Varadachari, K. C.—The Doctrine of Substitution in Religion and Mysticism. JSVOI. II. Pt. 1, pp. 9–16. [551]

Shows that the principle of substitution is of enormous value in the interpretation of the transferences of symbolism, mythologies, actions of all kinds, in religious and mystic life. The fact that the early Sri Vaishnavas displayed enthusiastic interest in the value of the hymns as instruction shows that they availed themselves of the transmuting power of substitution and as the dynamic force of canalizing of the instincts of mysticism towards liberation, and of religion towards supreme Reality-dependence.

Visvanathan, K. Ed.—Gayatrirahasya of Appayadiksita, (Sanskrit text). Bharati Bros., Bombay. 1941. [552]

Treatise on the philosophical interpretation of the gayatri mantra which is to be daily muttered by every Brahmin. The mantra, it is asserted, refers to the Absolute Brahman. The treatise consists of 24 stanzas with the author's own commentary thereon.

Iconography and Sculpture

Banerjea, Jitendranath—The Development of Hindu Iconography. pp. xvi + 459, 10 plates. University of Calcutta, Calcutta, 1941. [553]

“ Practically deals with two different questions, subject matter and artistic technique, which modern analysis tends to separate, but which, in the old texts, have for practical purposes been treated together. The writer is quite aware of this difference, for in his methodological introduction, he never mixes up iconography with art proper as it had for sometime been the habit in India, but regards it mainly as an important source for our knowledge of culture, religious, literary, etc., history. In later chapters, on the other hand, he occupies himself with the problems of iconographic terminology and iconometry, including the edition, re-edition and translation of some texts, the Pratimamana-lakshanam and the 57th chapter of the Brihatsamhita. The most important chapters, however, are those dealing with the Antiquity of Image Worship in India, the Origin and Development of Image

Worship, Brahmanical Divinities and their Emblems on Early Indian Coins, Deities and their Emblems on Early Indian Seals and the Factors contributing to the Development of Iconoplasic Art in India.

In a very cautious discussion of all evidence and previous opinions and theories, the author traces image worship, as a social under-current, back to Vedic and pre-Vedic times. Its rise, however, sets in only with the growing influence of Yaksha, Dēvi, Śiva and Krishna Vasudēva worship and with the development of Bhakti in the centuries immediately preceding and following the very beginning of the Christian era".—H. Goetz, NR. XVI, p. 436.

Banerji-Sastri, A.—A Bronze Buddha from Mandalay in Patna Museum. JBORS, XXVII, pp. 441-445. 1 plate. [554]

The Bronze Buddha described was acquired for the Patna Museum in October 1941 from Miss A. Cloete of Ranchi. It is said to have come into the possession of the lady's father just after the annexation of Burma by the English, when the booty from the Mandalay palace, which was not kept by Government to be sent to Queen Victoria, was sold by auction in Calcutta. The image is inscribed with two Burmese inscriptions. The writer does not agree with the reading of the Superintendent, Archaeological Survey, Burma. Discusses the inscriptions and gives his own views. One of the inscriptions is dated on the 1st waning of the month of Vaiśākha in the year of the Burmese Era 1151 (1787 A. D.).

Chatterji, Suniti Kumar—[The Jaina Iconography] (Vol. II of Indian Images), by B. C. Bhattacharya, Lahore, 1939. See ABIHI. II, No. 584. [555]

"It is a pioneer work filling a long-felt want, and as a pioneer work there may be mistakes particularly of omission. Mr. Bhattacharyya has had to draw upon the texts, printed and in MSS., and to make personal investigations into the images, comparing them with the textsHe has already proved his capacity by his previous books and papers on the subject of Indian iconography, CR, LXXVIII, pp. 315-318.

Chaudhury, Premadhar—A Miniature Bronze Image. JARS. VIII, Pt. 1, pp. 13-16. [556]

Does not agree with the Report of the Kāmarūpa Anusandhan Samiti that the image represents Yasodā and Śrī Krishna. Identifies the image as Manasā and Āstika.

— The Hindu Deities and their Iconographical Representations. JARS. VIII, Pt. 3, pp. 77-85. [557]

Deals with the Vedic Deities, Conception of the Vedic Deities, Image Worship, Image of the time of Pāṇini and Patañjali, Different kinds of evidences with regard to the human appearance of the deities down to the 1st century A. D., and Four-armed Figures.

Gangoly, O. C.—Of Æsthetics Indian and Christian Scholastic Theories: Some Parallelisms. AP. XII, pp. 296-300. [558]

Discusses the similarity between Indian and Christian rules of image-making which explains only by an identity of æsthetic intention. Finds that both the Indian and Christian icon-maker are on the identical road which can lead upright souls to God and "make invisible things clear to them by visible."

Gordine, Dora—(Hon. Mrs. Richard Hare)—The Beauty of Indian Sculpture. JRAS. Pt. 1, 1941, pp. 42-48, 7 plates. [559]

Shows some of the great and timeless qualities of Indian sculpture which makes it as alive and significant to-day as it was to its unknown creators. Does not attempt to discuss its historical development, or to compare and criticise the characteristics of different periods. Looks entirely from the artistic point of view.

Kataki, Sarbeswar—The Kāmarūpa School of Sculpture. JARS. VIII, Pt. 2, pp. 38-43. [560]

An endeavour to formulate a theory that Kāmarūpa had her own school of sculpture. It is published with a view to invite criticism and encourage further study of the subject.

Khare, G. H.—Varieties of Viṣṇu Image and the Probable Date of their Innovation. In No. 1434 pp. 260-263. [561]

Viṣṇu image can have 24 varieties by the interchange of the conch, the wheel, the mace and the lotus, the four attributes generally shown in Viṣṇu's hands. The writer here fixes tentatively the period of the introduction of this practice.

Majumdar, M. R.—Rare Sculpture from Koṭyarka and an Illustrated MS. of Gitāgovinda. JUB. X, Pt. 2, pp. 112-131, 9 plates (5 coloured), 2 illus. [562]

Koṭyarka shrine stands on the top of a hillock at the village Khaḍāt-mahuḍi in Vijapur tālukā to the north-east of Gujarat, in Baroda State. The sculpture under description are said to be very beautiful and chiselled with great anatomical perfection. The Gitāgovinda described belong to the early Rajasthani or Gujarat style of painting of about the early 16th century.

— The Deopani Ruins. JARS. VIII, Pt. 4, pp. 130-134. [564]

Describes two images, one of Durgā and the other of Viṣṇu, belonging to the 9th century.

Pandey, D. P.—Identification of a sculpture in the Provincial Museum, Lucknow. JBORS. XXVII, pp. 50-60, 1 plate. [565]

The image on a slab now deposited in the Lucknow Museum (No. G 58) has been identified here with Balarama, Rukmini and Vasudeva Kṛṣṇa. Their identification with Lakṣmaṇa, Sītā and Rāma is not correct. Points out that the middle figure is Rukmini in the form of Lakṣmī and not Ekanamṣa as identified by Mr. Jogendra Chandra Ghosh.

Jain, Kamta Prasad—The Jaina Chronology. JA. VII. Pt. 2, pp. 73-80. [590]

— Aśoka and Jainism. JA. VII, Pt. 1, pp. 21-25 [591]

Continued from JA. VI. p. 50. In this instalment the writer traces the existence of Jainism in the countries of Arabia, Persia and Afghanistan, and supports the view that Aśoka formed his Dharma on the basis of Jainism and preached it abroad as well.

— The Digambara and Śvētāmbara Sects of Jainism. In No. 1434, pp. 228-237. [592]

Examines a few conclusions of Mr. C. J. Shah in his Jainism in North India, and confines himself to three important points of controversy raised in the work. Concludes that it is not justified to connect the Śvētāmbaras with Pārśva and the Digambaras with the last Tīrthaṅkara, since it is proved independently that every one of the Tīrthaṅkaras lived as a naked śramaṇa. It is a fact that the Digambara-Śvētāmbara division in the Jain church finally appeared in the first century A. D.

Johnson, Helen M.—[Outlines of Jainism] by Jagmanderlal Jaini, New York, 1940. See ABIHI. III, No. 761. [593]

"Occasionally Jaini's English terminology is inconsistent. Angels and devils is not bad Christian terminology for devas and narakas; but Jaini sometimes uses angels for devas only and sometimes to include both (p. 43), which use might be confusing to a beginner struggling with the five kinds of bodies. 'Falling away' is hardly adequate for nirjara, which is a definite wearing away. The height of the Middle world is corrected (pp. 121 and 122) from 100,040 yojanas to 100,000. There is considerable variation on this point. Hemacandra (Triśaṣṭi 2.3.483) says the Middle World is 900 yojanas above the earth and 900 below." JAOS. Vol. 61, pp. 66-67.

Kapadia, Mulchand Kisandas—Yogasāraṭīkā, by Brahmachari Sitaiprasad Ji. (Prakrit-Hindi text). Digambar Jain Pustakalaya, Surat, 1941 (?) [594]

Contains an elaborate Hindi commentary, accompanied by the text, of the old Jain Philosophical text in Prakrit,—the Yogasāra of Yogindudeva (c. 6th century A. D.).

Mitra, Kalipada—Magic and Miracle in Jain Literature.
J.A. VII, Pt. 2, pp. 18-88. [595]

Gives a few examples of the practice of magic mentioned in Jain literature, ranging from the gross and crude practices to avert the evil eye for the purpose of affording protection against the baneful influence of planets or malignant spirits to the subtle penetration into one's mind to discover his thoughts and paralyse his energy, including magic sleep, going through the air, causing invisibility and the dreadful black art which compels obedience of human and divine victims to it.

Muni, Jinavijayaji—Kuvalayamālā—II. BaV, II, Pt. 2, pp. 211-219. [596]

Discusses some of the historically important facts gleaned from the Praśasti given in his Part I of this article.

For Part I, see BaV, II (1939), p. 88.

Nawab, S. M. Ed.—Shree Chitra Kalpasutra (Prakrit text). 10" x 5", pp. 206. Kumar Printery, Ahmedabad, 1941. [597]

A collection of notable events in the lives of certain Jain Tīrthaṅkaras.

Pai, M. Govind—The Advent of Jaina Dharma to Karnāṭaka. (Kannada text). JKLA. Vol. 26, Pt. 1, pp. 1-21; Pt. 2, pp. 125-144. [598]

Points out that the Chandragupta who came to South India and to Śravanabelgoḷa with his Guru, Bhadrabāhuśwāmy, was not the same as the famous emperor Chandragupta of the Mauryan empire. The argument developed the historical discussion dealing with the subject as also the details of Digambara and Śvetāmbara traditions of Jainism.

Patel, G. J.—Shri Mahāvir Katha (Gujarati text). Crown, pp. 566. Navjivan Mudranalaya, Ahmedabad, 1941. [599]

A biographical sketch of Mahāvira, the 24th Tīrthankara of the Jains.

Payasagar, Munivarya—Digambara Jaina Balaboshe Mattu Jeeva Karmagala Vichar. (Kannada text). pp. 32., Shri Jinavani Prasarak Sangh, Dharwar, 1941. [600]

Elementary principles of Jainism.

Premi, Nathooram—Acharya Amitagati. (Hindi text). JSB. VII, Pt. 1, pp. 29-38. [601]

A biographical sketch of the Jaina priest Amitagati and a list of his works. Amitagati seems to have played a part in the social, cultural and even political life of the South in the 11th-12th century, and was a great scholar, religious leader and statesman. The writer has based his observations on contemporary literature and internal evidence found in Amitagati's own Sanskrit works.

Puri, Baij Nath—Jain Religious Orders in the Kushana Period. JIH. XX, Pt. 1, pp. 85-92. [602]

Points out that in the Kushāna period, a number of Jain religious orders were flourishing side by side in Mathura. These schools were popularly known as gāyas and were divided on the lines of teachers who were known through their respective kulas. The teachers grouped into a kula were branched off into Sākhas or branches. The study is based on epigraphic records.

Pushpadant—Mahapuranam (Tritiya Khand), (Sanskrit-Prakrit-Hindi-English text). Royal 8vo., pp. 320, Nav Bharat Printing Press, Bombay, 1941. [603]

A book on Jaina mythology.

Rao, B. Seshsagiri—New Studies in South Indian Jainism. III, Śravana Belgoḷa Culture. JA. VII, Pt. 1, pp. 26-39. [604]

Rishiji, Amolak—श्री मदनश्रेष्ठी चरित (Hindi text). Royal 12mo. pp. 146, B. L. Chordia, Dhulia, 1941. [605]

Saletoye, B. A.—The Age of Guru Akalanka. JBHS. VI, pp. 10-33. [606]

Tries to substantiate the statement he made in his work Mediaeval Jainism, regarding the age of Akalanka which he assigned to the eighth century.

Sanghavi, J. C.—Puṣya Shri Chhaganlalji Maharajvun Jivan Charitra. (Gujarati text). Crown 16mo., pp. 88, Vir Vijaya Printing Press, Ahmedabad, 1941. [607]

Life sketch of Chhaganlalji Maharaj of the Khambhat Sampradaya of Jainism.

Sastri, S. Srikanta—Jaina Traditions in Rajavali Katha. JA. VII, Pt. 1, pp. 40-47; Pt. 2, pp. 67-72. [608]

Examines the work Rājāvali Kathe of Dēvachandra, which was completed in 1841 A. D. Its value lies in the traditions about Jainism, its history in Karṇāṭaka, the literature in Sanskrit and Kannada, and references to the ruling dynasties and contemporary religions. Its historical value is extremely open to doubt but it furnishes a starting point for further research and hence cannot be dismissed as entirely fanciful.

Satik Vairagya Shatakadi Granth Panchakam. (Sanskrit text). Royal 12mo.. pp. 172. Nirnaya Sagar, Bombay, 1941. [609]

Five books of Vairagya Shatak, etc., with Commentaries.

— Mahāvīra as the Ideal Teacher of the Jains. BaV. III, Pt. 1, pp. 87-89. [611]

An attempt to reconstruct a picture of Mahāvīra as a teacher, based mainly on inference.

— The Āṅgacūliya, a Sacred Text of the Jainas. IHQ. XVII, pp. 472-491. [612]

A critical study of various Jaina text. Shows inter-relation of the texts.

— The meaning of Suya among the Jains. IC. VII, pp. 391-395. [613]

Discusses the relation between Mai and Suya and concludes that the factor of guru-paramparā was of supreme and essential necessity and thus Suya in its exact sense means to the Jains the knowledge of the scriptures as handed down through a properly qualified teacher.

Shah, Umakant P.—Iconography of the Jain Goddess Sarasvati. See No. 568.

Shantisagarji, Chhani—Shri Shantisagar Shiddhanta Prashnottarmālā. (Hindi text). Crown 16mo., pp. 88. Seth Nathulalji Jain, Rakhadeo (Mewar), 1941. [614]

A series of questions and answers on Jain Philosophy.

Sharma, S. R.—Jainism and Karnāṭak Culture. With a foreword by A. B. Latthe. pp. xix+213, 15 illus. Dharwar, 1941. [615]

The Volume deals with the changes Jainism accepted in its history in Karnāṭaka where it flourished in all parts, as well as, the many ways in which it affected the thought and life of its people.

Shastri, Bhyjbali—Jaina Purāṇa. (Hindi text). JSB. VII, Pt. 1, pp. 1-9. [616]

Like the Purāṇas of the Hindus, the Jainas also have their own literature called Purāṇa. The writer here attempts to show that this Jaina Purāṇa is not altogether mythological, but it contains rich historical material.

Shitalprasadji, Brahmachari—Jain Dharma men Daiva aur Purusharth. (Hindi text). Crown 16mo., pp. 180, V. S. Vachnalaya, Indore, 1941. [617]

Fate and effort in Jainism.

Prakrit text and Hindi commentary of Shitalprasadji on an old Jain work, the Tattvasara of Devasenacarya (c. 10th century A. D.)

Suali, Luigi, Ed.—Dharmabindu: A Work on Jaina Philosophy with the Commentary of Municandra. (Sanskrit text) Bibliotheca Indica Series No. 220. 8½" × 5½" pp. xii + 271. Royal Asiatic Society of Bengal, Calcutta, 1940. [619]

Important work of Jain philosopher published in a complete form. The edition is based on five MSS. collected by Dr. Suali, and one MS. belonging to the Society.

Sudarsanacharya, T. K. V. N.—Some Parallel Concepts of Jainism and Vedānta. JSVOI. II, Pt. 1, pp. 57-64. [620]

On account of its intrinsic worth, the Jaina system, is considered to be one of the important systems of Indian philosophy called Darsana-sūtra. The writer compares the system with the Vedic texts and points out the parallels.

Upadhye, A. N. Ed.—Tiloya-Paṇṇatti, by Yativrishabha. Part I, pp. 120. Shri Jain Siddhanta Bhavan, Arrah, 1941. [621]

"Those who have followed the progress of the text of this work in the pages of the Jaina Antiquary must now feel grateful to the Editor, Dr. Upadhye, who has made available to scholars in a convenient form this important geographical work of Jain mythology. The Triloka-Prajñapti belongs to the same group of the Jain canon as the better known Jambūdvipa-prajñapti and the Sanskrit work Loka-Vibhāga of Siṁhasūri. The work so far as it goes is rich in mythological details and contains other valuable information for the understanding of the elements of early Jain icons and art". JUPHS. XIV, Pt. 2, p. 133.

Upadhye, A. T. Ed.—दसवेयालिय—सूत्रं 2 Vols. Crown 8vo. Vol. I. (Ardhamagadhi-English text). pp. 174; Vol. II, pp. 288, Pub.: Editor. [622]

A conspectus of the leading Jain texts, is edited with introduction, translation and notes.

Vadekar, R. D.—[Outlines of Jainism] by J. Jaini, Cambridge, 1940. See ABIHI. III, No. 761. [623]

"The present book is a mere reprint (with corrections) of the first edition, published in 1915. The only addition made in this is on page xviii where a few works on Jainism are added. The list is not exhaustive and leaves many works of note out of consideration, which ought to have been added. The work has always been a popular exposition of Jainism for the beginners; the most valuable feature of the book is that it gives sources in the original, on which the exposition is based. Two charts on the Tirthankars and the classification of Karman add to the usefulness of the work." ABORI. XXII, Pts. 3-4, p. 298.

Vaidya, P. L. Ed.—The Mahāpurāṇa or Tisāṭhi-Mahā-purisaguṇālamīkara, (A Jain Epic in Apabhraṃśa of the 10th century) of Puṣpadanta. Vol. III. Manikcandra Digambara Jain Granthamala No. 42. (English and Hindi Introductions). 93/4" x 61/2", pp. xxxii + 314. M. D. J. Granthamala, Bombay, 1941. [624]

The third of the last part of Puṣpadanta's Mahāpurāṇa composed in the Apabhraṃśa language in the 10th century A. D. It contains a section of the work known separately under the title of Hartvāṇīa Purāṇa and consists of Samdhis 81 to 92. The English introduction gives information about the critical apparatus, the poet and his works. The Hindi introduction contains a discussion of all problems connected with the authorship.

Vijaya, Ratna Prabha—Śramaṇa Bhāgavan Mahāvira. Vol. I, Pt. 1, (Fifteen previous Bhavas or Existence), pp. 212. [625]

Vol. IV, Pt. I, Sthavirāvali text and English translation, pp. 209 Ahmedabad, 1941.

Vijayji, Bhadrankar—Pratima Poojan (Gujarati text). Crown 16mo, pp. 384, Vir Vijaya Printing Press, Ahmedabad, 1941. [626]

Vijayramchandra Surishwarji—Dishasoochan, Pt. 1, (Gujarati text). 2nd Edn. Crown 16mo, pp. 402, Vir Vijaya Printing Press, Ahmedabad, 1941. [627]

A collection of speeches of religious and philosophical interest to Jains.

Lexicography, Grammar and Linguistics

Aiyar, L. V. Ramaswami—Grammar in Lilātilakam. BRVRI. IX, Pt. 2, pp. 84-101. [628]

An attempt to assess the value of the Grammatical material the work for a study of the older stages of Malayālam, by interpreting the data in terms of modern linguistics and comparing them with evidence furnished by the literature and inscriptions of contemporary periods.

— The Malayālam of the Missionaries. BRVRI. IX, Pt. 1, pp. 1-80, [629]

Deals with the linguistic peculiarities of Malayālam writings of Catholic Missionaries of 18th century, specially of Clemens Peanius, and discusses two other works by Catholic Missionaries: (1) A work of 1872; it treats about the history of Christianity in Kerala; it is based upon older authorities like Paulinus and Raulin, and handled from the standpoint of a warm and vigorous supporter of the Synod of Diamper. The story of the arrival of St. Thomas in India, the rise of Nestorianism and its influence of India, the Synod of Diamper and the subsequent history of Catholicism in Kerala, the literary achievements of some European missionaries in Kerala and finally a chapter on the effect of Tippu Sultan's invasion on missionary activities in Kerala. (2) A grammar of Malayālam written in Latin and published probably about 1903; author unknown.

Ayyangar, H. Sesha—On Pampa's Works. AOR. V, Pt. 2, pp. 33-48; VI, Pt. 1, pp. 49-72; VI, Pt. 2. pp. 73-76. (Kannada text). [630]

Continuation of the article which appeared in the two previous numbers of AOR. The meanings of the four words Agunti, Ollanige, Sūyāna and Tegalige, were discussed, and in the present instalment the meanings of three more words Lataha, Mūri, and Kirāta are discussed. Several old Kannada words have fallen out of use and their meanings are not given in Dictionaries that are current now. These words are either forgotten, or wrongly understood. An attempt is here made to discuss the meanings of such old words on the authority of their usages in classical works.

Ayyangar, H. Sesha—Kavijihvabhandhana. AOR. V, Pt. 1, 32 pages, (Kannada text). [631]

The text of Kavijihvabhandhana was published in AOR, Vol. III, Pt. 2. The publication of the critical introduction was begun in Vol. IV, Pt. I. The last portion of the Introduction is presented here.

An attempt is made in the introduction to the work to point out the difference between vadi and prāsa in Kannada prosody and also to compare them with the corresponding metrical elements in the Telugu prosody. In the last few pages, the forms and significations of some rare Kannada words occurring in Pampa's works are determined with reference to their usage in the works of the other great poets of old Kannada.

Bharali, Devananda—Double Form of Some Sanskrit and Allied Words. JARS. VIII, Pt. 2. pp. 50-51. [632]

Gives pairs of words showing a remarkable uniformity in the interchange of K and S sounds. Each pair represents a single word pronounced in two different ways, although Sanskrit grammarians treat them as different words.

Bhatnagar, K. N. Ed.—Nidana-Sutra of Patanjali. (Sanskrit text). Edited for the first time together with an introduction in English, a fragmentary commentary and indices. Vol. 10. Royal 8vo. pp. 16 + 70 + 189 + 51. Mēhar Chand Lachhman Das Sanskrit and Prakrit Series, Lahore, 1939. [633]

Bhattacharya, Vidhushekharā—A Linguistic Note on the Mundaka Upaniṣad. IHQ. XVII, pp. 89-91. [634]

The Mundaka Upaniṣad is regarded as one of the principal Upaniṣads. It presents some peculiarities in its language, which are not to be found in other Upaniṣads. It is much influenced by Prakritism and Buddhist or the mixed Sanskrit as found in such Buddhist Sanskrit works as the Mahāvastu, etc. Gives some examples.

Chaturvedi, Saraswati Prasad—Itsing ke Bharatyatra-vivaran men Ullikhit ek Sanskrit Vyakaran grantha ki Pahechan. NPP. XLVI, Pt. 1, pp. 45-53. [635]

Identification of a Sanskrit grammar mentioned in the account of travels in India of Itsing. Identifies the text of a grammar called Khilatraya by Itsing—a Chinese traveller in India in the 7th century A. D. This book is translated into English by Takakusu under the title, Records of Buddhist Practices, Itsing has quoted five main schools of Sanskrit grammar studied in his days, and the fourth of these schools forms the subject of this paper.

Chatuṛvedi, Saraswati Prasad—On References to Earlier Grammarians in the Aṣṭādhyāyī and the Forms Sanctioned by them. NUJ. No. 7, pp. 46-53. [636]

Shows that by its very nature of completeness, scientific arrangement and developed technique, Pāṇini's famous work, the Aṣṭādhyāyī cannot be the first on Sanskrit Grammar.

— Notes on a Vārtikā (?) and its Misplaced Occurrence in the Mahābhāṣya, In No. 1434, pp. 82-83. [637]

The incongruity in the wording of the Vārtikā which occurs in the Siddhānta-Kaumudi, leads to a suspicion about its genuineness.

Chitrap, Siddhesvarasastri—The Transcription and the Pronunciation of Ranga etc., from Vedic Literature. (Marathi text). BISMQ. XXI, Pt. 3, pp. 65-70. [638]

Deals with Ranga in Vedic grammar. Says Ranga is Anunasika and is different from Anusvara and Gumkara; its varieties 18; it contains 1, 1½, 2, 2½ mātrās; only Rgveda mantras, even when borrowed in other Vedas have rangas; they have been dealt with in *Pratiśākhya*s, Sikṣas and Aṣṭādhyāyī.

Garge, D. V.—An Ancient Attack on Grammar. BDCRI. II, Pts. 3-4, pp. 351-360. [639]

Shows that the Pūrvapakṣin, who attacks Grammar from the point of view of its utility or otherwise to the actual performance, almost holds the field. Although the Siddhāntin, who is a Mīmāṃsaka, upholds the cause of sister-science of Grammar, yet his advocacy of Grammar as indispensable to the performance of religious duties, though unfortunately not very convincing, is an illustration of the wonderful hold that the science of grammar had attained on the minds of the learned circles.

Ghatage, A. M.—Introduction to Ardhmagadhi. 2nd Revised Edn. Double Crown, pp. xii + 254, Kolhapur, 1941. [640]

The book is divided into three parts: Phonology, Morphology, Syntax and Compounds. Each part is subdivided into several chapters, lessons or sections. There are three appendices: a grammatical summary which puts together, for ready reference, in the form of charts the phonetic peculiarities and grammatical forms already described in the body of the book; and two glossaries one of Ardhmagadhi-English words and the other of English-Ardhmagadhi words.

Ghosh, Batakrishna—Latin and Sanskrit. IC. VII, pp. 463-482; VIII, pp. 97-106. [641]

Of all the Indo-European languages of Europe Latin is most like Sanskrit,—both in internal structure and the external history. Examines the structure of Latin.

Gramopadhye, G. B.—Peshve Daptarantil Marathi Bhaschen Swarup. (Marathi text). Crown, pp. 339. B. M. Nerlekar, Poona, 1941. [642]

Character of the Marathi Language in the Peshwa Daftari. A philosophical, grammatical and dialectal study of the Marathi language in the 18th century as represented in the published selections from the Peshwa Daftari.

Haim, S—The Larger English-Persian Dictionary. Designed to give the Persian meanings of 80,000 words, idioms, phrases and proverbs in the English language, as well as the transliteration of difficult Persian words. 2 Vols. Royal 8vo, Teheran, 1941. [643]

Heimann, Betty—Sphoṭa and Artha. In No. 1434, pp. 221-227. [644]

Draws distinction between the spheres of artha and sphoṭa. Concludes that the distinction does not seem to be always strictly kept to in average linguistic use.

Joshi, Gopala Shastri—Patañjala Mahābhāṣyam. Edited with Arthasangraha Commentary. Part I Paspasanhikam. Demy 8vo, pp. 43, Bombay, 1941. [645]

Joshi, S. B.—Agent-Suffixes Like Vaṭa and Vallā. (Kannada text). JKLA. Vol. 26, Pt. 1, pp. 62-65. [646]

Discusses whether Kannada noun suffixes Vallā and Vaṭa are derived from Sanskrit Pāla.

— The Suffixes Vallā (Vaṭa) Vāla-Vāla. (Kannada text). JKLA. Vol. 26, Pt. 2, pp. 195-196. [647]

Suggests that the Kannada Vallā form is earlier than the Prakrit form Vāla < Pāla.

Kakati, Banikauta—Assamese, Its Formation and Development. Demy 8vc, pp. xxxii + 399. Narayani Handiqui Historical Institute, Gauhati, Assam, 1941. [648]

Gives a brief sketch of the history of the language, which is claimed to be independent of Bengali and having its own distinctive features and literature, its dialects and vocabulary greatly influenced by the Tibeto-Burmese languages as a result of the Shan invasion of the country.

The author deals with its sounds and their origin from Sanskrit through the intermediate stage of the Prakrits.

The part on morphology deals with the word-formation suffixes are traced to their original and the formation of nominal and verbal forms.

Kapadia, H. R.—The Student's English-Pāiya Dictionary with three Appendices. pp. xii + 188. Karsandas Narandas & Sons, Surat, 1941. [649]

The present dictionary is the first of its kind on the market. Ever since Ardhamāgadhi was introduced in the undergraduate courses, students have felt the want of an English-Ardhamāgadhi dictionary.

Katre, S. M.—On the Present Needs of Indian Linguistics. PO. VI, pp. 128–138. [650]

A survey of linguistic studies carried out in India and abroad. Suggests preparation of a Sanskrit Dictionary on co-operative basis.

— Prakrit Uccidima and Uuccudai. In No. 1434, pp. 258–259. [651]

A note to point out that cr or cr- has not been very productive, the different treatment of vocalic r in Middle Indo-Āryan as an a, i or u, have resulted in certain back formations in Sanskrit.

— The Formation of Koṅkaṇī. ABORI. XXII, Pts. 3–4, pp. 272–287. [652]

Continued from ABORI. XX, pp. 176. This is the Part III. A brief review of the main current of syntactical characteristics of Koṅkaṇī and the deviation observed therein in the dialects. The main differences are particularly noticed within the two divergent groups—Brāhmaṇ and Christian.

— On a Thesaurus Linguae Sanscritæ. NIA. IV, Pt. 8, pp. 271–279. [653]

Reviews the activities in Lexicographical work, and suggests means by which a Thesaurus can be compiled and published.

— Some Problems of Historical Linguistics in Indo-Āryan, BaV. II, Pt. 2, pp. 220–229. [654]

Introduction to Historical Linguistics; Verbal bases of Indo-Āryan; Nominal Stem formation in Indo-Āryan; Problems of Historical Linguistics, and Synonymic: Unsolved problems and desiderata.

Konkani—Memorandum on Koṅkaṇī. 9 3/4" × 6 1/2", pp. 24. The Marathi Literature Conference, Sholapur, printed at the Karnāṭak Printing Press, Bombay, 1941. [655]

A Memorandum submitted to the Census Authorities, asking them to consider the Koṅkaṇī language as a dialect of Marathi, and not as a separate language.

Kulkarni, E. D—Verbs of Movement and their variants in the critical edition of the Adiparvan. Appendix volume to the Bulletin of the Deccan College Research Institute, Vol. II, Pts. 2-4. $9\frac{3}{4}'' \times 5\frac{1}{2}''$, pp. 113. The Deccan College Research Institute, Poona, 1941. [656]

A study of synonymous roots of the Sanskrit Dhātupāṭhas, indicating gati- or movements and traces their substitute-variants in the critical edition of the Ādiparvan and analysing the nature of these variants. The roots have been collected from Liebich's list of his Materialien zum Dhātupāṭha p. 19. Part II, treats with verbs of movement not included in the Dhātupāṭha of Pāṇini or Chandra, but found only in the Nirukta. Verbs of movement, not included either in Pāṇini, Chandra or in Nirukta but whose dictionary meaning is given as 'movement,' are treated in Part III.

The verb, shows what can be done in the field of epic linguistics with the vast critical material presented by the Bhandarkar Oriental Research Institute in their critical edition of the Mahābhārata. One aspect of this variation which is not generally shared by the Vedic Variants is connected with the stem of the root considered; whereas Vedic variations in verbal inflection are concerned with such leading aspects as the voice, mood, tense and tense-systems, secondary conjugations, interchanges between finite verbs and verbal nouns or of equivalent personal endings, matters pertaining to augment and reduplication, variation in grade of stems and allied matters, and person and number they do not show variants of the original base itself.

Macqueen, Percy—Equivalents of the English Perfect in Tamil and Malayālam, according to certain European Grammarians. BRVRI. IX, Pt. 2, pp. 102-110. [657]

European grammarians have failed to devise an intelligible rule for rendering the various forms of English perfect into Tamil and Malayālam, nor have they elucidated the exact meaning of the verbs which are used to 'strengthen' the various simple tense forms in those languages. In particular they fall short in their explanation of the exact force of the participle when used with the verbs iru and irikka, the equivalents of the verb 'to be.' The writer states the problem, and leaves to others to find the solution.

Malavad, S. S.—R. L. Kuṭa, Kṣaṭa Vicāram, (Kannada text). KSPP. XXVI, pp. 197-203. [658]

Concludes that the distinction between R. and r, L and l are artificial and unreal.

Mallia, N. V.—Mukuta, Mauli and Kiriṭa. In No. 1434, pp. 282-289. [659]

Discusses the difference between the three words which mean a head-dress, a crown.

Marsh, Gordon, H.—The Voiced Sibilants in Sanskrit. JAOS. Vol. 61, Pt. 1, pp. 45-50. [660]

A survey of the traces of the voiced sibilants z and ż in Sanskrit. The treatment of the material is divided into two parts: first the treatment of z and ż in the interior of a word, either in the stem or between the stem and an added element; second, the treatment of z and ż at the end of a word, in so-called external sandhi.

Menon, C. Achyuta—Ancient Kerala, AORV. Pt. 1, 12 pages. [661]

Presidential address delivered at the Malayālam (Linguistic) Section of the All-India Oriental Conference, held at Tirupati in March 1940.

Mulla, Feridun—Lingua Indica, being an examination of the language problem of New India. 9½" x 6¼", pp. 37, The Indian Publishing Co., Hyderabad (Den.), 1940. [662]

Nainar, S. Muhammad Husayn—Arabic and Persian Words in the Tamil Language. AOR. V, Pt. 1, 4 pages. [663]

Shows that even before the birth of Islam in Arabia, the Tamil language had already been influenced by Arabic contact, and had this shown its capacity for assimilating and adapting, while still retaining its own unmistakable character.

Narasimhachar, D. L. Ed.—Vaddārādhane. (Kannada text). KSPP. XXVI, pp. 67-108. [664]

The work throws much light on the development of the Kannada language and on many points of historical interest. It is an early work, and there are scholars who would take it as back as the 6th century A. D.

Narasimia, A. N.—A Grammar of the Oldest Kanarese Inscriptions. Studies in Dravidian Philosophy No. 1. pp. xxiii + 375. University, Mysore, 1941. [665]

"The earliest Kanarese literary text preserved, the Kuvirā jamārga dates from the latter part of the ninth century (c. A. D. 877). Before that the language is attested in a number of inscriptions which go back several centuries before this date. The earliest of the inscriptions treated by Mr. Narasimia is dated A. D. 578, the majority being about the year A. D. 700. The earliest Kanarese inscription yet found, at Halmidi, is dated c. A. D. 450..... This state of affairs is quite opposite of that which prevails in Tamil, where a copious body of literary texts, excellently preserved, antedates the earliest inscriptions by several centuries. It therefore follows that the study of the early inscriptions in Kannada is of particular interest to the student of Dravidian comparative philology, and the appearance of a work dealing with them is a welcome addition to the slender literature on that subject. The book is divided roughly into two sections, the first dealing with the history of certain sounds in Kanarese as evidenced by inscriptions, the second containing the grammar, text of the inscriptions and comparative vocabulary. T. Burrow, BSOS. XI, pp. 230-231.

Neog, Dimbeswar—Sri Kṛṣṇa Kirtan and its Language. JARS. VIII, Pt. 1, pp. 27-31. [666]

Sri Kṛṣṇa Kirtan by Chandidas is valuable discovery. It is said to be the first available specimen of the Bengali language. The writer here examines the grammar, vocabulary and the script and concludes that the language of west Bengal in the 14th century was the language of Kāmarūpa now known as the Assamese language.

— Songs of Gopichandra and their language. JARS. VIII, Pt. 3, pp. 91-96. [667]

Nyayasahityatirtha, Hemanshuvijaya, Ed.—Shri Siddha Hemacandra Shabdanu-Shasanam. Edited with Appendices, Notes, Variants and Introduction. (Sanskrit text). Sheth Anandji Kalyanji, Ahmedabad, 1941. [668]

Sanskrit portion of the celebrated grammar of Hemacandra. It covers the first seven chapters of the work, the eighth and the last chapter of which deals with the grammar of the different Prakrits. The text is accompanied by author's own gloss on the sutras, while short explanatory notes are added by the editor in the form of footnotes.

Patel, Manilal—A few Hitherto Undetected Haplologies on Old Indo-Aryan. In No. 1434, pp. 327-328. [669]

Points out a few haplological occurrences in old Indo-Āryan.

Development of the Marathi Language, translated from Jules Bloch's La Formation de Langue Marathc.

Pillai, Kannuswami, and Pillai, K. Appadurai—Oppilakanam (Tamil Text), pp. 208. S. I. S. S. W. P. Society, Tinnevelly, 1941. [671]

The comparative grammar of the Dravidian language by Caldwell; translation of the introduction.

Ramakrishnayya, K.—Inflection in Dravidian Languages (Telugu text). AOR. VI, Pt. 2, pp. 1-36. [672]

Traces the development of inflection in the major languages of the Dravidian group, particularly with reference to Telugu. The origin and the significance of Vibhakti in Sanskrit is explained and it is argued that this idea of Vibhakti cannot be applied in the case of the Dravidian group of languages, though for the sake of convenience it is generally adopted therein. The so-called case-signs are traced to independent words in the language, and the relation between the base and the post-positions is explained as one of attributive nature.

— Dravidian Phonetics, (English-Telugu text). AOR. V, Pt. 2, VI, Pt. 1, 24 pages. [673]

Points out how dialects are formed on account of the special phonetic tendencies that develop in a particular area. The various changes that sounds undergo in any language are generally due to laziness or economy of effort. Considers some of the phonetic changes that occur in the Dravidian group of languages.

Reddiar, V. Venkata Rajulu—Alapedai: Lengthening of the Quality of a Letter. (Tamil text). AOR. V, Pt. 1, 23 pages. [674]

There is difference of opinion between Tolkäppiyar and Pavaṇḍi the author of Nannūl, in regard to the quantity of the elongated vowel in metrical composition. Tolkäppiyar thinks that the quantity of the elongated vowel does not vary and the succeeding short vowel adds to its quantity only when metrical exigency arises. The author of Nannūl is, however, of the opinion that the elongated vowel itself gets an increase in quantity while the succeeding short vowel merely indicates the increased quantity. The view of Tolkäppiyar is in consequence with the principles of Tamil Prosody.

— Dravidic Pronouns. All in Tamil. Bulletin of the Tamil Department No. 3. 8" x 5½", pp. xix + 128, University of Madras, Madras, 1941. [675]

— Change of Consonants. (Tamil text). AOR. VI, Pt. 1, 12 pages; Pt. 2, 11 pages. [676]

Phonetic changes of certain consonants in Sandhi, due to assimilation are dealt with in this short paper. It is shown by example, that such changes enable us to arrive at a correct etymology.

Reddiar, V. Venkata Rajulu—A note on the word ‘Tēvu’ (Tamil text). AOR. V, Pt. 2. [677]

A discourse upon the verb tēvu is given. Concludes that the verb is written as tēvu in available editions of Tolkāppiyam. But the correct form seems to be tēvu.

Renou, Louis—The Valid Forms in “Bhāsā”. IHQ. XVII, pp. 245–250. [678]

Gives a few notes on Bhāsā which have a variable linguistic bearing, and disclose a state of language distinct from the normal Pāṇinian.

Sankaran, C. R.—A Further Note on the Logical Analysis of the three probable Stages of Primitive-Indo-European Compound Formation. BDCRI. II, Pts. 3–4, pp. 341–342. [679]

A short note to point out that logical analysis of a language always presupposes a phenomenological analysis.

— Dravidian Notes. RDCRI. II, Pts. 3–4, pp. 325–340. [680]

Discusses the Dravidian word for ‘Plaiting’, name transference in Dravidian with special reference to some words expressive of relationship, Dravidian numeration, Picture-writing in ancient Dravidian India, the Tamil word tūvai, the semantic of the Tamil word ñūl, and the Malayālam words oppol and etial.

Sankaram, C. R. and Srinivasan, N. K.—The Phonemic Variants of Aytam in Old Tamil. BDCRI. II, Pts. 3–4, pp. 343–350. [681]

A study of symbols used to represent the combination of pure consonant and vowel phonemes.

Sarma, K. Madhava Krishna—An Important Aspect of Patañjalian Technique of Interpretation. IC. VII, pp. 433–445. [682]

The use of a good many Paribhāṣās and Nyāyas, not only leads Patañjali to reject a large number of Vārtikas, but also enables him to widen the scope of the Aṣṭādhyāyī. The writer illustrates some of these and explains.

— Some Problems in Pāṇini. JMU. XIII, 203–225. [683]

— The Pāṇinian School and the Prātiśākhyas: Post-Pāṇinian Reciprocity of Influence. BuV. II, Pt. 2, pp. 230–238. [684]

A study of Kātyāyana’s Vārtikas reveals to the author that Kātyāyana was influenced to a great extent by what he calls ‘Prātiśākhyisms’, and shows that Kātyāyana’s authorship of the Vājasaneyi Prātiśākhya cannot be accepted.

Sarma, K. Madhava Krishna—Kātyāyana. PO. VI, pp. 74-92. [685]

Some of the Vārtikas of Kātyāyana have been examined to determine the relation between Pāṇini and Kātyāyana. Kātyāyana's object in writing the Vārtika was to find fault with the grammar of Pāṇini. He tried sincerely to clear the ambiguities in the rules of the Aṣṭādhyāyī by supplementing them where necessary.

— Authorship of the Uṇādi Sūtras. In No. 1434, pp. 395-404. [686]

Discusses the chronological relation of ancient grammarians to Pāṇini and gives a brief survey of the history of the Uṇādi Sūtras. The author of the Uṇādi Sūtras, he says, was most probably a grammarian called Vararuci who flourished some time after Patañjali compiled the Uṇādi Sūtras drawing fully well upon the Munitraya text as well as upon those of the etymologists to which he might have had access.

Sastri, M. P. L.—The Word "Sarasvatī" in Sanskrit Literature. PO. VI, pp. 190-194. [687]

Points out the various meaning of the word 'Sarasvatī' found in Sanskrit literature.

Sengal, S. R.—Importance of Accent in the Vedas PO VI, pp. 93-101. [688]

Shows that the import of a work lies on its accented syllable whether it may fall on the stem or the suffix.

Sharma, Har Dutt, Ed.—Namalingaṇuṣhasanam. (Sanskrit-English text). Demy 8vo. pp. 552. Oriental Book Agency, Poona, 1941. [689]

Shastti, Keshavram K.—Bharātiya Bhāshāoni Samīkshā, (Gujarati text). SFGST. V, Pt 4, pp. 473-528. [690]

A survey of Indian languages, reproduced in Gujarati a portion of Sir George Grearson's monumental work on modern Indian languages so far as the Gujarati language is concerned.

Tatacharya, D. T.—Nominative Singular as Vocative. JSVOI. II, Pt. 1, pp. 71-72. [691]

A note to point out that the views of Karl Brugmann and A. A. Macdonell that the nominative singular is used in the passage Vāyu and Indra, ye take care (Rig. V. 1, 2. 5) as a vocative. He renders the passage Vāyu, thou and Indra take care. Concludes that there is no need to use nominative in the place of vocative.

Tungar, N. V.—Pali Dhaturupavali. Poona Oriental Series No. 73. pp. 60. Oriental Book Agency, Poona, 1941. [692]

Upadhye, A. N.—Vālmīki-Sūtra: A myth. BuV. II, Pt. 2, pp. 160-176. [692 A]

Concludes that the mere tradition that Vālmīki, the author of Rāmāyaṇa, wrote a Prākrit grammar. The so-called sūtras of Vālmīki are really the Sūtras of Trivikrama who has also written a Vṛtti on them. These Sūtras are posterior to and modelled after the Sūtras of Hemacandra. Possibly through some false reading, they came to be attributed to Vālmīki. There was no evidence to say that there was some other Vālmīki between Hemacandra and Trivikrama.

— A Prākrit Grammar attributed to Samantabhadra. IHQ. XVII, pp. 511-516. [693]

Discusses the Prākrit grammar and concludes that the grammar contained in the Poona MS. and ascribed to Samantabhadra is decidedly later than Hemacandra whose Prākrit grammar it reproduces mechanically and bodily omitting some portions here and there. It cannot be attributed to Samantabhadra, the logician of the 3rd century of the Vikrama era, and there is no evidence to identify this Samantabhadra with any other of that name who might have flourished later than Hemacandra.

Vaidya K. M.—The Ashtangahrīdaya Kosha with the Hridaya Prakasha: A Critical and Explanatory Commentary. (Sanskrit text). Valapad (S. Malabar), 1941. [694]

A dictionary of more or less unfamiliar terms occurring in the well-known Ayurvedic work, the Ashtangahrīdaya of Vāgbhaṭa.

Varma, K. Goda—A Study of the Personal Pronouns in the South Dravidian Languages. NIA. IV, Pt. 6, pp. 201-217. [695]

The history of the recorded forms of the pronouns of the first and second persons in the main South Dravidian languages is traced, and phonological explanation is offered in each case.

Varma, Siddheshwar—Studies in Burushaskī Dialectology. JRASBL. VII, Pt. 2, pp. 133-173. [696]

Discusses the distinctive features of Nāgarī and Hunza in Phonetics, Grammar and Vocabulary.

— Sanskrit Ardhām as a Preposition in the language of the Brāhmaṇas. In No. 1434, pp. 545-546. [697]

A short discussion on the use of the word ardham as a preposition in Sanskrit.

Vellaivararam, K.—A Comparative Study of Tholkappiyam: The Earliest extant Tamil Grammar of Second Century B. C., and Nannul a Grammar of the 13th Century. (Tamil text). JAU. XI, Pt. 2, pp. 97-133. [698]

The author of Nannul, though he bases his work on the Tholkappiyam yet recognises the changes that have taken place in the Tamil language and gives expression to them. The Author deals with the classification and nature of Tamil sounds dealt with both in the Tholkappiyam and the Nannul.

Vyakaran Mahabhashya—Pt. II (Marathi-Sanskrit text). Royal 8vo. pp. 624. Deccan Education Society, Poona, 1941. [699]

Sanskrit text of Patañjali's Commentary on Pāṇini's grammar with Marathi translation and explanatory notes by Mahamahopādhyāya Vasudēvshāstri Abhyankar. Padas 3rd and 4th of the 1st Adhyāya and the whole of the 2nd Adhyāya.

Libraries and Manuscripts

Ahmad, Mohammad Aziz—Tarikh-i-Moghul of Asad Beg. In No. 1222. pp. 87-90. [700]

Gives a brief account of Asad Beg and his work Tarikh-i-Moghul, a manuscript from the Nawab-Abdus Salam Collection, Aligarh.

Aiyangar, A. N. Krishna—The Hārita Smṛti. BmV. V, Pt. 1, Pt. 2, and Pt. 3. [701]

A detailed examination of the manuscript No. XXII. N. 7 of the Adyar Library. Points out the general features of the MS. and mentions the portion and dealing with Japa or repetition of each mantra for the fulfilment of specific desire, i.e. Kāmya Japa is full while the printed version is defective.

Banerji, Suresh Chandra—Vratakalaviveka of Sulpani. IHQ. XVII. pp. 1-27. (Second set of pagination before the volume proper begins). [702]

Describes a manuscript of Vratakalaviveka, with Vratas.

Banerji-Sastri, A.—Two Mithila MSS. On Tantra and Yoga. JBORS. XXVII, pp. 61-70. [703]

Bijanamani and Sūkṣmasvarodayaprakaranam are the two MSS. described here. The former explains the contents and esoteric significance of the Tantric incantations, and the latter deals with the nadis in the human body and their relation to the planets influencing every sphere of earthly life. Gives the text of both.

Banerji-Sastri, A.—A Mithila copy of the Salyaparvan of the Mahābhārata. JBORS. XXVII. pp. 570–592. [704]

Written in Mithila script of the 17th century, the MS. has been acquired for the library of the Bihar and Orissa Research Society. It is dated Śaka 1537 and Samvat 1672 (1615 A. D.). Some of the readings are noted and the nature of the MS. shown.

Bapat, P. V.—A Washington Manuscript: New Light Shown on the Fragmentary Tibetan Version of the Vimuktimarga. ABORI. XXII, Pts. 1–2, pp. 116–119, 1 plate. [705]

Compares various MSS. of Vimuktimarga, and concludes that, the whole of the Tibetan version closely agrees with the Chinese version and thus confirms his surmise that "both the Tibetan and Chinese versions had the same original."

Barua, B. K.—A Short note on Śrī-Hastamuktāvali (A treatise on Hand-Poses). JARS. VIII, Pt. 3. pp. 71–76. [706]

Describes and discusses the MS. of the work.

Chakravarti, Chintaharan — Study of Manuscripts. In No. 1434, pp. 73–81. [707]

Confines his remarks to the study of MSS. of Sanskrit works and gives impression about the subject.

Dutt, Nalinaksha Ed.—Gilgit Manuscript, Vol. II. $9\frac{1}{2}'' \times 6''$, pp. 214. J. C. Sarkhal, Srinagar, 1941. [708]

This is an edition of Samadhisaja-sūtra, otherwise known as the Candrapradipa-sūtra, based on the MS. discovered at Gilgit.

Gode, P. K.—A Rare Manuscript of Bhaṭṭa Kamalakara's Commentary on the Harivyāsa Kāvya of Lolumbarāja. JTSML. II, Pt. 2, pp. 11–15. [709]

Gives analysis of the only fragment of the MS. of the work available to him.

— The Oldest Dated Manuscript of Puñjarāja's Commentary on the Sārasvata-Prakriyā: Dated A. D 1556 (Samvat 1612). BmV. Pt. 3. [710]

Points out the earliest MS. of this work so far he can judge from the published catalogues available to him; this date 1556 harmonises with the date assigned to Puñjarāja, viz., 1475 to 1520. According to this MS. Puñjarāja's father Jivana and his uncle Megha got the title of मत्रि from Ghaisud-Din Khilji; and that Puñjarāja became king but abandoned the kingdom to his younger brother Muñja.

Gode, P. K.—A Rare Manuscript of the Veda Bhāṣyasāra of Bhaṭṭoji Dīkṣita BmV. V, Pt. 4. [711]

The manuscript described is a commentary on the R̥gveda by Bhaṭṭoji Dīkṣita, the well-known author of the Siddhāntakaumudi. The commentator professes to have based his work on the Vedabhāṣya of Sāyaṇacārya, but his discussions are found to be essentially grammatical. It is not known whether this MS. in nine folios is a complete work by itself or is a fragment of a larger commentary.

Guha, S. C.—Ancient View of Classification with Outline of a Modern Workable System. In No. 1434, pp. 206-213. [712]

Describes the classification (vargikaraya) adopted in the ancient India, and applies the method to modern library classification.

Habib Ganj—A Rare Manuscript. JAHRI. I, Pt. 1, pp. 140-142. [713]

A note on the Masnawi Go-i-Chaugan of Mulla Arifi Hirwa.

Hosten, H.—Indian Books Taken to France, Mostly by the Jesuits for the Library of Louis XV., (1729-1735). JBHS. VI, pp. 68-93. [714]

A translation from Omount's Archéologiques, Françaises en Orient aux XVIIe et XVIIIe siècles, Pt. II, Paris. pp. 828-852, and 1179-1192.

An interesting account of the efforts made by the Jesuit Missionaries in India and some of the agents of the French East India Company to procure Indian books and manuscripts for the library of Louis XV, King of France.

Utpala-Parimala is a Commentary on Varāhamihira's Bṛhatsaṁhitā. The writer studies the MS. of work in Telugu script from the library of the Sri Venkateswara Oriental Institute, Tirupati.

Khan, M. A. M., and Shaikh, C. H.—A Dakhani Manuscript. BDCRI. II, Pts. 3-4, pp. 300-313, 3 plates. [716]

Discusses a specimen of early Dakhani poetry. It is said to be the work of a native of Gujarat.

Manuscripts—List of Rare Manuscripts in Sri Venkateswara Oriental Institute, Tirupati. JSVOI. II, Pt. 1, pp. 155-170. [717]

Four hundred and forty-eight manuscripts are listed, in Devanāgarī Tamil and Telugu characters.

Narahai, H. G.—The Vṛttaratnāvalī: Its Author and his Date: About 1425 A. D. BmV. V, Pt. 3. [718]

Discusses the Manuscripts of the work, which, though mainly intended as a prayer to Sarasvatī, the goddess of learning, it serves also the additional purpose of being an interesting treatise on Metrics.

— The Raghupatirahasyadīpikā of Śrīmuni and its Date: After 1550 A. D. [719]

Describes the pretensions of the MS. to be an independent composition, it is nothing more than an adaptation of the Ujjvalanilamani of Rūpagosvāmin to suit as an invocation to Rāma, obviously by a devotee of Rāma. It cannot have been composed earlier than 1550 A. D.

— The Advaitajalajata: The Probable Date of its Author Panduranga. BmV. V, Pt. 4. [720]

Potdar, D. V.—A Unique Illuminated MS. of Bhāgavata. (Marathi text). BISMQ, XXII, Pt. 1, pp. 4-6. [721]

The MS. contains about fifty illustrations. The style is of late and debased Deccani, and appears to have been originally owned by Timaji Diyanatrao, an 'Adilshahi statesman. The size is 17" x 7 $\frac{1}{4}$ ", and dated Saka 1584, Pausa, 2nd day of the bright fortnight, Saturday (7-12-1667 A. D.). It is connected with the Shirke dynasty of Sringarpur (Konkan).

Raghavan, V.—The Varṇanā Sāra Saṅgraha of Ayyā Dikṣita Alias Nilakanṭha Dikṣita (II). BmV. V. Pt. 3. [722]

Examination of the MS. of the work.

Ray, H. C.—Bhojarāja-saccarita Nāṭaka of Vedānta-vāgīśa Bhaṭṭācārya. IHQ. XVII, pp. 1-27. (First set of pagination before the volume proper begins. [723]

Describes the manuscript of the Nāṭaka from the India Office collection. The drama is without any female characters and the usual scenes of erotic court intrigue. The author is placed in the last quarter of the 16th or the first half of the 17th century. The drama is said to be important for a study of Sūrjanacarita.

Sarma, K. Madhava Krishna—The Sūryasiddhāntavyākhyā of Bhūtivīṣṇu. BmV. V, Pt. 2. [724]

Examines the Manuscript from the Adyar Library and assigns the date to the beginning of the 11th century. This MS. is only a fragment.

Sarma, K. Madhava Krishna—Date of Mādhavasarasvatī: Its Bearing on the Date of Rāmacandra and Viṭṭhala new Light on the much Debated Date of Mādhusudana-sarasvatī. BmV. V, Pt. 4. [725]

The Manuscript of a work by Mādhavasarasvatī, entitled Prakriyā-sudhā, a commentary on the Sanskrit grammar Prakriyakāumudi of Rāmacandra is found deposited in the Adyar Library. Rāmacandra is known to have flourished in the latter half of the 14th century and his grammar had been commented upon by his grandson Viṭṭhala in the first half of the 15th century. From the fact that this commentary of Viṭṭhala, called Prasada has been drawn upon in the Prakriyāsudhā, as pointed out here, and also from the details given in other works of Mādhavasarasvatī, “the flourishing period” of whose literary activity falls between 1533 and 1550 A. D., ascribed in his Padyāvalī a verse to Madhava. Madhusūdana Sarasvatī also mentions his guru as bearing the name of Madhava.

— Author and Date of the Malayālam Amarapañcika. BmV. V, Pt. 1. [726]

Discusses the manuscript No. 21. Q. 7. of the Adyar Library, assigns the date 1541 A. D., to its composition, said to have been the work of Vāsudeva who remains unidentified.

— The Sāmavadasarvānukramaṇī. BmV. V, Pt. 3. [727]
Discusses the work and points out the existing manuscripts.

Sherwani, H. K.—The Riyādul-Inshā as a Source Book of Deccan History. In No. 1222, pp. 170-177. [728]

Describes the manuscript of Riyādul-Inshā of Khwājā Maḥmud Gāwāñ, The Bahmani Wazir. The particular MS. to which reference is made is from the Habibganj Library (No. 50/136.)

Tatacharya, D. T.—The Kāñcī Bhāṇa of Veṅkaṭādhvarin. JSVOI. II, Pt. 1, pp. 69-71. [729]

Literature, Poetry and Drama

Aiyangar, A. N. Krishna—Some Poets of the Diṇḍima Family. In No. 1434, pp. 1-6. [730]

A short sketch of the poets of the famous family of the Diṇḍima Bhaṭṭas, representing the mediæval type of South Indian Scholarship.

Aiyangar, K. V. Rangaswami—Rāja Dharma. $8\frac{1}{4}'' \times 5\frac{1}{2}''$. pp. xxv + 236. The Adyar Library, Adyar (Madras), 1941.

After a brief account of the Sanskrit works of polity the author explains that law proper forms a very small part of many śāntis and digests because they assumed the existence of civil codes like those of Nārada and that the theory of bias (secular and unsecular) on the part of writers fails. According to the author, Dharma has its root and finds its sanction in Veda; the sole subject of Veda is Dharma; the purpose of life is fourfold, Dharma, Artha, Kāma and Mokṣa, and this fourfold purpose is rendered possible of attainment by the division of the population into four Varṇas and of life into the four stages (Āśramas).

In the second lecture after advertizing to the vastness of the extant literature on Dharmasāstra the author shows how the individual, the corporations and the king were all under the jurisdiction of Dharmasāstra and how the adjustment of rules of Dharmasāstra to the changing needs of Indian society arising from the invasion of Huns and Moslems were made by fiction and equity but not by direct legislation. The author tries to explain why in the nibandhas written to the order of rulers, non-nīti subjects loom very large and why the nibandhas dealing with rājanīti are few.

"The lectures cover only 65 pages, while the notes extend over more than 150 pages printed in small type. To the serious student of Ancient Indian Culture, the latter would appear to be even more important than the lectures themselves". A. S. Altekar, JBHU. VI, pp. 250-252.

Aiyangar, K. V. Rangaswami—Rājadharma. BmV. V, Pt. 1. [732]

Notes on the previous instalment of the articles which appeared in this Journal, dealing with the scope and contents of the literature on Dharma that has influenced the social and political life of the Hindus.

Aiyangar, S. Krishnaswami—Govinda Bhaṭṭa the Real name of Akabariya Kālidāsa. IHQ. XVII, pp. 257-258.

A note to point out the error of Dr. H. D. Sharma with reference to the name, in the Calcutta Oriental Journal, III, p. 136.

Aiyar, L. V. Ramaswami—Eighteenth-Century Malayalam Prose. Written by Christians. NIA. III, pp. 388-397; 429-436.

Aiyar, L. V. Ramaswami—Tirukural in Malayālam. (A 16th Century MS. Containing the Tamil text and the Malayālam Translation). BRVRI, IX, Pt. 1, Supplementary pp. 68-83. [735]

Anantaramachar, N.—Cāvunḍarāya Pūrāṇa. (Kannada text). JKLA. Vol. 26, Pt. 1, pp. 1-22. [736]

Apte, V. M.—[Bhāṣa: A Study] by A. D. Pusalkar, Lahore, 1940. See ABIII. III, No. 1034. [737]

"In the opening chapter Prof. Pusalkar directly plunges into the controversial topics and seeks to prove by producing plausible evidence that the so-called thirteen Trivandrum plays are by one author, and that this author is the pre-Kālidāsa Bhāṣa, whom on internal and external evidence the author places in the 4th century B. C. Considering that there are differences of opinion among scholars regarding the dates of Kālidāsa and Kauṭilya, there is little wonder that no unanimity exists about the date of Bhāṣa, especially as the plays are taken to be spurious. Some scholars will no doubt take exception to the early date proposed by Prof. Pusalkar, but there can be no two opinions as to the author's creditable performance in the careful sifting of facts, marshalling of evidence and the power of analysis and synthesis displayed everywhere in this book. He deals with a problem from all its facets and aspects as also in the light thrown on it by his predecessors, and he deserves all praise for his speciality of "treating with courtesy views which he does not share" which has been particularly mentioned by Dr. Keigh in his Foreword to the book".—ABORI. XXII, Pts. 1-2, pp. 131-132.

Arya, Aniladevi, Tr.—Brahmodyopnishat, (Sanskrit-Gujarati text, in Gujarati characters). Crown 16mo, pp. 92 Aryaprakash Press, Anand, 1941. [738]

Commentaries on Brahmodyopnishat translated into Gujarati.

Askari, S. H.—A Critical Study of Kalyan Singh's Khulasat-ut-Tawarikh. IHQ. XVII, pp. 304-358. [739]

Examines critically the work and points out some inaccuracies.

Athalye, N. V.—Ahalyā Kāmadhenu of Keśavadāsa. PO. VI, pp. 29-36. [740]

A few notes on the author and the work on Hindu law and religion by one Keśavadasa, who probably compiled it in the reign of Ahalyābāī Holkar.

Athalye, N. V.—Kalandikā-Prakāśa of Somanātha Vyāsa. In No. 1434 pp. 39-48. [741]

A study of the work written at the beginning of the nineteenth century A. D. It is an epitome of all knowledge, ancient as well as modern writers in simple lucid Sanskrit.

Athavle, R. B. and Naware, H. R. Eds.—मालविकामिन्त्र (Sanskrit-English text). Crown 16mo, pp. 368, Sharda Mudranalaya, Ahmedabad, 1941. [742]

Mālviṅkāgnimitra, a drama critically edited, with a complete translation into English.

Avalaskar, S. V.—Navaratnamala a Poem on Sekhoji Angre. (Marathi text). BISMQ. XXII, Pt. 1, pp. 9-13. [743]

A poem by Saiva Mayuresa dated 1732. It contains 15 verses which have no allusion to any historical event except Sekhoji's capture of Ratnagiri and the mention of his minister Raghava.

Ayyangar, R. Raghava—Tamil Varalaru, Vol. I, (Tamil text), pp. 358. Annamalai University, Annamalainagar, 1941. [744]

The first volume of the history of Tamil literature to the end of Tholcāppianar, 2nd century B. C. Exhibits the critical study of the author in Tamil literature combined with a comparative study of Sanskrit works like Rāmāyaṇa and the Mahābhārata.

Banerjee, Anukulchandra—The Sūtrasamuccaya. IHQ. XVII. pp. 121-126. [745]

A work of doubtful authorship. The Sanskrit original is lost but it is preserved in the Tibetan translation. The writer gives the titles of works—Tibetan and Sanskrit—from which quotations appear in the text. Concludes that there were two texts of Sūtrasamuccaya, one by Santideva and the other by Nagarjuna, and that Santideva regarded the work of Nagarjuna as of great importance and recommended its more careful study than that of his own.

Banerji-Sastri, A.—[The Blue Grove] by W. G. Archer, London, 1940. See ABIHI. III, No. 946. [746]

"This intriguing title marks probably the first attempt to render the poetry of the Uraons with an eye of its ultimate ethnological significance. The Dance poems, Cultivation poems, Marriage poems and Dialogues, Omens and Riddles of the Uraons have been collected tract by tract, assorted and critically appraised in striking contrast to the sporadic, reminiscent and unsifted observations of almost all the authors who have handled such themes up till now". JBORS. XXVII, pp. 543-548.

Banerji, Suresh Chandra—Text of Śūlapāṇi's Dolayātrāviveka. In No. 1434, pp. 53-62. [747]

The Dolayātrā-viveka, a hitherto unpublished work of Śūlapāṇi seems to be one of the earlier works of the author inasmuch as it contains no reference whatsoever to any one of his thirteen other Vivekas contrary to his usual practice in the other works. It is a very small book of only five or six pages purporting to be a manual for the guidance of priests in the performance of the great Spring Festival, called Dolayatra (the festival of swinging).

Baura, Birinchi Kumar—Assamese Literature. The P. E. N. Books, Indian Literature Series No. 1. Edited by Sophia Wadia. $7\frac{1}{2}'' \times 5''$, pp. iii + 102. International Book House, Bombay, 1941. [748]

"The history of Assam from the early folk-songs and nursery rhymes to the pre-Vaiṣṇava and the Vaiṣṇava period is well given and the account continued under Ahom patronage till 1834, i.e. the post Vaisnavite period. The modern period commences with 1826 by which time the struggle between the Vaiṣṇavite and Sakta forms of Hindu worship was reached hot. The Bengali had taken place of the original Assamese and the new renaissance brought about a revolution in Assam. The results are given in the last part of the work." S. Srikantaya QJMS. XXXII, p. 221.

B(ayart), J.—[Musings of Basava] by Basawanal and Iyengar, Mangalore. 1940. See ABIHI. III, No. 1413, [749]

"Historical and literary introduction to Basava, some 80 of his most typical vachanas, to which are added a few samples from the Rapsodies of Sister Mahadevi..... . The introduction is particularly instructive and the whole booklet is well suited as a first invitation to one of India's most spontaneous bhaktas. NR. XIII, p. 264.

Berwalla, K. S. Ed.—रामारण्य माहात्म्यम् (Sanskrit-Gujarati text). Crown 16mo, pp. 99, Bhagwati Printing Press, Bombay, 1941. [750]

Bharati, S. S.—Literature and Drama : Tamil. In No. 1455, pp. 505-512. [751]

Bharatiar, Suddhananda—Delight of Tirukkural. (Tamil text). pp. 274, 2 plates. Anbunilayam, Ramachandrapuram, 1941. [752]

Bhat, M. Mariappa—Āndayya. (Kannada text), AOR. VI, Pt. 1. [753]

Āndayya's famous work Kubbigara Rava has been critically examined. In it Andayya has performed a marvellous feat by creating a masterpiece of Kannada literature out of the dry Puranic episode of Śiva-Kama Battle. Characterisation, situations, conversations and descriptions have been accomplished with a consummate skill. The excellence of the work lies in the fact that the poet has pressed into service only Desya and some Tadbhava words and with perfect ease has sung, in an inimitable style, so as to be understood and appreciated by one and all.

— Turning points of Kannada Literature. AOR. V, Pt. 2. [754]

An attempt to show briefly how the flow of the current of Kannada Literature, beginning from an inexplicable dim source, continued its course, and took various natural 'turns,' at different stages, thereby adjusting itself to the changing environments and reflecting the religious, social and political tendencies.

Discusses some works of Bṛhaspatimiśra who is also known by his title Rāyamukuṭa, and tries to assign the dates.

— Who wrote the Bhāṣāpariccheda? IHQ. XVII, pp. 241-244. [756]

Binyon, Lawrence—Śakuntala. Prepared for the English Stage, by K. N. Das Gupta. Macmillan & Co., London, 1941 (?) [757]

The translation of Śakuntala done by Lawrence Binyon in 1920, has been reissued.

Corelli, Mario E. Ed.—Sekoddesaṭīkā of Nadapada (Nāropā). Being a Commentary of the Sekoddeśa Section of the Kālacakra Tantra. The Sanskrit text edited for the first time with an Introduction in English. 9¾" x 6", pp. 35 + 76. Gaekwad's Oriental Series No. 90, Oriental Institute, Baroda, 1941. [758]

"In spite of its title the Sekoddesaṭīkā (a commentary of the treatise on the tāntric baptism) is not only an explanation. It contains many important details on tāntric rituals and gives many enlightening interpretations of the underlying theories. The fundamentals of the Vajrayāna are mythical, the development of the doctrine is concealed under allegoric and abstruse expressions. In the Sekoddesaṭīkā and similar works a clear distinction is always drawn between the outer (bāhya) and the inner (adhyātmika) sense, the first being the literal meaning of the words, and the second the key of the occult doctrine on which all the system is founded". Introduction.

Chakravarty, Nagendranath—[The Number of Rasas] by V. Raghavan, Adyar, 1940. See ABIHI. III, No. 1042. [759]

".... the author has not only analysed and explained the all-pervasiveness of rasas and showed the process of their evolution, but also the reverse process of synthesis has been explained and by this process he has arrived at one rasa as the rasa of the cardinal principle in life and literature." VBQ. VI, pp. 377-378.

Chakravarti, S. N., and Goswami, D.—Śrī-Hastamuktāvalī. JARS. VIII, Pt. 2, pp. 62-66; Pt. 3, pp. 97-102; Pt. 4, pp. 127-129. [760]

Text and translation into English. A treatise on handposes and contains a Sanskrit text in verse and a translation in old Assamese prose.

Chaudhuri, Jatindra Bimal, Ed.—Dvārakā-Pattala by Binabāyi and Gaṅgāvākyāvalī by Viśvāsadevī, critically edited for the first time with English Introduction. English Translation of some select portions of the Dvārakāpattala, Notes, Appendices, etc. Contribution of Women to Sanskrit Literature, Vols. III and IV. pp. viii + xiv + 314 + 136 + 2 + 58 + 44. Calcutta, 1940. [761]

"Dr. Chaudhuri publishes these two works as types of contribution made by women to Purānic Ritual and Smṛti respectively. In the foreword Dr. Blagden rightly remarks that apart from the intrinsic merit of the series, it is essential that the literary works of Indian women should be brought to the notice of scholars in other parts of the world. . . Dr. Chaudhuri has prepared the edition of the Dvārakā-Pattala from a unique MS. and that of the Gaṅgā-vākyāvalī mainly from three MSS., seven other MSS. have been consulted occasionally. . . . The variant readings are given in footnotes or Appendix I. The Dvārakā-pattala and the Gaṅgāvākyāvalī contain about 2000 quotations, from over a hundred works including the Vedic Saṃhitās, the Rāmāyaṇa, and the Mahābhārata, the eighteen Mahāpūrāṇas and some Upapūrāṇas, the Encyclopaedic Nibandhas and the like. Almost all these quotations have been traced by the editor to their sources, some of which are only available in manuscript form." Amarendra Thakur, IHQ. XVII, pp. 265-267.

"The two volumes under review are the works of two women writers, one flourishing in the West and the other in the North-East of India. Both were queens and chief queens too, and took up two similar subjects for works, the former a sthanamahatmya, or the Dvārakāmahatmya, and the latter a nadimahatmya or the Gāngāmahatmya. Both these volumes have been edited by Dr. Chaudhuri in his usual scholarly and scrupulous manner. The emendations suggested are very happy and difficulties in reading have been solved in footnotes and in appendices. Almost all the quotations have been traced to their sources. The critical apparatus is complete. The Bibliography is complete and really informative". Kokileswar Sastri, TMR. LXX, pp. 181-182.

Chaudhuri, Jatindra Bimal, Ed.—The Hamsa-Dūta of Vāmana Bhaṭṭa Bāṇa. pp. 45 + 28 + 39. Pub.: Author, Calcutta, 1941. [762]

The author's introduction in English contains several valuable information not only of Vāmana Bhaṭṭa Bāṇa and his literary achievements, but also on other such dūta-kāvyas known to exist in Sanskrit Literature. The Hamsa Dūta which is here edited for the first time, is an important kāvya, for it contains much information of topographical interest.

— The Candra-Dūtā-Kāvya of Jambū Kavi. TMR. LXX, pp. 158-161. [763]

Deals with an unpublished Dūta-Kāvya, called Candra-Dūta, by Jambū Nāga Kavi. This work is important from two points of view, chronological and rhetorical. Chronologically, it is an earlier work than Dhoyi's Pavana-dūta, generally believed to be the earliest extant Dūta-Kāvya in imitation of the Megha-dūta.

— The Contribution of Women to Sanskrit Literature. Vol. II Sanskrit Poetesses, Part B. Vaidyanatha-prasada-prasasti, attributed to Devakumarika and Santana-Gopala-kavya by Lakṣmi Rajni. With Introduction in English Notes, etc. 7" x 4 3/4". Pub.: Author, Calcutta, 1940. [764]

"In the Introduction to this volume Dr. Chaudhuri deals with the works of several Sanskrit poetesses, viz., Dēvakumārikā, Lakṣmi Rājñi, Gaṅgādēvi, Jayanti Mādhurāvāni, Rāmabhadramba and Tirumalamba. There is no reason to doubt about the genuineness of the authorships except in the first case, i.e., in the case of Dēvakumārikā. Dr. Chaudhuri rightly adduces reasons both for and against the attribution of the Vaidyanatha-prasada-prasasti to Dēvakumārikā and makes it clear that his object in editing the inscription in the volume is to make these facts accessible to scholars in their original form so that further discovery of material may throw new light on the point at issue.

The introduction also throws much light upon the cultural and political history of Southern India, particularly of Vijayanagara and Tanjore All the Appendices and the Indices are very useful. Appendix I of the Ranas of Mewar relating to Canton I of the Vaidyanatha-prasada-praśasti is particularly helpful for a comparative study of the available historical data". Kokileswar Sastri, TMR. LXXI, p. 78.

Chaudhuri, Jatindra Bimal Ed.—The Contribution of Women to Sanskrit Literature. Sanskrit Poetesses, Vol. II, Part A (Select Verses). With a supplement on Prākrit Poetesses. Edited with critical notes, etc. English Translation and Introduction by Dr. Roma Chaudhuri. Foreword by Dr. L. D. Barnett. 7" x 4 3/4", 2nd Edn. Pub. : Author, Calcutta, 1941. [765]

"In this edition Dr. Mrs. Chaudhuri deals in the Introduction not only with Sanskrit and Prākrit Poetesses but also with the Female Vedic seers and Buddhist theories. She compares these various groups of Indian Poetesses and throws much light upon their respective trends of thought and style. In this edition it is further shown that out of 140 Sanskrit verses collected here the authorship of only fourteen of them may be disputed. All the other verses are found in a large number of MSS. of anthological and rhetorical works assigned to the same Poetesses as in this work and there is no scope for any doubt about their authorship. The text is mostly prepared from a large number of MSS., deposited in various Libraries in India and abroad. Some exceptionally valuable MSS., have been used in this connection. MSS. in Southern India scripts have been usefully utilised. One may imagine what a huge number of MSS. Dr. Chaudhuri had to wade through in order to find out the several MSS., that ultimately proved useful to him. In his usually thorough manner Dr. Chaudhuri has published this edition. His critical notes are exhaustive and useful. The translation is faithful and accurate. The elucidation of knotty parts of the verses, the exposition of doubtful entendres, the identification of ancient names etc., make the third part of the book a valuable contribution. The Appendices enhance the importance of the book and the Bibliography is a mine of information." Amareswar Thakur IHQ. XVII, p. 529.

— Padyāmṛta-taraiginī by Haribhāskara. Pub. : Ed., cxxi + 135. Calcutta, 1941. [766]

Sanskrit anthology. Contains 300 stanzas, out of which 112 are given anonymously and the rest are ascribed to 44 different poets. This critical edition is based on six MSS., belonging to the Bandharkar Or. Res. Institute, Poona. The introduction gives detailed information about the date and works of the author Haribhāskara and also of other authors quoted in the anthology.

Chaudhuri, Jatindra Bimal, Ed.—The Bhramara-Dūta-kāvya of Rudranyāya Pancānana (Sanskrit text). Edited for the first time with English introduction and appendices. Pub.: Author, Calcutta, 1941. [767]

This volume completes the text of the work. The MSS., utilised for this volume are the same as those that have been indicated in the Preface to the first volume.

— Vyavahāraśiromāṇi of Nārāyaṇa. AOR. V, Pt. 1, 28 pages. (Sanskrit text). [769]

The Vyavahāraśiromāṇi of Nārāyaṇa is a short but important treatise on the judicial law of the ancient Hindus. The authoritativeness of the work may be inferred from the fact that the author was a pupil of Vijnaneśvara. The author of the Mitākṣara, the famous commentary on the Yājnavalkya Smṛti. Narayana styles himself as a pupil of Vijnanesvara in the colophon.

Dandekar, V. P.—Literature and Drama: Marathi. In No. 1455, pp. 498–504. [770]

Dave, Kanaiyalal Bhaishanker—Mahākavi Bhāravi anē tēno Gujarāt Sāthē Sambandha. (Gujarati text). SFGST. Pt. 3, pp. 303–307. [771]

The Great poet Bhāravi's connection with Gujarat. Shows that the Sanskrit Poet Bhāravi who is believed to have been a South Indian originally came from Anantapur, the modern Vadanagar in North Gujarat.

Dave, Urmila—Nāndī in Theory. IHQ. XVII, pp. 359–369. [772]

Sanskrit dramas commence with a stanza or stanzas called nāndī, which is followed by the prelude. The writer explains the use and significance of nāndī.

De, S. K.—[The Śilappadikāram or The Lay of the Anklet] by V. R. Ramachandra Dikshitar, 1939. See ABIHI. II, No. 780. [773]

“That it is one of the most valuable of the extant Sangam works is beyond all doubt. In the learned introduction there is a discussion of all relevant questions regarding the date of the work (which is approximately to the second century A. D.), its varied features, its place in Sangam literature, its importance as a literary, social, historical and religious documents, and the conditions under which it was produced. The translation has the merit of bringing before scholars, not familiar with Tamil, an extremely interesting South Indian masterpiece in a readable form, but it also furnishes to non-Tamil scholars an opportunity of utilising it as a source-book for historical, sociological and other purposes... In every way it is worthy of the reputation of the scholar whose contributions to the study of South Indian history are already well known”. TMR. LXIX, p. 85.

Deshmukh, Madhav Gopal—Marathiche Sahitya-Shastra (From Jnyaneshwara to Ramdas). Marathi text. Crown 8vo. pp. 295. Ultamshloka Mandal, Umardked (Berar), 1941. [780]

An investigation of the principles of Poetics in Maharashtra from Jnyaneshwar to Ramdas. Deals with the fundamental conceptions of the science of Poetics and then discusses the literary production of the chief Marathi poets of that period. Goes to the various theories of Sanskrit Rhetoric which give predominance to one or other of the elements of Rasa, Riti, Alamkara or Chamatkṛiti in the evaluation of poetic excellence and ends with the conclusion that Rasa being the main cause of poetic merit, the Marathi poets of this period must be given the credit for postulating that Bhakti or devotion was a Rasa—the tenth Rasa.

Deshmukh. M. G.—The Concept of Rekhā in Jnāneśvarī. NUJ. No. 7, pp. 80-84. [781]

Jnāneśvarī is an “exquisite work of art” in the realm of ancient Marathi Poetry. It is a poem, having the Bhagvadgītā for its theme and was composed in A.D. 1290 by Jnāneśvara. The writer here tries to interpret the term Rekhā found in the poem.

Devadhar, C. R.—The Arthaguna “Śleṣa”. In No. 1434, pp. 145–154. [785]

Studies the definition of Śleṣa as given by Vāmana, which he finds is a feature of plot-construction. Concludes that Arthaguṇa Śleṣa is no other than a peculiarity of plot-construction; it is a definite pattern and its repetition in Śūdraka's play is so frequent and so obvious as to justify Vāmana's remark that it is an outstanding characteristic of Śūdraka's plays.

— Balacarita: A Ramaic Play. ABORI. XXII, Pts. 3–4, pp. 288–292. [786]

Discusses the play Balacarita, ascribed to Bhāsa, and examines four citations to demonstrate that they deal with the life of Rāma. Disagrees with Dr. A. D. Pusalkar that the verse उत्साहातिशयं etc., given by Sagaranandin and Visvanatha belongs to the बालचरित ascribed to Bhāsa.

Devasthali, G. V.—The Anumiti-nirūpaṇam of Ramanārāyaṇa. In No. 1434 pp. 155–160. [787]

A study of Anumiti-nirūpaṇam,—a small work by Rāmanārāyaṇa who has therein tried to give an exposition of the Anumiti (One of the four pramāṇas) and also of the fallacies or the hetvābhāṣāḥ.

"Edition of the commentary of the R̥gveda by Mādhaba based on a single manuscript of the work deposited in the Adyar Library. Mādhaba the author of this commentary is quite different from his name-sake who was Veṅkatarāya's son and author of another commentary of the R̥gveda called R̥garthadīpikā. In the present edition of Mādhaba's R̥gvedavyākhyā the work has been printed exactly as it is found in the manuscript, which is full of many lacunae as well as errors." IHQ. XVII, p. 271.

— [The Number of Rasas] by V. Raghavan, Madras, 1940. See ABIHI. III, No. 1043. [797]

"Dr. Raghavan has very diligently collected and discussed materials to show the evolution of the rasa school of ancient Indian literary criticism. As this collection has been pretty well exhaustive and includes quotations from some works hitherto unpublished. The present work will be of great help to a critical student of the history of ancient Indian literary criticism." IHQ. p. 528.

Gode, P. K.—Guṇapatākā. IHQ. XVII, pp. 82-86. [798]

Gives some references to a work called Guṇapatākā and indicates the chronology of the references which he says, may prove the existence of the work for a period of at least 500 years, if not more.

— A Topical Analysis of the Bhojanakutūhala. A work on Dietetics, Composed by Raghunātha, Between A. D. 1675 and 1700. ABORI. XXII, Pts. 3-4, pp. 254-263.

Gives the topics of the treatise as found in the MS. (No. 594 of the Government MSS. Library at the Bhandarkar Or. Res. Institute, Poona), of Bhojanakutūhala of Raghunātha.

— The Historical Background of the Cimani-Carita. A Romantic Love-Poem by a pupil of Bhaṭṭoji Dīkṣita dealing with the love of the Daughter-in-law of Allāh Vardī Khān Turkmān. (Between A. D. 1606-1659). PO. VI, pp. 149-158. [800]

Records some information about the household affairs of Allāhvardī Khān as revealed in a Sanskrit poem called the Cimani-carita, composed by Nilakanṭha Śukla in A. D. 1656, a pupil of Bhaṭṭoji Dīkṣita.

Cimani was the daughter of the elder brother of Allāhvardī Khān, and at the same time his daughter-in-law, being the wife of his eldest son. Her romantic love with Dayadēva Sarma is the theme of the Poem.

Johnson, E. H.—[Jaṭāśimhanandi's Varāṅga-caritra] Edited by A. N. Upadhye, Bombay, 1938. See ABIHI. II, No. 656. [810]
"Contains a hitherto unknown dharmakathā, attributed on fairly good evidence to Jaṭā-Siṁhanandi and assigned to the close of the seventh century A. D. The text rests on two MSS., which, though old, are defective, and the editor has done his best to produce a readable version by putting forward a number of conjectural amendments, most of which are acceptable; as they are relegated to the notes, scholars will have no difficulty in improving on them, if they can. The work is written in a semi-kāvya style, which, as the editor points out, has been far more influenced by Aśvaghoṣa than by the later poets, thus suggesting, like the sculpture of Amaravati and Nāgārjunakonda, the popularity of the Buddhist poet in Southern India". JRAS, 1941, pp. 170-171.

Jois, Hullur Srinivasa,—Kumāra Rāmana Sāngatyagaṇu (Kannada text). KSPP. XXVI, pp. 66-68. [811]

A broad review of patriotic poetry of the Mahārāshṭra poets.

Karmarkar, R. D. Ed.—मुद्राराशसम् (Sanskrit-English text). Demy 8vo. pp. 450. Pub.: Editor, Aryabhushan Press, Poona, 1941. [817]

“Unlike the other plays in Sanskrit, this deals with diplomacy and politics to the entire exclusion of love, without having a single female character, a fact which might appear almost impossible to believe. The style of the poet is also direct and vigorous keeping with the dignity of the subject-matter that is portrayed. The drama deals with the events that happened during the year immediately after the defeat of the Nandas and the installation of Chandragupta Maurya as Emperor. The interest of the play centres round the theme of winning over of Rākṣasa, a capable minister of the Nandas, who remained faithful to them even after their defeat by Cānakya, a clear-headed, self-confident, intriguing politician, who is responsible for Chandragupta Maurya’s accession to the throne”. QJMS. XXXII, pp. 240-242.

Kashyap, Mohanlal—Rakshabandhan and other Poems. With a Foreword by Nicholas Roerich. $7'' \times 4\frac{3}{4}''$, pp. ii + 22. International Book House, Bombay, 1941. [818]

Khan, Ghulam Mustafa—Khākī: An Unknown Mystic Poet of Urdu. NUJ. No. 7, pp. 85-95. [820]

Discusses the only work of Khākī, the mystic poet of Urdu, and attempts to prove that the identification of this poet by Maulana Abdul Hai with one mentioned in Mir Hasan's Tadhkira is not correct.

Kizhkanakku, Padinen—Padinen Kizhkanakku, Pt. 1. (Tamil text). pp. 712, South Indian S. S. W. Society, Tinnevelly, 1941. [821]

A collection of eighteen poems in Tamil dealing with the aims of life, from Tirukkural, Naladtar, Namabikanikai, Nanarpathu, etc.

Konow, Sten, Ed.—A Medical Text in Khotanese. Avhandlinger utgitt av Det Norske Videnskaps-Akadem i Oslo, 1941. [822]

"Professor Konow has taken the second text published in facsimile in Codices Khotanenses (1938) and excerpted the Khotanese part of it. He has put aside the Sanskrit part, which he considers extremely corrupt (p. 6), although he has made considerable use of it in his interpretation An English translation and glossary are included".
H. W. Bailey, BSOS. X, p. 1021.

Krishnaiya, K. Rama, Ed.—Navanandcharitra (Telugu Text). pp. 284. University of Madras, Madras, 1941. [823]

A poem in dvipada metre composed by Gauranamatya, a poet of the 15th century. It is essentially a Saivite work describing the adventures on Nava Nadhas or Yogic Siddhas, the principal among them being Meenanadha, who is said to be the son of Śiva and Pārvati.

Krishnamacharya, Embar—The Suktumuktavali of Bhagadatta Jalhana. Gaekwad's Oriental Series No. LXXXII. Edited with an introduction in Sanskrit. Oriental Institute, Baroda, 1941 (?) [824]

This is one of the earliest anthological works in Sanskrit. The date of composition is definitely given in one of the concluding verses as 1179 S. E., or 1257 A. D. The name of the author, as recorded in the introductory portions of the work, is Jalhana, commander of the elephant troops of the Yadava Prince Kṛṣṇa. The concluding verses, however, refer to Bhanu or Bhaskara as the author, who is stated to have composed the work on behalf of Jalha.

Kshirsagar, P. G.—मराठी रंगदेवतेच्या स्मरणांतील शंभरवर्षा च्या मौजा, खंडपहिला (Marathi Text). Crown 16mo. pp. 40, Pub. : Author, Hanuman Press, Poona, 1941. [825]

Kunhan Raja C.—[Kamasavaho of Rama Pannivada,] by A. N. Upadhye, Bombay, 1940. See ABIHI. III, No. 1992. [826]

“For a critical edition of a work of the sort there is nothing to be described in this presentation. The identity of the author is yet a matter of controversy among scholars in Malabar. Some people take him as identical with the very popular Malayalam poet Kuncan Nambiyar and others regard him as his brother. The editor does not commit himself to any view on the matter.” BmV. V, Pt. I.

— Poetic Beauty. AOR. VI, Pt. 2, pp. 1-30. [827]

A study of what constitutes the essential elements in Sanskrit Alamkara. Concludes: “My whole thesis is that when we look at what has remained to us of the ancient civilisation in India, the lament of beauty and a sense of beauty are the most prominent feature that remains as enduring factors in their culture”.

— Prakriyāsarvasua : Taddhita, by Nārāyaṇa Bhaṭṭa. (Sanskrit text). With foreword and introduction in English. Index of Sutras, verses and words, etc. Madras University Sanskrit Series No. 15. 9½" × 6", pp. xxxii + 197 + 155. University of Madras, Madras, 1941. [828]

Nārāyaṇa Bhaṭṭa of Malabar, who lived over three hundred years ago, is now well known to sanskritists through the publication of some of his works. His Nārāyaṇīyam has been published in the Trivandrum Sanskrit Series as No. 18, and his Mānameyodaya has been published in the same series, as No. 19. The latter was published by Kunhan Raja in collaboration with S. S. Suryanarayana Sastri of the University of Madras in 1933 in the T. P. H. Series, with an English translation, Notes etc. The early portion of Prakriyāsarvasva has appeared in the Trivandrum Sanskrit Series as No. 106 in 1931 and the Unadi portion appeared in the Madras University Sanskrit Series as No. 7, Pt. 2 in 1933. Many of his Campu works are also available in print.

“The Taddhita portion now edited by Dr. Kunhan Raja, who brings to his work not only the critical acumen of the modern scholar but also the learning and accuracy of the ancient. The edition which contains a very learned introduction where problems connected with the author and the work are discussed by the editor in the truest academic spirit and the importance of the work is vividly brought out, is made exemplary by the appendices, indices and notes at the end”. S. Subramanya Sastri, BmV. V. Pt. 4, p. 200.

Kunhan, Raja, C.—Niruktavārtika: A Rare Work till now Undiscovered. AOR. V, Pt. 2, pp. 1-16. [829]

Points out the existence of a work called Niruktavārtika; some kind of explanation of the Nirukta of Yaska. It is not of the nature of the Vartika on the Sūtras of Pāṇini by Kātyāyana, says the author, but it must be in the nature of the Vartikas in the system of philosophy.

— Notes on Kālidāsa. AOR. V, Pt. 2, 40 pages; V, Pt. 1, 32 pages. [830]

Discusses at length the question of the Bharatavākyā in the Mālavikāgnimitra and alludes to Agnimitra in the works of Kālidāsa.

In the Bharatavākyā of the Mālavikāgnimitra there is a reference to the hero of the story. Can we conclude from this, says Dr. Kunhan Raja, that the drama as written during the life-time of the hero, namely the king Agnimitra? The usual answer to this question is in the negative; very few scholars accept the position that Kālidāsa, the author of the Mālavikāgnimitra was a contemporary of king Agnimitra. The problem of the date of Kālidāsa has been approached on the assumption that he was a contemporaray of Vikramaditya, and the only question that has been attempted is that of the identity of the Vikramaditya in whose court Kālidāsa spent his time.

Dr. Kunhan Raja tries to consider if the name of Agnimitra could find a place in the Bharatavakyā, if the drama had been written long after the time of Agnimitra. All the evidence, so far gathered by the learned author, tend to prove that the Mālavikāgnimitra was written by Kālidāsa during the reign of Agnimitra.

— Sāmavedasaiṣphitā. BmV. V, Pt. 2 (Serial). [831]

Gives the text of two commentaries on the Sāmavēda, one by Nārāyaṇa who belongs to about 6^o A.D., and the other by Bharatasvāmin, son of Nārāyaṇa, who belongs to the early fourteenth century.

— Sarvanukramani-Padya-Vivṛtti: A New Commentary on the Rgveda-sarvanukramani of Kātyāyana. AOR. V, Pt. 2, pp. 1-4. [832]

A few extracts from a commentary said to be somewhere in Malabar, a work of an author whose name is not known.

— Śrī Rāma and the Raghuvamśa. In No. 1434, pp. 356-361. [833]

Finds difficulty in accepting that Rāma was a great hero to Kālidāsa; he has also very great difficulty in believing that Kālidāsa had known the Rāmāyaṇa of Vālmiki.

Laddu, R. D., and Gore, N. A.—Panumacariya of Vimalasuri (Cantos 33-35). Text and English Translation. Crown, pp. ix + 63 + 63. Venus Book Stall, Poona, 1941. [834]

Misra, Padma—Dramas Based on Epic Plots. IC. VII, pp. 368-371. [843]

Points out the many drāmas composed in Bengal, which have been based on the stories from the Rāmāyaṇa and the Mahābhārata, which are not at all in keeping with the original epic stories, but are based more on imagination to present them to the people in the form best known to them.

— [The Number of Rasas] by V. Raghavan, Madras, 1940. See ABIHI. III, No. 1043. [844]

“The acceptance of Śānta introduced a new era, which marks the beginning of the increase in the number of Rasas. Varieties of the same Rasa were accepted as separate Rasas and the number became thirteen. Prominent among these Rasa-makers are Bhoja and Haripala, whose views are discussed by the author. The chapter on the synthesis of Rasas is very interesting as it clearly shows that the syncretisation was going on in this department also, as in other branches of the Indian studies and culture and reflects the Indian mentality of finding out unity in diversity.” IC. VII, pp. 378-379.

Mugali, R. S.—Campuvina Mula (Kannada text). KSPP. XXVI, pp. 69-75. [846]

Origin of Campu. Argues that the campu was in all likelihood a contribution of Kannada. At any rate the Kannada campu is not the result of any imitation. It has a very distinctive and independent personality.

Nair, P. Krishnan—Dhvanyāloka: Identity of authorship (Malayalam text). AOR. VI, Pt. 1, 18 pages. [847]

Evidence has been adduced from works like the Locana, Vyaktiviveka, Kāvyamimānsā and Abhnavabhārati to show that both the Kārikā and Vṛtti of the Dhvanyāloka are by Ānandavardhanācārya.

— Maṇipravālasvarūpam. AOR. V, Pt. 1, 12 pages, (Malayalam text). [848]

Discusses the nature and scope of Maṇipravāla composition defined by the author of Lilāttlakam and endeavours to clarify many issues raised in that connection by scholars.

— Prabhākara's Criticism on Dhvani; A Reply. (Malayalam text). AOR. V, Pt. 2. [849]

Refutes some of the criticism of Prabhākara's on the theory of Dhvani.

— Vallathol's Skill in the Use of Alankaras. AOR. V, Pt. 1, 13 pages, (Malayalam text). [850]

Calls attention to one aspect of Vallathol's poetry, viz., his skill in the use of Alankaras. The maxims of Ananda Vardhanacarya are explained showing how Vallathol strictly conforms to them.

Narahari, H. G.—The Date and Works of Naimiṣastha Rāmacandra. BmV. V, Pts. 1 and 2. [851]

The work is a short treatise on the shape and dimensions of sacred fire-places, sacrificial sheds etc. The writer discusses four manuscripts of the work, Nos. VII H. 36; XLI D. 61; XLI D. 62 and XLI D. 63 of the Adyar Library. The period of Ramacandra's literary activity falls between c. 1430 A. D., and 1460 A. D. He is known to have written the following works: Navakunjavidhi, Karmadīvīkā, Sāṅkhyāyana-ghyasiṣṭra-paddhati, Śukhaparīviṣṭavyākhyā, Śulvartika, Samarasāra, Yantraprakāśa with commentary Nādīparīkṣā.

Ojha, Gaurishankar Hirachand, and Guleri, C. S., Eds.—The Pr̥thvīrājavijaya of Jayānaka, with the Commentary of Jonaraja. $9\frac{1}{4}'' \times 5\frac{3}{4}''$, pp. 4 + 11 + 314. Vedic Yantralaya, Ajmer, 1941. [854]

The Pr̥thvīrājavijaya, doubtfully ascribed to Jayānaka who possibly belonged to Kashmir, is very valuable for the history of the Imperial Cāhamānas (Cauhāns) of Śākambhari (Sambhar) and Ajayameru (Ajmer). The work was apparently composed in the period A. D. 1191-92, the date of the first and second battles of Tarain, in order to immortalise the great victory of the Cāhamāna king Pr̥thvīrāja III (c. 1179-92) over the Muslim invader Muiz-uddin Muhammad bin Sam in the first battle of Tarain.

"The poor condition of the MS. has necessarily rendered the task of the editors extremely difficult. But Dr. Ojha and Pandit Guleri must be congratulated for the excellent work they have done as regards the text of the work. They have attempted to restore the text wherever possible with the help of the commentary and have also suggested emendations of the text and the commentary in many places. The viṣajānukramanī compiled by is also exhaustive and useful. It is however unfortunate that the editors have not dealt with the historical materials furnished by the poem by way of an introduction and have not appended an index to the volume".

"Like all Indian *kāvya*s (including the *dr̥śyakāvya*s) dealing with historical themes, the Pr̥thvīrājavijaya also contains an amount of unhistorical, imaginary or legendary elements. Cantos I-II dealing with the origin of the Cāhamāna dynasty, Canto IV introducing a Vidyādhara, Canto XI, verses 25-104 representing Pr̥thvīrāja as an incarnation of Rāmacandra and referring to his love for a lady who was Tilottamā in her previous birth, etc., apparently fall in the above category. But on comparison with the known facts of Cāhamāna history, it has been found that the poem contains a very considerable amount of historical truth. As was long ago pointed out by Buhler, the genealogy and general history of the Cahamanas as given in this work contradicts Cand's Pr̥thirāy-rāśo in every particular, but agree remarkably with epigraphic evidence. Cand's work may have had more "poetic" elements even in the original, but it appears to have received additions in succeeding ages". Dines Chandra Sircar, IHQ, XVIII, pp. 79-81.

"The birch-bark manuscript of this commentary historical kāvya was discovered first by Dr. G. Buhler, who, however, owing to its mutilated condition, despaired of the recovery of its reading. Dewan Bahadur Harbilas Sarda about 30 years ago made its contents first known to scholars in a paper (Proceedings ASB. 1873). At last, the eminent historian M. M. Gaurishankar Ojah and Pandit Chandradharji undertook the edition of the text of Pṛthvirājavijayam from one single MS. as a second has not been discovered till now. Panditji has in a learned preface in English discussed the probable date and the historical authenticity of this kāvya

It is a significant fact that towards the close of the Hindu period Kashmir was the home of Sanskrit learning and she supplied most of the literary brains to Western and Central India while Gauda and Magadha met the needs of Eastern India. We have a galaxy of Kashmirian poets of this period such as Bilhan, Kalhan, Dalhan, Chand, Jayanak, Jayaratha and Yonaraja. M. M. Ojah says "It is reasonable to suppose that the work must have been written to celebrate the great victory of Prithviraj over Shahab-ud-din Ghori in 1191 A.D. immediately after the event. But his defeat and assassination in 1193 A.D., probably drove the poet back to his home in Kashmir." It is doubtful whether the poet completed his work at all."

Parthasarathi, R. K.—A Leaf from Kālidāsa and Māgha.
JSVOI. II, Pt. 1, pp. 73-80. [859]

Sometimes, two different poets, great in their own way, treat the same topic in the course of their works, may be with a view to show to the literary world how the one can beat the other in his own ground. The writer shows how Māgha has scored over Kālidāsa by means of a bold imagination and powerful art of expression.

Pillai, A. Bhuvaram—Perundevanar. (Tamil text). JAU. XI, Pt. 2, pp. 144-148. [860]

The author has taken pains to determine the view-point of Perundevanar in the arrangement of the 400 stanzas dealing with Purana which he has collected.

Pillai, S. N. Kandiah—Kalittogai Vacanam (Tamil text). pp. 273. Ottrumai Office, Madras, 1941. [863]

A summary of the contents of the verses in Kalittogai, one of the ancient Tamil classics.

Pillai, S. Vaiyapuri—Rāmappaiyam Ammānai: A Historical Ballad. A Summary. AOR. VI, Pt. 2, pp. 1-11. [864]

The poem deals with Tirumalai Naick's war of A. D. 1637 against Saḍaikka Tēva II, alias Dalavāy Sētupati. The writer gives a summary.

Pillai, R. P. Sethu—Kambar and Kacciappar (Tamil text). AOR. VI, Pt. 2, pp. 1-25. [865]

Brings out the several points of resemblance between Kambaramayam and Kandapurānam. The central theme in both is the struggle between virtue and vice. Some of the most striking points of similarity in the narration of events and appendix gives parallel verses from the epics showing similarity in diction.

A short drama having Ravivarma, a Travancore king of 13th century as the hero.

Pisharoti, K. R.—Meghasandeśa: A Note. IHQ. XVII, 517. [868]

A short note pointing out a verse quoted in the Lilātilaka which forms a valuable confirmation of the old tradition, associating Kālidāsa with Vikrama.

Pusalkar, A. D.—The Problem of the Bālacarita. In No. 1434, pp. 339–341. [869]

While dealing with the date of Bhāsa, in his work Bhāsa, Lahore 1940. (See ABIII, II, No. 1034) the writer tried to show that the reference in Viśvanātha's Sāhityadarpana is to the Bālacarita as published in the Trivandrum Sanskrit Series, and that there is only one Bālacarita Nāṭaka which is represented by the printed edition. He now re-examines the question in detail in the light of the information supplied by Sagaranandin and other sources. His conclusion is still same viz., there is only one Bālacarita Nāṭaka identical with that published in the Trivandrum Series.

Qadir, Abdul—Literature and Drama: Urdu. In No. 1455, pp. 522–534. [870]

Radhakrishnam, E. P.—The Pañcapādikā Literature. PO. VI, pp. 57–73. [870 A]

Draws attention to the available literature in the three famous prasthānas, viz., Vārtikaprsthāna, Tikāprasthāna and the Bhāmatiprsthāna. The Pañcapādikāprasthāna, or Vivarānaprsthāna is one of the three schools of thought that have interpreted Śaṅkaraśāra's Bhāṣya on the Brahmasūtra in three different lines.

— A Few Works Entitled Tarkabhāṣā. PO. VI, pp. 181–117. [871]

Considers the available works with the title of Tarkabhāṣā and notes some relevant details.

Raghavan, V.—Minor Works Wrongly Ascribed to Ādi Śaṅkara. AOR. VI, Pt. 1, pp. 5–8. [872]

To show that the work Sarvavedānta Siddhānta Sārasamgraha or Vedānta Śastra Siddhāntasamgraha or Vedānta Sārasamgraha, is not the work of Ādi Śaṅkara.

Raghavan, V.—Some Appayya Dikṣitas. AOR. VI. Pt. 1, 4 pages. [873]

The author has spoken of Appayya Dikṣitas II and III, in a paper presented to the 10th All-India Oriental Conference (Tirupati), and it is published in the Proceedings of that Conference. It is with reference to Appayya III that the author is referring to that paper here.

Rajaratnam, G. P.—Namma Ratnatrayada Vinaya. (Kannada text). JKLA. Vol. 26, Pt. 1, pp. 40-55. [874]

Argues that the aggressive and almost insolent statements contained in the poetical works of Panna, Ranna and Janna known as the Ratnatrayas in Kannada literature about themselves and in praise of the excellence of their own work and as against others was the work of others who sometimes conducted literary feuds against each other and, perhaps, also in the name of their masters and of schools to which they belonged. This seems to have been taken up, later blindly as a convention.

Ramakrishnaiya, K.—Telugu Literature Outside the Telugu Country. AOR. V, Pt. 1 (1942-41) Telugu text. 38 pages. [875]

The Telugu literature outside the Telugu country which is dealt here, is the literature that developed in the Chola, Pandya, and Karnataka kingdoms of the South, under the patronage of the Naiks and Marathas and other rulers of those countries, their courtiers and commanders, who have chosen to cultivate and develop the Telugu literature even amidst Tamil and Kannada surroundings, thus perhaps justifying the statement of the Emperor Poet Krishnadevaraya, that "Telugu is the best of all vernaculars".

This article has been issued in a book form by the Madras University as Telugu Series No. 9, Madras, 1941.

Ramakrishniah, K. and Sastri, S. L. Eds.—Paratatvarasāyana by Iswara Phanibhatta, (Telugu text). Madras University Telugu Series No. 10. $9\frac{1}{2}'' \times 6\frac{1}{2}''$, pp. xii + 112. University of Madras, 1941. [876]

Consisting of five chapters, is one of the few Prabandhas in Telugu literature that have philosophy for their theme. Phanibhatta adopted the story of Harasanatkumara Samvada from the Mahābhārata and treated it in the usual Prabandha form in order to popularise the principles of Sankhya and Yoga as means to final liberation. The legendary content of the work tones down the abstract philosophical ideas contained in it.

Ramasarma, V.—The Vṛitti in Śabdamaṇidarpaṇa is not Kēśirāja's (Kannada text). JKLA. Vol. 26, Pt. 1, pp. 56-61. [877]

Argues that the gloss (Arthavṛitti) in the Śabdamaṇidarpaṇa cannot have come from the pen of Kēśirāja, the author of the Sūtras; but from some inferior student.

Rangachar, S.—On a stanza of the Mudrārākṣasa. IHQ. XVII, pp. 255-257. [878]

Discusses the stanza 6 of the first Act of Mudrārākṣasa:

Sarma, K. Madhava Krishna—Author of the Kalyāṇapurañjana Nāṭaka. PO. VI, pp. 188-189. [885]

Points out that the author of the drama is Śaṭhamarṣaṇa Bucci Veṅkaṭārya, who flourished in the Court of one Soma, son of Tirumala.

Sarma, K. Madhava Krishna—Rāmānanda the True Author of the Bhāṣyaratnaprabhā. QJMS. XXXII, Pt. 1, pp. 55-57. [886]

Gives reason to show why he believes that the work attributed to Govindānanda, seems to be really the work of his disciple Rāmānanda.

Sastri, C. Sankar Ram—Nilakantha-Vijaya of Nilakanta Dikshit. 2nd Edn. pp. 188, Madras, 1941 [887]

Sastri, M. P. L.—Bhoganātha: A Poet of the 14th Century. IHQ. XVII, pp. 393-397. [888]

Identifies Bhoganātha, writer of Kāvyas and Stotras, with Bhoga-nātha the composer of the Bittaragunte copperplate inscription (EL III, 23), and describes his works.

— Mukundānandabhbāṇa and its Author. NIA IV, Pt. 4, pp. 150-154. [889]

The Mukundānandabhbāṇa is a play of one Act in Sanskrit. Its author Kāśipati lived at the court of Nañjarāja of Mysore in the early part of the 18th century. Two other important works are known to have been written by him. One is named Śravayāmandīm, a commentary on Nañjarāja's Saṅgitagaṅgādhara, and the other is called Nayakalpatūrī, also a commentary on the Sabda portion of the famous Tattvacintāmāṇi of Gaṅgēśa Upādhyāya.

Sastri, S. Lakhshmipathi—A Critique on Nannichodadeva's Kumārasambhava (Telugu text). Madras University Telugu Series No. 6. 8½" x 6". pp. x + 208 + iv. Madras University, Madras, 1941. [890]

A critical study and appreciation of Nannichodadeva's Kumārasambhava. Investigates into the work in order to determine precisely about the exact time of Nannichodadeva, and concludes that he belonged to the 13th century A. D., and came after Nannaya.

Sastri, S. Subrahmanya and Kunhan Raja, C., Eds.—Uṣāniruddham: A Prākrit Poem in Four Cantos by Rāma Pāṇivāda. (Serial). BmV. V, Pt. 2. [891]

The work is a small poem written in Prākrit language by Rāma-pāṇivāda, a poet of Malabar, and supposed to have lived about two hundred years ago.

Sastri, S. K. Ramanatha—A Passage in the Dhvanyāloka. JSVOI. II, Pt. 1, pp. 81-84. [892]

Discusses the fundamental relation between the sentiment and its poetic expression. Concludes that for Ānandavardhana as for Kālidāsa, the origin of poetry is to be sought in the magnitude of the sentiments invoked; and this magnitude is indicated by both through the peculiar (ekaśeṣa) construction employed by them.

Sastri, S. K. Ramanatha—Ślokavārtikavyākhyā (Tātparyātikā) of Bhattombeka. Madras University Sanskrit Series No. 13. pp. li + 538. Madras University, Madras, 1940. [893]
Sanskrit text edited with foreword and introduction in English and Index of half-verses.

Sastri, V. A. R.—[The Number of Rasas] by Dr. V. Raghavan, Madras, 1940. See ABIHI. III, No. 1943. [894]

Upadhye, A. N.—Sricimdhakavvam of Kṛṣṇalilāśuka. BV. III, Pt. 1, pp. 60-76. [909]

Sricimdhakavvam (=Śricibnakāvya) is a Prakrit poem (still in manuscript) by Kṛṣṇalilāśuka known also as Kodaṇḍamangala or Vilvamaṅgala, who flourished at the close of the 13th century A. D. Kṛṣṇalilāśuka had composed the first eight cantos of the poem to which his pupil Durgaprasad Yati added four more, writing also a commentary in Sanskrit on the entire work. The word suri occurring in the last stanza of each of the twelve cantos of the work is responsible for its title Sricimdhakavvam. Written with the specific purpose of illustrating the rules of Vararuci's Prākṛtitupakāśā, the poem delineates events in the early life of Śri Kṛṣṇa. No definite proof is available as to whether this Vilvamaṅgala is identical with the author of the Kiṣṭhakorṇāmṛta and the Puruṣakāra.

— Uṣāṇiruddham: A Prākṛit Kāvya. JUR. X, Pt. 2, pp. 156-194. [910]

Presents the text of Uṣāṇiruddham, based on the transcript made from the MS. No. 2817 belonging to the Government Oriental MSS. Library, Madras. Vijeskara, O. H. de A.—Buddhist Evidence for the Early Existence of Drama. IHQ. XVII, pp. 196-206. [911]

An attempt to prove that the evidence afforded by the Nikayas is of considerable importance for the problem of the evolution of drama in India, particularly for the history of the key-word Nāṭa and also Sobhanika, and, that the available evidence would take back its origin to at least the third or fourth century B. C., if they do not conclusively prove that there were dramatic spectacles of some kind, probably comedy in nuce, in the time of the Buddha himself.

Wariar, A. Govinda—King Rāghaya of the Amogharāghava-campū. IHQ. XVII, pp. 251-252. [912]

Discusses a Sanskrit campū named Amogha Rāghava written in the Śaka year 1221 (1299 A. D.). The work was composed by one Divakara.

Narrates the trend of events which followed the battle of Panipat and discusses the Maratha internal disputes; the political condition of Rajputana; the Maratha expedition to the North towards the close of 1765; the Abdali menace, leading ultimately to peace with Ari Sunghe.

— Peshwa Madhaw Rao I's Last Carnatic Expedition. JIH. XX, pp. 1-11 (after p. 136 of original paging of the Journal). [924]

Madhaw Rao I, led four expeditions to the Carnatic. (1) January-June 1762; (2) October 1763-June 1765; (3) October 1766-June 1767; (4) October 1769-June 1772. The writer deals with the history of the fourth expedition. The partial failure of the expedition, says the writer, was due to Trimbāk Rao who failed to exploit the situation arising out of the battle of Moti Talab. The Peshwa's fatal illness and the chronic financial difficulties of the Marathas furthered Haidar's course no less than his ingenuity and his disciplined troops.

— Peshwa Madhav Rao I, and the Nizam (1761-1763). JIH. XX, Pt. 2, pp. 181-191. [925]

Describes the invasion of the Peshwa's dominions by the Nizam and the events which followed.

Bauwens, M.—[The Gaikwads of Baroda: English Documents] by J. H. Gense and D. R. Banarji. Vol. V, Bombay, 1939. See ABIHI. II, No. 885. [926]

"In this volume the authors continue their scholarly publication of the State Documents relating to the Baroda affairs. The Masterly introduction, gives a sketch of the events covered by the documents, is very welcome". NR. XIII, p. 175.

Bhat, Bhaskar Vaman—Shivajichi Rajaniti. (Marathi text). Demy 8vo. pp. 7 + 436. Rajwade Samshodhan Mandal, Dhulia, 1941. [927]

Discusses the principles of Shivaji's policy. Tries to compare Shivaji's policy with ancient Indian policy, and concludes with great force and close reasoning that Shivaji followed the ancient ideal of a model king.

Deshpande, R. S. G. K. and Gupte, Y. B.—Six Letters from the More Family of Kandat (Satara). Marathi text. BISMQ. XXII, Pt. 1, pp. 269-272. [928]

EHR.—[Poona Residency Correspondence] by Raghbir Singh, Bombay, 1940. See ABIHI. III, No. 1187. [932]

The editor, Dr. Raghbir Singh, has contributed a well-informed and well-written Introduction. Malet, who afterwards had a very distinguished career in the Company's service, was at this time resident at the court of the Nawab of Cambay. As the editor observes, the letter book 'does not add much to our knowledge of the main course of events, nor does it in any way revolutionize our present point of view', but it was well worth publishing as illustrating the work and thoughts of a conscientious and able official, whose main outlook was that of an Englishman studying things with a view to finding out best to take advantage of the weakness and failings of the Indian powers". EHR. LVI, (Oct. 1941), p. 674.

Fernandes, Braz A.—[The Gaikwads of Baroda: English Documents] by J. H. Gense and D. R. Banarji. Vol. VI. Bombay, 1940. See ABIHI. III, No. 1120. [933]

The present volume opens with Sitaram's accession, and the Baroda-Bombay relations. The documents reveal a strong undercurrent of disruptive forces silently but effectively at work.....Documents dealing with the war with Sindia and the war with Holkar, occupy half the volume". JBHS. VI, pp. 122-123.

Ghorpade, B. B.—A Document on the Depredation committed in the pargana of Petlad. (Marathi text). BISMQ. XXII, Pt. 1, Supplement pages 2-6. [934]

— A Painting of Chhatrapati Pratapasimha (Marathi text). BISMQ. XXII, Pt. 1, p. 14. [939]

Hardas, Bal Shastri—Marathyancha Udayasta (Marathi text). Dharma Prasarak Sanestha Series. Crown 8vo. pp: 120. Dakshina-Murtimandir, Nagpur, 1941. [940]

Eight lectures delivered by the author at Nagpur on the subject which forms the title of the book have been collected together in this small volume. The writer investigates here the various causes mentioned by different writers as having contributed to the downfall of the Maratha power and he mentions two of them as having really brought about the tragic result, viz., the absence of the idea of a common nationality and the ignorance of the science of war.

The title of the book is misleading as the author has treated only the downfall and not the rise of the Marathas. There is nothing very much new or original in the book, though its treatment is logical and its language chaste.

Joshi, S. G.—Some Information about the Korade Family. BISMQ. XXI, Pt. 3, pp. 76-77. [941]

Sāmarājā (1608–1688) was member of a Brāhmin family who were family priests of the Bhonsles, and he was the foremost Marathi poet of his time. The essay is an attempt to determine critically the poet's literary greatness.

Pawar, A. G.—A Forgotten Naval Treaty Between the English and Raja Sambhaji's Government of Malwan 1739. In No. 1434, pp. 329–338. [959]

Gives a brief account of the causes and the conclusion of the treaty. The negotiations were concluded by Shivaji Sankar Pant, Raja Sambhaji's naval commander and governor of Malwan, with the President and Governor of Bombay. The treaty was made in Bombay on November 25, 1739.

Pawar, A. G.—Two Letters of Ramachandra Pant Amatya. BISMQ. XXII, Pt. 1, pp. 24-30. [960]

These are English translations of two Marathi papers from the Mackenzie Collection in the India Office Library, said to be written by Ramachandrapant Amatya. One of these letters is addressed to the Maratha King, Rajaram, who was at that time besieged at Jinji by the army of Zulfiqar-Khan. The other is addressed to the King's Pratinidhi, Prahlad Niraji, who too was besieged along with the King. Both the letters refer to the capture of Sambhaji and his son Shahu through the treachery of Kavi Kailash. The author re-reads these letters and discusses the events.

Pendse, Lalji—Dharma kin Kranti (Marathi text). Crown 16mo. pp. 67. Ramakrishna Printing Press, Bombay, 1941. [961]

Gives the reason for establishing a navy by Shivaji, and the subsequent history of the navy.

Rao, Vasant Dinanath—Historical Setting of a Grievous Episode: Tragedy of Mastani. In No. 1222, pp. 47-51. [969]

Presents a brief account of a tragic episode from the Maratha history—the romance of Bajirao I, and Mastani, as revealed by the records of the Peshwa period.

Rao, V. Raghavendra—A Note on the Panipat Disaster. HYJMU. I, Pt. 2, pp. 133-134. [970]

A short note to point out that the Peshwa Balaji Bajirao was not indifferent to the affairs of the north as it is usually believed. Gives reasons why Bajirao was not able to devote his full attention.

Roberts, P. E.—[English Records of Maratha History, Poona Residency Correspondence, Vol. VII, Poona Affairs, 1801-1810] Edited by G. S. Sardesai. Bombay, 1940. See ABIHI. III, No. 1181. [971]

The most interesting papers in the volume are those which illustrate the relations between the Peshwa and the nominal overlord, the Raja of Satara. Normally the pageant head of the confederacy was never allowed to leave the palace prison in which he was immured, though he was always treated with ceremonial honour and courtesy." EHR. LVI (October 1941) pp. 659-660.

Saletore, B. A.—Some Unknown Events in Venkoji's Career In No. 1222, pp. 39-43. [972]

Gives a few details relating to Raja Venkoji's activities after his usurpation of the throne of Tanjore. The remarks are based on contemporary literary and epigraphic evidence.

— The Naval Policy of the Marathas. NR. XIV, pp. 473-485. [973]

Attempts to prove that the Hindu monarchs of Vijayanagara were alive to the question of the maritime and naval needs of the times. Finds that from the earliest days of the establishment of the Maratha rāj, attention was paid to naval and maritime questions, and studies the problem from the point of view of the naval theory of the Marathas. Gives short account of the activities of the Maratha fleet. Concludes: "The main reason of the failure of the later Maratha rulers is not far to seek. The Peshwa had serious commitments on land; and in their eagerness to maintain their Empire they lost sight of the fact that some of its roots lay in the sea".

Sardesai, G. S.—Inter-Provincial Exchange of Culture During Maratha Times. TMR. LXIX, pp. 514-519. [974]

Deals with poets and writers in Marathi and Sanskrit, confining himself to only one century of Maratha activity roughly from 1650 to 1750.

— An Unknown but Daring Project of King Sambhaji. In No. 1434, pp. 390-394. [975]

Points out two curious Sanskrit letters written by King Sambhaji to Ramsingh of Amber in 1683 mentioning his daring project of deposing Aurangzeb, and seeking Ramsingh's co-operation for accomplishing the project.

— Marathyanchya Rajyakatha. (Marathi text). Demy 8vo. pp. 207. K. B. Dhavale, Bombay, 1941. [976]

Twenty-one stories, dialogues and events from Maratha history. The stories are stringed up so as to present a complete chronological picture of the Maratha Empire from the earliest times of Shivaji, right up to the hoisting of the British flag on Shanwarwada, the royal residence of the Peshwas in Poona.

— English Records of Maratha History: Poona Residency Correspondence, Vol. 7: Poona Affairs. (1801-1810), Close's Embassy. $8\frac{1}{2}'' \times 6''$, pp. xxxiii + 579, 1 plate. Government Central Press, Bombay, 1940. [977]

"Covers the period from 1801 to 1810 during which Colonel Close had been—except for short interval of absence on other duty—the Resident at the Court of Baji Rao II. It was during this period that the Subsidiary Alliance was riveted on the Maratha State and its results, good and bad, on the most vigorous Indian power, became noticeable.....Poor Baji Rao II, is seen struggling helplessly against the python of British Imperialism unaided by the powerful vassals, who realised too late what the Maratha nation had lost through its own folly." K. R. Quanungo, TMR. LXX, pp. 582-583.

Sarkar, Jadunath—Sources of Maratha History. JUB. X, Pt. 1, pp. 1-22. [978]

Describes the Persian sources for Maratha History. Maratha historical material and the problems of Maratha historiography.

Sarkar, Jadhunath—Two Historical Letters of the Court Asaf Jah I. IsC. XV, pp. 341-348. [979]

Gives text and translation of two letters written by Asaf Jah I: (1) To Swai Jai Singh II, of Jaipur, and (2) To Abun Nabi Khan. The first is regarding the Maratha raids in Gujarat and Malwa, in which he informs Jai Singh the part he played in the attempt to punish Sahu for his depredations, with the aid of Sambhaji of Kolhapur. The second letter is regarding the siege of Baroda by Bajirao, and how he surprised the Maratha army and made it fly in disorder.

Sen, Surendra Nath—Early Career of Kanhoji Angria and Other Papers. $8\frac{3}{4}'' \times 5\frac{1}{2}''$, pp. xi + 225. University of Calcutta, 1941. [980]

"This volume contains 19 valuable papers based on unpublished sources not easily accessible to the average reader. These papers were written at different times during the last ten years and published in various journals. Of these, 8 pages deal with various topics connected with the history of the Marathas, on which the author is a recognised authority. He gives us many interesting details about the Maratha Navy collected from Portuguese and Dutch sources. In his note on the Annexation of Jawli, he gives a new interpretation of that rather notorious event in Shivaji's career. In the Portuguese account of Haidar Ali he furnished us with interesting details about the early career of the famous Mysore chief. Five papers are devoted to the history of Bengal.....The volume concludes with two ably written papers on some problems of mediaeval and modern history".

Shejwalkar, T. S.—Is the Ājnā patra of Ramachandrapant Amātya Spurious? In No. 1434, pp. 447-455. [981]

Sir Jadhunath Sarkar has pronounced the Ājnā-patra of Ramachandrapant as "not a genuine document by a contemporary of Shivaji". The writer here discusses the subject and proves that Ramachandra Amatya was a contemporary of four successive sovereigns, Shivaji, Sambhaji, Rajaram and his son Shivaji II. The genuineness of the Ājnā-patra is proved by internal evidence.

— The Bengal Episode in Maratha History. BDCRI. II, Pts. 3-4, pp. 361-382. [982]

Tries to show that the Maratha invasion of Bengal was not so rapacious in character as is generally regarded.

— Nāga Worship in the Kuṣāṇa Period. JIH. XX, Pt. 2, pp. 137-143. [1003]

Examines epigraphic records of the Kuṣāṇa period in which private dedications are mentioned and finds many of them are of Nāga worshippers. Follows by a short study of Nāga worship.

Ruben, Walter—On Garuḍa. JBORS. XXVII, pp. 485-520. [1004]

"Garuḍa, the bird of Viṣṇu and the enemy of the snakes is well-known but not every one keeps in mind how complicated is the history of this bird. In his careful analysis of the Suparnadhyaya, Charpentier has collected much valuable material but he has not sufficiently realised that under the cover of this name one finds a variety of items and types of birds which can and must be distinguished". The writer identifies several variety of birds, and does not believe that India was the birth-place of these types of birds or their only place of development. But India, he says, can be called a splendid focus where the topics and fairy tales of the East and West got their marvellous forms. Arabia, Greece, Babylonia, Iran, Tibet and Ceram are held as meeting places of different types of these birds".

Sayyed, A. Khaki—Shrī Nishkalanki Narayanani Bhall (Gujarati text). Crown, pp. 56. Nav Prabhat Printing Press, Ahmedabad. [1005]

An account of the descent of Nishkalanki Narayan from Vedic and Puranic deities.

Sorata, W.—Who is Śiva? M-B. Vol. 49, Pt. 4, pp. 149–153. [1007]

Discusses the subject and concludes that Śiva was not a god of the ancient Āryans but of the primitive black people of India. Śiva has been admitted into the Āryan Pantheon and that he is recognised by the Indian people as an "individual living deity".

Thomas, P.—Epics, Myths and Legends of India. A Comprehensive Survey of the Sacred Lore of the Hindus and Buddhists. 11" × 8½", pp. 132, plates and illus. D. B. Taraporevala & Sons, Bombay, 1941. [1008]

The main attempt of the author is confined to giving a faithful representation of the mythological system of the Hindus and Buddhists. Efforts are made to elucidate obscure points.

Myths and Fables

Agrawala, V. S.—Māluta Jātaka in Folklore. See No. 190.

Balaratnam L. K.—The Omens and the Evil-Eye. NR. XIII, pp. 428–436. [1009]

A study of superstitions and beliefs in occult influences in South India. Concludes: "Every custom now in vogue among the advanced society of men can be traced back to primitive times, in a manner rather surprising. Many popular beliefs can be recognised in the myths and legends of the rudest tribes of the world."

Bhagwat, (Miss) A. R.—Maharashtrian Folk-Songs on the Gring-Mill (Songs Embodying Sentiments). JUB. X. Pt. 1, pp. 134-186. [1010]

Discusses the Ovi metre of Mahārashtrian songs and transliteration and translation of a few songs which give an idea of the sentiments and feelings of women towards different relatives and colleagues.

Bhattacharya, Bhabatosh—Khañjana-dārśana. In No. 1434, pp. 67-69. [1011]

Khañjana-darśana, or sight of the bird Khañjana, is a peculiar Hindu omen, recorded in Candesvera's Kṛtyaratnākara, a mithilā digest of the 14th century. This omen is also recorded in Govindananda's Varṣakriyākaunudi and Raghunandana's Tithitattva, both belonging to the 16th century. The writer here gives a synopsis of the treatment in the Kṛtyaratnākara.

Chaplin, (Mrs.) Dorothea—Abbots Bromley in a Mythological Light. MII. XXI, pp. 80-91. [1012]

Points out the similarity of Druidic and Brahmanical teaching of the legend.

Chaudhuri, Nanimadhab—The Sun as a Folk-God. MII. XXI pp. 1-14. [1013]

Finds that the popular or folk-worship of the sun in early literature as a concrete, personal divinity gives him the following attributes: he is the protector of cattle, curer of maladies, giver of food, remover of doubts. He is also connected with agriculture, marriage and increase.

Desai, B. I. Tr.—Yakshavarta ane Biji Kathao (Gujarati text). Crown 8vo. pp. 14, Gujarat Printing Press, Bombay, 1941. [1014]

A collection of dreams of the patients in the small Leper Refuge at Sanhrwachhaphar in the Mandla District of the Central Provinces. "They do not remember their dreams readily, but those recorded here will give some idea of the mental conflicts set up by leprosy."

Emeneau, M. B.—The Faithful Dog as Security for a Debt: A Companion to the Brahman and the Mongoose Story-Type. JAOS. Vol. 61, Pt. 1. pp. 1-17. [1016]

The story presented in this paper was recorded as a linguistic text during field-work in South India in 1935-8. The story is that of the dog which was handed over by its owner to a new owner in security for a loan. The dog does for its new owner a great service, and is released to return to its original owner, the debt being considered cancelled by the great service done by the dog. The original owner, without enquiry or due consideration, thought the dog was unfaithful and killed it. There was a great grief in consequence when the true facts were learned. In three versions of the story the old owner kills himself in remorse. Differences of detail are discussed.

Figueiredo, Propacia Correia Afonso De—No Jardim da infancia: Os Tapa-Meninos na India Portuguesa. (Portuguese text). BIVG. No. 49, pp. 43-54. [1017]

A short study of certain words used by elders to frighten children, in Portuguese India.

Numismatics

Agarwal, J. K.—Some New Varieties of Gupta Coinage. JNSI. III, Pt. 2, pp. 83-86. [1033]

Describes (1) A vareity of Samudragupta's gold coin of Archer type, which has a crescent over the head of the King. This position of the crescent has not been noticed so far on any Gupta coins. (2) A gold coin of Kumaragupta I, Horseman type, having the figure of the peacock, instead of in a dancing position, with tail held down.

Agrawala, Vasudeva S.—Some Notes on New Pāñchāla Coins. JNSI. III, Pt. 2, pp. 79-82. [1034]

(1) Describes a coin in which the king's name can be read as Prajāpatimitra, and places this king somewhere near Jayagupta and Indramitra.

(2) Describes a coin of Indramitra from the Lucknow Museum which is not given in the British Museum Catalogue.

(3) Identifies the female deity on the coin of Bhadraghoshha as Bhadrā the spouse of Vaiśravaṇa.

Altekar, A. S.—The Date and Attribution of the Coins of Vishṇugupta. JNSI. III, Pt. 1, pp. 57-59. [1035]

Discusses the Archer type gold coins with the letters Vi and shy written perpendicularly under the arms of the standing king, and thinks they should be attributed to king Vishnugupta of the later Gupta dynasty of Magadha. The date of Vishnugupta is given as c. 480 A. D.

— The Date and Attribution of the Coins of Vishnugupta: A Correction. JNSI. III. Pt. 2, pp. 103-104. [1036]

In his article in JNSI. III, Pt. 1, pp. 57-59, he assigned a certain coin to Vishnugupta of the later Gupta dynasty, but on a discovery of a seal of Krishnadeva, he now thinks the coin is not of Vishnugupta of the later Gupta dynasty, but of Vishnugupta the son of Kumaragupta II.

Burn, Sir Richard—The Coronation Medal of the First King of Oudh. JNSI. III, Pt. 2, pp. 112–114. [1037]

A medal of Ghazi-ud-din Haidar was published by Mr. Nelson Right in the Numismatic Supplement of the Journal of the Asiatic Society of Bengal. The writer now brings together references published previously and corrects Mr. Wright's reading of the inscription.

— Papers about the Poona Mint (Marathi text). BISMQ. XXI, Pt. 3, pp. 251–255. [1041]

Refers to the minting of Ikkeri hons, gold muhars of various types, Ankushi and Sri sikka rupees, the difficulties therein owing to the circulation of their baser types already current, the expenditure incurred for their minting, their weight, the percentage of alloy, the government share for the prerogative of minting, etc.

Fernandes, Braz A.—Indo-Portuguese Coins: Silver Issues of Diu. JNSI. III, Pt. 2, pp. 115–124, 2 plates. [1042]

Gives a brief history of the opening of mint in Diu; describes the silver issues of the mint from 1686 to 1859, and gives the five types of cross found on the Indo-Portuguese coins.

Hodivala, S. H.—The coins of Shamsu-d-din Mahmud Shah. JNSI. III, Pt. 2, pp. 105–108. [1043]

Describes a billon coin of Shamsu-d-din, and discusses the assassination-plot advanced by Sir Walsley Haig, with which, he does not agree.

Khare, G. H.—A New Type of Padmaṭaṅka. JNSI. III, Pt. 1, pp. 53-55. [1044]

Discusses gold Padma-ṭaṅka from the Bhor State treasury.

Mirashi, V. V.—The Coins of the Kalachuris. JNSI. III, Pt. 1, pp. 21-39, 1 plate. [1045]

A hoard of 82 coins were found in the village of Devalānā in the Bāglān tālukā of the Nāsik District in 1870. These coins described by Bhau Dagi in JBBRAS. XXI (1876). All coins are of silver, round in shape. Next they were considered by General Alexander Cunningham in Arch. Sur. of India IX. (1879). They were also described by Fleet in 1885 and by Rapson in 1897. The writer reconsiders them and disagrees with previous writers in some respect.

— A Gold Coin of Prāṇanārāyaṇa. JNSI. III, Pt. 2, pp. 93-97. [1046]

Describes a gold coin of Prāṇanārāyaṇa and concludes that Prāṇanārāyaṇa was the ruler of Kuch Bihar, and the Nepalese influence on the coin shows that it was struck to commemorate Prāṇanārāyaṇa's matrimonial alliance with the king of Nepal. He had married the sister of King Pratāpa of Nepal.

— A Ship-Type Coin of Yajña Sātakarṇi. JNSI. III, Pt. 1, pp. 43-45. [1046 A]

Misra, Umesa—Vijnānadīpikā of Padmapāda, Edited with a Running Commentary called Vivṛtti and Introduction and Summary in English. pp. 37 + 2 + 47, Allahabad, 1940. [1063]

Mookerjee, Satkari—[The Trisvabhāvanirdeśa of Vasubandhu: Sanskrit Text and Tibetan Version] by Sujit Kumar Mukhopadhyaya, 1940. [1063A]

"The Tibetan version on account of their extreme faithfulness and literalism do not render any appreciable service in the matter of interpretation of the philosophy. The translation into English, too, though carefully correct, is, taken by itself, not of much help in this regard. The truly helpful feature of the editor's work is the collection of parallel passages given in an appendix. But the real difficulty which confronts a student of philosophy lies in the looseness of the terminology and the poetic imagery employed in the text quoted. The terminology requires to be carefully defined so that the exact connotation of the terms can be fixed with logical precision."

JGIS. VIII, Pt. 2, pp. 120.

Naidu, P. S.—The Concept of Suggestion in Hindu Aesthetics. In No. 1434, pp. 294-301. [1064]

Poredi Dattatraya Dharmayya—Vedanta Kavya-Lahari, Parts 1 and 2, Laghu Gītartha-Bodha-Lahari. (Marathi text). [1068]

"Has attempted to bring out in Marathi the spirit of Vedanta devoid of its complexity. He has drawn attention to the different ways in which the one Truth manifests itself by illustrating it from the sayings of his own guru and from the teachings of great saints of Maharashtra like Gñanesvar and Tukaram. He has analysed the thoughts on Castes, Panca-mudra, Atma and others. The episodes on Visvamitra-Menaka, Namdev-Muktabai make delightful reading".

QJMS. XXXII, pp. 243-244.

Radhakrishnan, E. P.—Jñānaghana's Contribution to Advaita. ABORI. XXII, Pts. 3-4, pp. 186-201. [1069]

Deals with some of the salient features of the line of thought adopted by Jñānaghana, who, as an authoritative teacher of Advaita is sufficiently vouchsafed by the reference to his work by such a great advaita teacher and polymath as Appayya Dikṣita.

Raghavachar, S. S.—Yājñavalkya's Philosophy of Love. HYJMU. II, Pt. 1, pp. 17-26. [1070]

Discusses the dialogue between Yājñavalkya and Maitreyi in the Brhadāraṇyaka Upaniṣad. Concludes that love as implied in the discussion of the dialogue, is a broad as the life of man. Its significant departments are disinterested love in human relationship and the love of aesthetic objects. It is the fulfilment of infinite love, of which these are particularly manifestations, that concerns Yājñavalkya and Maitreyi and in their discussion the concept absolute reality is so amplified that Brahman is argued to be the objective and cosmic basis of possibility of the satisfaction of absolute love.

Raghavendrachar, H. N.—Dvaita Philosophy and its Place in the Vedānta. With a Foreword by A. R. Wadia. pp. vii + 282, University of Mysore, Mysore, 1941. [1071]

Divided into five chapters: The first contains introduction to the three systems of Vedānta. The next three chapters are devoted to short exposition of Advaita, Viśiṣṭādvaita and Dvaita Vedānta respectively followed by analysis of each. In the last chapter the author concludes that the "philosophical reflection in India has reached its culmination in the Dvaita Vedanta", and shows how "the best of Indian thought is preserved in this system", and how "this system was needed to bring the Vedānta teaching to its perfection".

One of the conspicuous features of this work is the author's view that it is a misnomer to call the Dvaita system Dualism, and that its right name is Monism.

Raju, P. T.—Morality and Self-Realisation. In No. 1434, pp. 362-369. [1072]

Discusses and shows that Indian philosophy is not unethical and amoral as it has been suggested by some European scholars.

— The Complaint Against Philosophy. AP. XII, pp. 345-348. [1073]

Raju, P. T.—Vedantic Attitude Towards Matter. HR. LXXIV, pp. 30-39. [1074]

A study of the problem of the Vedantic attitude to the material world, found generally in its conception of the relation between the world and the Brahman.

Rao, B. Gururaja—Mahābhārata Tātparya Nirṇaya of Srimad Ananda Theertha. Text and English Translation with notes from the Unpublished Commentary of Vadiraja Swami, Bangalore, 1941. [1075]

Ānanda Tīrtha is better known as Madhvācārya. He advocated the doctrine of the reality of dualism in the Universe. His system is known as the Dvaita system, as distinct from the Advaita system of Śaṅkarācārya, according to which there is only one reality in the Universe, difference being an illusion, and from the Viśiṣṭādvaita system advocated by Rāmānujācārya, according to which, the different elements, though real, are only parts of the one reality.

The present work is the first instalment containing only the first nine chapters of the work.

Rao, Hayavadana—The Śrīkarabhāṣya. Vols. I and II. pp. lii + 888 and xiii + 572. Bangalore Press, Bangalore, 1941 (?) [1076]

“The masterly introduction in English by the editor covering nearly 900 pages is a great contribution to the history of the Vedānta philosophy. Here he has dwelt at length on all the other schools of the Vedānta and various other topics. The appendices at the end of both the volumes have supplied data for further researches. Verily his introduction is a mine of information to all lovers of the Vedānta system. Here we get information about one Suka Bhāṣya and its Ṭikā”.—Satis Chandra Seal, IC. VII, pp. 380-382.

Rao, P. Nagaraja—The Philosophy of Ahimsā. In No. 1434, pp. 376-379. [1077]

— Bergson and Śaṅkara. AP. XII, pp. 174-177. [1078]

Points out the affinities existing between individual thinkers of East and West. Though Bergson does not believe in anything transcending both matter and mind, yet the author finds some plausible affinity between Bergson's philosophy and Śaṅkara's.

Saksena, S. K.—Is the Upaniṣadic View of the One, Universal and Absolute Consciousness Agnostic? BaV. II. Pt. 2, pp. 196–200.

Says that the Upaniṣads neither contradict themselves nor preach a doctrine of agnosticism with regard to the Ātman. Though the Absolute consciousness is logically and empirically uncharacterizable, it is yet not known and its nature is Jīva of pure intelligence as opposed to unintelligence.

Sarma, V. Subrahmanya—Paramārthacintāmani. (Kannada text). pp. xxiv + 271. Adhyātmaprakāśa Office, Holenarasipur (Mysore State), 1941.

Enunciates what he calls a new theory of metaphysics, quite his own. It is based on no Sanskrit original, but derives nevertheless support from the Upaniṣads and the many commentaries thereon. The book is divided into six chapters; in the first, the different systems of Indian Philosophy are analysed, their limitations pointed out, and the view maintained that it is only the Vedānta system that is of real help in the quest of Paramārtha. In the second is elaborated what the author calls the Avasthātraya method in arriving at Paramārtha. In the three succeeding chapters, the fundamental nature of Ātman which distinguishes it from Anātman, is discussed. In the concluding chapter, the author sums up his position stating that the Avasthātraya method is the only means at arriving at Paramārtha, and that the Vedānta system which propounds this method is only the culmination of the wisdom of the Upaniṣad.

— Upaniṣattugaṭa Modalane Paricaya (Kannada text). pp. vi + 54, Adhyatmaprakasa Office, Holenarasipur (Mysore State), 1941.

A sort of Prolegomena to the study of the ten Upaniṣads found valuable by the systematists of Vedānta. Divided into six sections; in the first deals with the nature of the Upaniṣads and their importance; in the four succeeding sections introduces the ten Upaniṣads themselves.

Sastri, N. Aiyaswami—A commentary on the Sāṅkhya-kārikā in Chinese. JSVOI. II, Pt. 1, pp. 65–67.

The Sāṅkhya-kārikā is said to be the oldest of the works on Sāṅkhya Philosophy now available. It has been commented upon by many authors such as Vācaspatimīśra, Gauḍapāda and others. The writer here gives a brief examination and comparison of these commentaries.

Sastri, S. Srikantha—Logical System of Madhvācārya. In No. 1434. pp. 411-416. [1083]

Madhvācārya's system of logic as expounded in his Pramāna lakṣaṇa is compared with other systems. Concludes that Madhvācārya does not recognise upmāna, arthāpatti and anupalabdhī as separate means as these can be included in sense-perception and inference.

Sastri, S. S. Suryanarayana, Ed.—Tattvasuddhi. AOR. V, Pt. 1. [1084]

This Advaita manual from its thirty-third chapter to the end has been edited in this instalment. The author Jñanaghana flourished in the beginning of the 10th century was a follower of the particular variety of the Advaita doctrine known as the Vivarayarasthana.

— Paramārthasāra of Ādiśeṣa. NIA. III, pp. 355-370. [1085]

Philosophical treatise in Sanskrit dealing with questions concerning Ātman, Jīva, Saṃsāra and their relations. Translated into English and annotated with explanatory notes.

— Paramārthasāra of Ādiśeṣa. Translated. Text, English translation and notes. $9\frac{1}{2}'' \times 6\frac{1}{4}''$, pp. 40. Karnatak Publishing House, Bombay, 1941. [1086]

This is No. 1085 in book form.

Sastri, S. S. Suryanarayana, and Radhakrishna, E. P. Eds.—Tattvaśuddhi. AOR. V, Pt. 2, pp. vii + 55 + 162. [1087]

Tattvaśuddhi a work of Jñānaghānapāda, is divided into forty-six chapters, called prakaranas. It is an advaita manual, probably a record of expositions given to disciples; the considerations that dictated the order of exposition are not now available.

— Tattvaśuddhi of Jñānaghānapāda, edited with an English Introduction, pp. 12 + 306, Madras, 1941. [1088]

This is No. 1087 issued in book form.

Sastri, S. S. Suryanarayana and Sen, S. Trs.—Vivarana-prameyasangraha of Bhāratītīrtha. Translated into English Andhra University Sanskrit Series No. 24. $9\frac{1}{2}'' \times 6\frac{1}{4}''$, pp. 550 + viii. Andhra University, Waltair, 1941. [1089]

Notable addition to the existing literature on the Advaitic philosophy, of intrinsic value to all students of Vedānta.

Sen, Saileswara and Sastri, S. S. Suryanarayana—Vivarana-prameya-sangraha of Bhāratītīrtha, Vol. I. Text with introduction and analytical tables of contents in English. pp. 110 + 348. Vol. II, English translation complete, pp. 550 + viii, Waltair, 1941. [1090]

Sastri, Odalamane Pandurang—प्रामाणिक एव जीवब्रह्मोरभेदः (Sanskrit text). $6\frac{1}{2}'' \times 4''$, pp. 24, Central Printing Press, Karwar, 1941. [1091]

A reply to certain criticism of the Advaitic creed, pointing out that the identity of Jiva and Brahma can be proved.

Sircar, Mahendra Nath—A Neo-Vedāntic Conception of Reality. CR. LXXIX, pp. 229-236. [1092]

A review of Śri Aurobindo's work The Life Divine, which is a neo-interpretation of the classical thought of the Vedānta inspired by rare psychic and occultist experiences formulated in a synthetic structure of thought.

Tagore, Rabindranath—Anandi (Gujarati text). Crown 16mo. pp. 235, Niranjan Karyalaya, Surat, 1941. [1093]

Propogates the principle of Ahimsā. Translated into Gujarati by Sundaram from the original Bengali.

Talasikar, V. R.—Hindu Epistemology and Modern Thought. NR. XII, pp. 113-117. [1094]

Discusses briefly the evaluation of the means of knowledge according to Hindu Philosophical thought. He first takes each Pramāṇa or means of knowledge and first discusses its validity and its limitations according to the main system of Hindu metaphysics and then compares it with Western epistemology. And compares Hindu conception of the theory of knowledge with the epistemological ideas of modern science.

Tirtha, Swami Ravi—The Nyāyakusumāñjali of Udayanācārya: A presentation of theistic doctrines according to the Nyāya system of philosophy. BmV. V, Pt. 1. [1095]

Varadachari, K. C.—Īśavāsyopaniṣad: A study according to Śri Vedānta Deśika. In No. 1434, pp. 538-544. [1096]

Presents a few salient points in the Upaniṣadic thought as expounded by Vedānta.

Watave, K. N.—[The Philosophy of Aesthetic Pleasure] by P. Pancapagesa Sastri, Annamalainagar, 1940. See ABHIH. III, Fo. 1322. [1097]

"The author attempts to explain the process of pleasure derived from the reading of the poetic composition. This analysis of the enjoyment of aesthetic pleasure or the Kavyasvada has been attempted by him not independently but with the help of the master-minds of mediaeval India who subjected the question to the closest scrutiny.... The thesis really supplies a long felt want. It is, therefore, highly useful to the student of Sanskrit. In the words of S. Kuppuswami Sastrigal, who writes a foreword to the present work "The Systematic account which this thesis gives of the wherewithal of the aesthetic satisfaction, will be a contribution of considerable interest to the literature on the subject in English." ABORI. XXII, Pts. 3-4, pp. 295-297.

Pre-History and Proto-History

Chakladar, H. C.—The Prehistoric Culture of Bengal. MII. XXI, pp. 208-238. (To be continued). [1098]

Chakravarti, S. N.—The Prehistoric Periods in India. JUB. X, Pt. 1, pp. 48-60. [1099]

Gives a broad outline of the period.

Guha, B. S.—Human Culture in India during the Stone Age. See No. 103.

Sastri, S. Srikantha—Proto-Indic Religion. QJMS. XXXII, Pt. 1, pp. 8-37. [1100]

Examines the nature and affinities of the Proto-Indian religion, in the light of the seals, figurines and pottery discovered in the Indus Valley. "If we disabuse our minds of all imaginary reconstruction of Vedic civilisation attempted by many scholars", says the writer, "we shall be able to make a nearer approach to the solution by analysing the seals and paintings on the funerary pottery and drawing parallels if not coincidences with the elements of the Atharvan civilisation."

Puranic

Aiyangar, K. V. Rangaswami—Nandi Purāṇa. NIA. IV, Pt. 5, pp. 157-161. [1101]

Nandipurāṇa is mentioned in the list of upa-purāṇas given by the Matyapurāṇa. The derivation of Nanda is discussed. "The disappearance of Nanlipurāṇa", says the writer, "is one of the unsolved riddles in Puranic history. It is not unlikely that it has been observed in some Purāṇa or Upa-Purāṇa".

Anantaramachar, N. Ed.—Cāvundarāya Purāṇa (Kannada text). KSPP. XXVI, pp. 1-22. [1102]

An early work continued from Vols. II and III of KSPP. The present instalment contains the Purāṇas such as the Ajuta, Śambhava, Abhinandana, Sumati, Padmapurabha, Suparīva, Candraprabhā, Puspadanta and Śitalanātha.

Apte, V. M.—[Purāṇic Records of Hindu Rites and Customs] by R. C. Hazra, Calcutta, 1940. See ABIHI. III, No. 1352. [1103]

"An attempt...made by the author to determine, as approximately as possible, the chronology of the Puranic chapter or parts thereto on Hindu rites and customs; and the resulting chronology, the upper and lower limits of which, according to the author, are 200 to 1000 A. D. from part I of this work. In part II are described the various stages in the development of the "Puranic rites". With an eye to, the notable changes in the religious and political history of ancient India, the author has tried in this connection to ascertain the factors which determined the stages in the development of the Puranic Dharma. In addition there is a useful appendix containing a list of quotations traced in the extant Purāṇas". ABORI. XXII, Pts. 1-2, pp. 129-130.

Bose, G.—[Studies in the Puranic Records on Hindu Rites and Customs] by R. C. Hazra, Calcutta, 1940, See ABIHI. III, No. 1352. [1104]

"Some of the Puranic slokas have been wrongly interpreted in a manner that makes one feel that the author has no correct notion of the nature of the puranas and of the different topics discussed therein. The author's statement that 'the Buddha incarnation seems to have been unknown in the beginning of the sixth century A. D., and that 'the Buddha began to be regarded as an incarnation of Viṣṇu from about 550 A. D., has not been substantiated". TMS. LXIX, p. 666.

Chakravarti, Chintaharam.—[Studies in the Puranic Records on Hindu Rites and Customs] by R. C. Hazra, Calcutta, 1940. See ABIHI. III, No. 1352. [1105]

"The long neglected Purāṇas—a veritable mine of old Indian tradition in different branches of culture—which have of late attracted the attention of students of political history of India, have been subjected, it appears for the first time, in the volume under review, to a sifting critical analysis from the ritualistic point of view. Dr. Hazra who had been working on the subject for some time past, gave specimens of the results of his interesting studies in the pages of different oriental journals. These created an eagerness in the minds of interested scholars to see them in one place in the form of a book. It is really gratifying to note that this eagerness will now be satisfied."

IHQ. XVII, pp. 271-273.

Hazra, R. C.—The Kālikā-Purāṇa. ABORI. XXII, Pts. 1-2, pp. 1-23. [1106]

Shows that the work Kālikā-Purāṇa, sometimes called Kāli-Purāṇa is of considerable antiquity. The present Kālikā-p., which came to Bengal from Kāmarūpa is different from the earlier Kālikā-purāṇa, mentioned in the lists of eighteen Upapurāṇas and drawn upon by Nānyadēva, Lakṣmidhara and others. Discusses the date of the earlier Kālikā-p. and comes to the conclusion that it could not have been written earlier than 650 A. D., and not later than 900 A. D.

From the non-Tāntric character of the work, the author assumes that it was composed by the Smārta Brāhmaṇ sectaries. The non-Tāntric character of the Purāṇa was the reason why it was replaced by the present form which abounds in Tāntric elements.

The writer gives two appendices, (1) Verses quoted from the Kālikā-p. and (2) Quotations from the earlier Kālikā-p., which are not found in the present Kālikā.

Pusalker, A. D.—Puranic Cosmogomy. BaV. II, Pt. 2, pp. 177-191. [1107]

Deals with the important subject of Puranic Cosmogomy which forms the first topic, viz., sarga, in the definition of Purāṇa-Pañcalakṣaṇa. Begins with investigation from the oldest period in India, the period of the Rgveda, and considers in their chronological order, as far as possible, the views subsequently expressed down to the period of the Purāṇas; how far the Purāṇas are indebted to the past and what is their contribution in the field of cosmogomy.

— Vāyu Purāṇa versus Śiva Purāṇa. JUB. X, Pt. 2, pp. 148-155. [1108]

Discusses the text of the Purāṇas and concludes that the Śiva-p., and Vāyu-p., are two distinct Purāṇas.

Ruben, Walter—The Kṛṣṇacarita in the Harivamśa and certain Purāṇas. JAOS. Vol. 61, Pt. 3, pp. 115-127. [1109]

A study to show that Harivamśa is a supplement to Mahābhārata; that the Kṛṣṇacarita of Brāhmaṇapurāṇa agrees not only as regards the number and the order of the adventures of the hero but sometimes even verbatim with Harivamśa. Consequently, he derives Brāhmaṇapurāṇa from Harivamśa, as Harivamśa from Mahābhārata. But he says, Kṛṣṇa-story of Harivamśa is about five times longer than that of Brāhmaṇapurāṇa and the general impression is that Harivamśa has been widely enlarged.

— The Puranic Line of Heroes. JRAS. 1941. Pt. 3, pp. 247-256; Pt. 4, pp. 337-358. [1110]

A comparison of the accounts of the Sambhaparvan of the Mahābhārata on the one hand, and the Vāṁśaparvans of the Harivamśa, and the Brahma and other Purāṇas on the other, shows that the Brahmapurāṇa has borrowed from the Harivamśa which is an imitation of Mahābhārata.

Sastri, K. A. Nilakanta—The Gayāmāhātmya. BRVRI. IX, Pt. 2, pp. 65-67. [1111]

The Gayāmāhātmya is a part of the Vāyu Purāṇa. The writer shows that it is a later interpolation.

Seth, H. C.—An Obscure Passage in the Purāṇas. In No. 1434, pp. 420-422. [1112]

The passage under consideration (Viṣṇu-p. Ch. 24) suggests that after the Kali age, which began at the end of the Mahābhārata, and the influence of which greatly increased when Nanda began to reign, the king Devāpi of the Puru race and the king Maru of the Ikṣvāku race restored the Kṣatriyas and started a new Kṛta age.

Upadhye, A. N.—Hastimalla and his Ādipurāṇa. In No. 1434, pp. 526-529. [1113]

Discusses Hastimalla and his age, and the authorship of Ādipurāṇa.

Vaidya, M. V.—Tīrtha-yātrā in the Āraṇyakaparvan and the Padma-Purāṇa. In No. 1434, pp. 530-537. [1114]

Points out the portions of the Tīrthayātrā episode which is common to the Mahābhārata and the Padma-purāṇa.

Sikhs and Sikhism

Gupta, Hari Ram.—Partition of Sirhind Province by the Sikhs, January, 1764. JIH. XX, Pt. 1, pp. 19-30 after p. 136 of the original paging. [1115]

Describes Ahmad Shah Abali's terrorism; the sack of Kasur by the Sikhs and the subsequent division of Sirhind after its fall in January 1764. Gives 32 names of the land-holders.

— Diary of Mirza Shafi's Campaign Against Sikhs, February-July, 1780. (From unpublished Persian Records). In No. 1222, pp. 103-109. [1116]

A short summary of news letters giving account of Mirza Shafi's campaign against the Sikh aggressions. These news letters are Claud Martin's collection of Persian news letters available in the British Museum.

— Nawal Singh, The Jat Ruler of Bhratpur's Fight with the Sikhs, 24th February, 1770. JBORS. XXVII, pp. 448-454. [1117]

Singh, Ganda—Last Days of Guru Govind Singh. JIH. XX, Pt. 1, pp. 120-132. [1118]

Guru Govind Singh was the tenth and the last Guru of the Sikhs. He was the founder of the militant order of the Khalsa. The writer brings out the main events leading to the first and second march to the south, and explains the motives which actuated the guru to undertake the long and arduous journey.

Sing, Jogendra—Sikh Ceremonies. With Introduction by Daljeet Singh. $7\frac{1}{2}'' \times 5''$, pp. xx-96. International Book House, Bombay, 1941. [1119]

Contents: (1) Installation of Guru Granth Sahib, (2) Child naming and initiating ceremony, (3) Amrit ceremony of the Sikhs, (4) Anand marriage, (5) Jappi, (6) Jap Sahib, (7) Swayas, (8) Evening prayers, (9) General prayers, (10) Kirtan Soihla, (11) Funeral Service, (12) Preparation of Karah Prashad.

"Not only does it give a brief account of the details of all important Sikh ceremonies, but also in the introduction of twenty pages Raja Sir Daljeet Singh gives a concise and illuminating account of the essential beliefs and tenets of Sikhism. Thus the Book becomes not only a manual of Sikh ceremonies, but also a valuable addition to modern commentaries on Sikhism, especially as so few of these are available to the English reading public."

Banning Richardson, AP. XII, p. 327.

See also A. Goveas in NR. XVI, pp. 438-439.

— The Miracle of Sikhism. AP. XII, pp. 147-157. [1120]

Gives an impressionist picture, based on the history of the Sikh community, of the influence of faith and heroism on the development of a people, and traces in outline, the rise, the arrested development and the future hope of the Sikhs.

Srinivasacharya, C. S.—[History of the Sikhs. 1739-1768] by Hari Ram Gupta. Calcutta, 1939. See ABIHI. II, No. 1006. [1121]

"Dr. Gupta has wisely chosen for the subject of his study the period marking the rise of the Sikh *misl*s and their occupation of the Punjab, first, because it marks the formative stage of the Sikhs as a political power and, secondly because it has not yet been studied on the intensive scale that has marked the inquiry into the period of the Gurus before it and the rise and expansion of the state of the Punjab under Maharaja Ranjit Singh after it. It was during this formative period that the Sikhs developed into a fine military people, taking advantage of the incursions of foreign invaders and of the political confusion caused by them." JIH. XX, p. 225.

Sociology

Aiyangar, A. N. Krishna—The Apostate-Mother. NIA. IV, Pt. 2, pp. 68-83. [1122]

A note to point out that the mother's right to be maintained by her offspring is in no way lessened even if he has failed or lost the power of distinguishing what should or should not be done.

Aiyappan, A.—The Meaning of Tali Rite. BRVRI. IX, Pt. 7, pp. 237-239. [1123]

Does not explain the significance of the tali rite but points out the need for methodological discipline and check in sociological studies. Uses historical, traditional and comparative evidence in the discussion.

Bachmann, Von Hedwig—Von Der Seele Der Indischen Frau im Spiegel der Volksspruche des Konkan. pp. x+467. Tipografia Rangel, Bastora (Goa), 1941, [1124]

"The authoress has tried to describe the social life in Western India in the light of Konkanese proverbs. It is not at all an objective description of the daily life of the people. The object of the writer's enquiry is rather the spirit of the Indian people in general, and the soul of the Indian woman in particular. The whole book is nothing but a running commentary on these current proverbs. It reveals to us how the rural life in Western India strikes an intelligent and educated European lady neither claiming nor possessing any special knowledge of Indian culture, history or language."

Batakrishna Ghosh, IC. VII, p. 500.

"Although the author of this book is not an Indian herself, she has approached this complex and difficult subject with sympathy and deep understanding. She found herself confronted with a gradual evolution in Indian social history, which she tried to understand from her own particular angle of vision, that of a woman who had come to India not to criticise and to find fault, but to understand and to sympathise.

Her book is based on the traditional sayings and proverbs current among the people of the Konkan. In following the author step by step the reader will have to go back to the dark past when these popular sayings first originated as part and parcel of Indian social and cultural heritage. There he will find the Indian woman of the preceding generation with all her silent heroism, her indomitable pride, her unspeakable suffering and resignation; he will see her moving about the house of her ancestors, as a little girl, a married woman, a mother, a widow. She will come back to life again, her everyday-life and the great occasion that mark her existence on earth."

A. Aronson, TMR. LXX, p. 181.

Banerjee, Brajendusundar—The Daughter's Son in the Bengal School of Hindu Law. JBIIU. VI. pp. 63-72. [1125]

The right of succession of the daughter's son is more fully recognised in the Bengal School than in the other Schools of Hindu Law. The writer here shows that Jimutavahana, the founder of the Bengal School, contemplates in his famous work Dayabhaga that a daughter's son acquires a vested interest or remainder, in the estate of his maternal grand-father.

Bilimoria, N. M.—The Jats. JSHS. V, pp. 137–149. [1126]

Bose, Atindra Nath—Five Hinajātis. IC. VII, pp. 287–303.

Side by side with the four varṇas constituting the ancient Indian society, the social physiognomy of ancient India presents a host of despised castes and professions, represented by the aboriginal races going under the general brand of hinajāti. The Pali literature picks up five of these parian castes for constant mention. The five castes are: The Chandāla, the Pukkusa, the Nesāda, the Veṇa and the Rathakāra. The writer studies the origin and history of these castes and adds a short note on the Mleccha and the Apasada.

Bose, Nirmal Kumar—The Hindu Method of Tribal Absorption. SC. VII, pp. 188–194. [1128]

Draws attention to certain specific instances of how tribal customs and rites are often modified in the process of social absorption. Reveals the true nature of the foundations underlying Hindu society.

Dikshitar, V. R. Ramachandra—Hindu Pluralism. PO. VI. pp. 195–205. [1129]

Examines some of the groups mentioned in ancient Indian literature, the primary units of the Hindu social organisations.

Ehrenfels, Baron Omar Rolf—Mother Right in India. Introduction by W. Koppers. Osmania University Series. 10½" x 7½" pp. xi + 229, 1 map. Oxford University Press, Hyd'rabad, 1941. [1130]

"Mother-right in India is one of the most thought provoking books published in recent years. The main thesis of the book is that:

(a) all pre-Aryan culture in India was of a matriarchal nature. That it was not a uniform culture but made up of different waves of cultures separated by time and space and representing various degrees of advance from the most primitive material culture called Ur-culture to the most complicated called the Nayar-culture.

(b) If the primitive grades show affinities with Austro-Asiatic culture complex, the most advanced, the Nayar-culture is in direct connection with the Indus Valley civilisation.

(c) that certain single traits like inheritance in the female line, the position of the maternal uncle, sexual freedom, puberty right for girls, the couvade, Goddesses and worship of female ancestors, rain and fecundity charms and permission of remarriage or divorce to women, and levirate wedding can be taken as proofs of former existence of the Mother-right in India.

(d) Hypergamy, child marriage, contempt of the widow coupled with the custom of Sati and to a lesser extent vegetarianism are the outcome of the contact and the struggle for supremacy between the patriarchal Aryans and the matriarchal pre-Aryans.

A wealth of detail has been brought forth to strengthen the above contentions. But many of the author's conclusions, though plausible lack proof and are highly unconvincing."

I. Karve, NIA. IV, Pt. 9, pp. 314-316.

Ehrenfels, Baron Omar Rolf—The History of Dress. JSHS.

V, pp. 12-24. [1131]

A short study of the origin and development of dress in Europe in general and in India in particular.

Fuchs, S.—Holi. NR. XIII, pp. 208-214. [1132]

Haas, Vilem—Hindu Widows. AP. XII, pp. 396-401. [1133]

Mahalingam, T. V.—Social Legislation in Mediæval South India. NR. XIII, pp. 29-38. [1134]

With a view to enforce the proper observance of swadharma by the different communities in the kingdom, they appointed samayāchāryas or censors of morals who kept a watch over the activities of the people. Instances clearly show that where legislation of social character made by Government, it was more in the nature of an official sanction to certain changes that were inevitably coming over the religious, social and economic life of the people.

Maharaj, Dharma Theerthaji—The Menace to Hindu Imperialism. pp. xv + 334. Hindu Missionary Society, Lahore, 1941. [1135]

A scathing condemnation of the caste divisions of Hindu system.

Mukerjee, Radhakamal—Hindu Widow. AP. XII, pp. 401-405. [1136]

Presents the social and ethical ideals that lie behind the practices enjoined upon the Hindu widow. That the institution has its drawbacks cannot be gainsaid. Evils are inevitable when a custom has become rigid and when a discipline, meaningful only when it represents a voluntary consecration to an ideal, is imposed from without. Freedom for the individual to choose between remarriage and the dedicated life to traditional Hindu widowhood would solve both the social problem and the demographic one, which, the writer shows, is serious.

Nambudripad, Narayanan—Kerala and Nambudris. IR. Vol. 42, pp. 33-34. [1137]

A general view of the position and status of the Nambudris in ancient Kerala.

O'Malley, L. S. S.—The Hindu Social System. In No. 1455 pp. 354-388. [1138]

Explains the distinctive characteristics of the Hindu Social System.

Pandey, Raj Bali—The Vivāha Saṃskāra (Marriage Ceremonies) of the Hindus. JBHU. VI, pp. 1-22. [1139]

The Vivāha, the most important of all the Hindu Saṃskāras is explained. Significance is attached to the marriage ceremony, its importance in the social structure, the origin of the institution and the forms of marriage recognised as valid in the ancient Hindu society are some of the topics discussed.

Pinkham, N. W.—Woman in the Sacred Scriptures of Hinduism. 8" x 5½", pp. 256, Columbia University, 1941. [1140]

A study of Hindu Scripture in its relation to child-marriage, infant mortality, enforced prostitution etc. with suggestions for improvement of the position of present day women in India.

Ranade, Ram Keshav—Indian Charity. PO. VI, pp. 37-42. [1141]

Sanskrit text in praise of charity and its various forms as found in the Veda, Purāṇa and Dharmasāstra have been referred to.

Sastri, Krishagopal Goswami—An Enquiry into Idealism in Hindu Marriage. CR. LXXIX, pp. 45-48. [1142]

Points out that the entire fabric of society as is based upon the scheme of Varṇāśrama discloses nothing but the characteristics of spiritual and psycho-ethical discipline. It is in this respect that Dharma may be said to possess abundant values of real interest for Hindu India. The Hindu marriage is primarily based upon spirituality—it being deemed altogether as a creation of the spirit. In its entire significance it represents neither a phenomenon of subjective arbitrariness nor a product of so-called natural law.

Shastri, Kshitimohan Sen—Bharatvarsa-Mem Jatibhed. (Hindi text). pp. ii + 264, S. Sharma, Calcutta, 1940. [1143]

Discusses the nature and origin of Indian caste from the stand-point of history, and shows among other things that this institution was very elastic in the earlier period and when caste gradually became rigid, reaction set against it and evidence of such reaction is to be met with even in some Purāṇas and the Mahābhārata. Discusses other aspects of caste with suitable references and quotations from works ancient as well as modern and tries to clear some obscure points in the history of Indian caste-system.

Shastri, Marulkar Ed.—Dattaka-Mīmāṃsā of Ananda. See No. 124.

Singh, Rama Dhari—Social, Economic and Cultural Life in the Republics of Ancient India. JBHU. VI, pp. 73-91. [1144]

An attempt to give an idea of the social, economic and cultural life of the people of ancient Republics, in which the Andhaka-Vṛṣnis, the Licchavis and the Śākyas, are included. Touches upon the Caste System; Place in Society; Marriage System; Position of Women; Wine and Prostitution; Amusements, Manners and Customs; Dress; Profession, Architecture, Trade and Commerce, Cities and Towns; Currency and Education.

Sircar, Dines Chandra—Glimpses into Domestic and Social Life from a story in the Daśakumāracharita. JIH. XX, Pt. 1, pp. 105-110. [1145]

Tells the story of Śaktikumāra and Gominī, and gathers from the story information regarding ancient Indian social, economic and domestic life.

S. K. D.—The Origin and Development of Exogamy. ER. LXVII, pp. 502-510. [1146]

Examines the opinion of other scholars on the subject of the origin of exogamy in India, which are not free from defects and short-comings. Does not give his own opinion.

Sternbach, Ludwik—A Sociological Study of the Forms of Marriage in Ancient India. (A Résumé). ABORI. XXII, Pts. 3-4, pp. 202-219. [1147]

Gives the various forms of marriage and their development, in ancient India, based on the available legal-sociologico-scientific literature.

Valavalkar, Pandharmath—The Hindu Social Philosophy. BaV. II, Pt. 2, pp. 140-158. [1148]

Shows briefly that the Hindu thinkers had made serious and scientific attempts at thinking out, devising and planning schemes for social organisation.

— Hindu Social Institutions with Reference to their Psychological Implications. Foreword by Sir S. Radhakrishnan. 8" x 5½", pp. xviii + 388. Longmans, Green, Bombay, 1940. [1149] closely as possible along the lines of Hindu thought and tradition and interprets, both analytically and sympathetically, the Hindu scriptures and theories in their proper and original perspective.

Anantacharya, V. Ed.—Nitya-Grandha, by Bhagavad Rāmānuja, with Āhnika-Kārikā by Śrī Vaigi Vamśeśvara. Perumal Chetty & Sons, George Town, Madras, 1941. [1150]

The Nitya-Grandha of Rāmānuja is a manual written for the benefit of his followers with a view to regulate the daily life and worship of the Śrīvaiṣṇavas of his day and to be followed in the future.

Chakravarti, Chintaharan—[Mystic Teachings of the Haridasas of Karnataka] by A. P. Karmarkar and N. B. Kalamdani, Dharwar, 1939. See ABIHI. III, No. 997. [1151]

"The book does not, as its title would seem to indicate, give a systematic account of the Haridasa sect of the Vaiṣṇavas, little known outside the territory in which it originated and flourished. It is primarily devoted to a description of the life-stories of ten saints belonging to the sect who flourished at different places and times between the 15th and 18th centuries of the Christian era. Incidentally it deals with the teachings of these saints as embodied principally in stray songs attributed to each of them."

IHQ. XVII, p. 272.

Das, Govendram— Vaishnavism in Assam. IR. Vol. 42, pp. 85-88. [1152]

Gives a brief history of the introduction of Vaishnavism in Assam.

Dasgupta, Surendranath—The History of Indian Philosophy. Vol. III. 9" x 6 1/4", pp. xiii + 614, Cambridge University Press, Cambridge, 1940. [1153]

"Looking at from the strictly philosophical point of view, some of the materials of the present book may be regarded as somewhat out of place. But, both in the present volume and the volume that will follow it, it will be impossible to ignore the religious pathology that is associated with the devotional philosophy which is so predominant in the South and which so much influenced the minds of the people not only in the Middle Ages but also in the recent past and is even now the most important element of Indian religions. Philosophy in India includes not only morality but religion also. The most characteristic feature of religion is emotion or sentiment associated with a system of beliefs, and as such in the treatment of the dominant schools of philosophy that originated in South India one cannot help emphasizing the important pathological developments of the sentiment of devotion. The writer hopes, therefore, that he may be excused both by those who would not look for any emphasis on the aspect of bhakti or religious sentiment and also by those who demand an over-emphasis on the emotional aspect which forms the essence of the Vaiṣṇava religion. He has tried to steer a middle course in the interest of philosophy, which, however, is the school of thought treated therein is so intimately interwoven with religious sentiment." Preface.

A pamphlet explaining the duties of the Vaishnavas, translated with Commentary by M. P. Mistry.

Kakati, B.—Vaiṣṇavism of Assam and Southern India (Certain Points of Correspondence). In No. 1434, pp. 238-243. [1155]

The discussion is confined to Assamese parallels of those features of Southern Vaiṣṇavism that have been stressed in standard publications as highly individualistic.

Karmarkar, A. P.—The Matsyāvatāra of Viṣṇu (Its Proto-Indian Origin and Location). In No. 1434, pp. 253-257. [1156]

Rau, C. V. Sankara—Pancaratra-Doctrine of Creation. JSVOI. II, Pt. 1, pp. 47-48. [1157]

A note to explain the doctrine which is one of the oldest Vaishṇava cults.

Srinivasaraghavan, A. Ed.—Nyāyakalāpasamgraha of Śrī Seneśvarācārya. Crown 8vo, pp. xx + 67, Pudukottah, 1940. [1158]

A work of importance to the philosophy of Rāmānuja. The author has not been able to fix the date of Śrī Seneśvara with precision. There can be no doubt that Śrī Seneśvara was later than Rāmānuja whose philosophy he attempted to propound.

Vedic

Aiyangar, K. N. Rangaswami—Additional Verses of Kātyāyana on Vyavahāra. In No. 1434, pp. 7-17. [1159]

An interesting feature is the identity of some of the slokas presented with verses in Manusmṛti. As the verses are ascribed to Kātyāyana in all the manuscripts of Varadaraja's Vyavahārānirṇaya, and as familiarity with the text of Manusmṛti may be validly presumed in both Varadaraja and the scholarly copyists whose transcriptions have been used by the writer, the citation may be taken as evidence of the South Indian belief in their being common to both smṛtis.

— Bṛhaspati Smṛti. A Reconstructed text of the now lost work of Bṛhaspati. 9½" x 6", pp. 186-546. Gaekwad's Oriental Series No. 85. Oriental Institute, Baroda, 1941. [1160]

Among the writers on Dharmasāstra one of the most frequently quoted is Bṛhaspati. His smṛti is largely cited in discussions of law and procedure (Vyavahāra). He shares the distinction with Nārada and Kātyāyana.

This work contains:—List of works cited and abbreviations; List of abbreviations (Nāgari); Sanskrit contents of text; and the text of Bṛhaspatismṛti. At the end are added, Quarter-verse Index of Vyavahārakānda, Half-verse Index of remaining kāṇḍas, Additional texts, Index to names of persons or works cited by Bṛhaspati, Additions to the Footnotes and Comparative Statement of verses in Dr. J. Jolly's translation and the present Text.

Apte, V. M.—Rig-Vedic Studies. BDCRI. II, Pts. 3-4. pp. 226-246. [1161]

Discusses some words and expressions found in the Rg-Veda.

— Rigveda Citations in the Mahābhārata. In No. 1434, pp. 26-38. [1162]

Points out the vast amount of pre-epical literature absorbed in the Mahābhārata.

Ayyangar, T. R. Srinivasa—The Vaiṣṇavopaniṣadas translated into English on the basis of the Commentary of Śrī Upaniṣad-Brahma-Yogin. Edited by Pandit S. Subrahmanyam Sastri. BmV. V, Pt. 1. [1163]

Ayyangar, T. R. Srinivasa—The Samanya Vedanta Upaniṣads. Translated (on the basis of the commentary of Śri-Upaniṣad Brahmayogin) into English by T. R. Subrahmanya Sastri, and edited by S. Subrahmanya Sastri. pp. xxxiv + 534. The Adyar Library, Adyar, 1941. [1164]

“After publishing the 108 Upaniṣads and the Gītā, with the commentaries of Upaniṣad-brahma-yogin, in nine volumes, the Adyar Library has undertaken the publication of English translations of these in successive volumes. The present volume is the Second of this series. It contains the translation of 24 Upaniṣads . . . The translator follows the lead of Brahma-yogin, but where it fails he falls back on his own inner sense (antahkarana). He tries to give a faithful (verbatim et literatim) rendering of the original. But he also gives, wherever necessary, explanatory notes”.

JBORS. XXVII, pp. 434-435.

P. B. Adhikari, VBQ. VII, p. 99.

Bhandarkar, D. R.—The Development of the Figure of Speech in the Rigveda Hymnology. In No. 1434, pp. 70-72. [1165]

An excerpt from a chapter entitled Literary History which has been written by the author in connection with his revised edition of the Gupta Inscriptions. The extract has been set forth here with a view to invite criticism to help him in the redaction.

Brown, W. Norman—The Rigvedic Equivalent for Hell. JAOS. Vol. 61, Pt. 2, pp. 76-80. [1166]

The Ṛgveda and Atharva Veda contain abundant information about earth, atmosphere, and heaven, but passages referring to a hell or some equivalent for it are rare and not very specific. The writer here pieces together bits of scattered information and obscure clues, gives a general idea about the nature of the Vedic Hell and its function.

Chaudhuri, Jatindra Bimal—The Widow in the Vedic Ritual.

TMR. LXX, pp. 472-473.

Discusses the Niyoga system briefly.

— The Position of the Daughter in the Vedic Ritual.
NIA. IV, Pt. 2, pp. 77-85. [1168]

Points out various references in Vedic authorities to the rights of daughters to perform the śrāddha rites for her parents; and other equal rites with the son, only if she has no brother. In few cases the son had precedence over her, but this is because she is to care more for her husband's family than her parents and cannot be supposed to have as much privilege as the son.

— The Position of Wives other than the First in the Vedic Ritual. IHQ. XVII, pp. 180-195; 492-505. [1169]

Gives the various duties of wives in the Vedic ritual.

Chaudhuri, Nani Madhab—Mother-Goddess Conception in the Vedic Literature. IC. VIII. Pt. 1, pp. 65-83; Pt. 2, pp. 159-174. [1170]

Analyses the representations of deities and personified objects etc., as female in the Rgveda; then deals with female deities invoked as "mothers", and finally draws attention to the high development of the abstract conception of the All-mother. The Vedic attitude to female deities is considered and attention is drawn to certain facts brought out by this study. Next he passes on to an intensive examination of the attributes of a number of important mother-goddesses which shows important results. Attention is also drawn to female deities in the later Vedic literature and a statement of results obtained so far follows. The inquiry next turns to the probable sources of different types of mother-goddess found in the Rgveda.

Coomaraswamy, Ananda K.—Lilā. JAOS. Vol. 61, Pt. 2, pp. 98-101. [1171]

A study of the Sanskrit word lilā. He is chiefly concerned with the reference of lilā to the divine manifestation and activity thought of as a "sport", "Playing", or "dalliance".

Dandekar, R. N.—Somatism of Vedic Psychology. IHQ. XVII, pp. 70-76. [1172]

Approaches the question of the origin of the conception of manas, the human faculty which is usually associated in the Veda with a variety of psychological activities from the philological point of view. Concludes that the 'somatics' of late Indian psychology may be traced back to the conception of manas in the Vedic literature. Manas in Veda, like citta of Yoga and Buddhism, was regarded as a form of material substance, which underwent mechanical and dynamic modification, thus causing several so-called psychical phenomena.

Desai, B. I.—Ushasti Chakrayan Ane Biji Char Akhyayikao. (Gujarati text). Double Crown 16mo. pp. 32, Gujarat Printing Press, Bombay, 1941. [1173]
Five stories from Chhandogya Upaniṣads.

— Shwetketu. (Gujarati text). D. Crown 16mo., pp. 16. Gujarati Printing Press, Bombay, 1941. [1174]
The story of Shwetketu from Chhandogya Upaniṣad explaining the philosophy of That-Thou-Art.

Gambhirananda—Upaniṣat Granthavali. Pt. 1, (Bengali text). $7\frac{1}{4}'' \times 4\frac{3}{4}''$, pp. 474, Swami Atmabodhanananda, Calcutta, 1941. [1175]

Handy edition with Bengali translation and notes of nine of the principal Upaniṣads: Īśa, Kena, Kaṭha, Prāṇa, Mundaka, Māṇḍūkya, Taittiriya, Aitareya and Śvetāśvatara. In the introduction, the editor discusses the main teaching of the Upaniṣads and their position in Vedic literature as well as Indian thought.

Joshi, G. M.—Vedshastradipika, (Marathi text). Royal 8vo, pp. 572, Vedshastrottejak Sabha, Poona, 1941. [1176]

Articles by various writers on Vedic subjects and on other branches of ancient learning, with a disquisition by the editor on the characteristics of Sanathana Dharma.

Kanta, Surya,—Abhiniṣṭhan or Abhiniṣṭana? in No. 1434, pp. 488-491. [1177]

Points out different reading found in the Gṛhya-sūtras and concludes that Abhiniṣṭhāna or Gṛhyasūtras, the latest production of the Vedic period abound; their solution requires years of discretion and mature judgment: it requires a comparative study to which only a few of the Vedic works have been subjected as yet.

Karmarkar, A. P.—Vasiṣṭha's Remorse over the Death of his Son. (New Light of Rigvedic Hymn VII, 86). ABORI. XXII, Pts. 1-2, pp. 120-122. [1178]

A short paper pointing out that it was the son's death that seems to have made Vasiṣṭha to drown himself into the Vipāś. As the hymn indicates Vasiṣṭha actually praying Varuna to free him from the sin committed by him, the author thinks that Vasiṣṭha himself was partly responsible for the death of his son.

Kaith, A. Berriedale—[Die Yajus' Des Asvamedha, Versuch einer Reckonstruktion dieses Abschnittes des Yajurveda] by S. Bhawe. Stuttgart, 1939. See ABIHI. II, No. 1027.

[1179]

“In Part II of this work is given a very useful presentation of the Mantra material of the Taittiriya, Kāthaka, Maitrāyaṇiya, and Vājasaneyi Saṁhitās, so arranged as to show clearly the impossibility of reconstructing an original Aśvamedha text. In Part I the author discusses the relations of the Saṁhitās, and certain details of the sacrifice.” JRAS. 1941, pp. 75-76.

— [L'Agnihotra. Description de l'agnihotra dans le rituel vedique] by P. E. Dumont. Baltimore, 1939. See ABIHI. II, No. 521.

“Professor Dumont has already rendered important services to the cause of Vedic religion, and his new work adds materially to our obligation to him. Agnihotra embodies an ancient sun spell and must each day be performed by Brahmins and Vaisyas, so that its practical importance in Vedic life is greater than that of the sacrifices bound up with special occasions or periods. The method of dealing with it adopted is to give an account thereof according to the eight important Śrautasūtras Kātyāyana, Āpastamba, Hiranyakesīn, Baudhāyana, Manu, Āśvalāyana, Sāṅkhāyana, and the Vattāna. The Bhāradvāja, Varāha, and Vaikhānasa are ignored, without substantial loss. Instead of a bare translation of each Sūtra, a clear exposition of what it tells us is recorded with the text appended, that of the mantras referred to, and extracts from the commentaries.” JRAS. 1941, pp. 77-78.

Kunhan Raja, C.—Sāmaveda-Saṁhitā. With the Commentary of Mādhaba and Bharatasvāmi. Adyar Library Series No. 26. (Sanskrit text). $8\frac{1}{4}'' \times 5\frac{1}{4}''$, pp. xiv + 414. The Adyar Library, Adyar, 1941.

In this edition of Sāmaveda, two commentaries on the Saṁhitā are included, one by Mādhaba and the other by Bharatasvāmin. Neither of these commentaries has been till now made available in print. Both of them are ancient and earlier than Sāyaṇa. The edition of the commentary of Mādhaba is based on a photograph copy of the MS. in the Berlin Library, described by Weber in his catalogue as MS. No. 1424, and another MS. lent to the editor by the Visvabharati University, Santiniketan.

Macnicol, Nicol, Ed.—Hindu Scriptures. With a foreword by Rabindranath Tagore. pp. 293. J. M. Dent & Sons, 10/13. Bedford Street, London, 1941. [1182]

This is one of the volumes in Everyman's Library and contains representative writings from the main Hindu Scriptures. First there are translations of the 30 Hymns of the Rgveda. Then come English version of five of the most significant Upaniṣads. The book is completed by Dr. Barnett's translation of Bhagavadgītā.

Mehta, R. A.—Nirālambopanishad (Gujarati text) Crown 8vo. pp. 16. Gujarati Printing Press, Bombay, 1941. [1183]

Text of the Nirālamba Upaniṣad, translated with commentary into Gujarati.

Narahari, H. G.—The Dates of Caturvedasvāmin and Rāvaṇa: Two Commentators on the Rigveda. BmV. V, Pt. 3. [1184]

Caturvedasvamin wrote between 1477 A.D. and 1507 A.D. and Rāvaṇa lived earlier than the middle of the 15th century A.D.

— The Legend of Śunahṣepa in Vedic and Post-Vedic Literature. In No. 1434, pp. 302-307. [1185]

Discusses the legend current in Vedic literature, the story of Śunahṣepa.

— On the Origin of Upaniṣadic Thought. PO. VI, pp. 139-148. [1186]

Gives the derivation of the word Upaniṣad and its various meanings.

Narayanan, V.—The Vedas as Literature. IR. Vol. 42, pp. 553-554. [1187]

Points out that many episodes and good anecdotes in Indian literature can be traced to Vedic passages.

Pandey, R. B.—Atharvavēda Conception of the Motherland. JBHU. VI, pp. 193-204. [1188]

Endeavours to bring out practical and mundane aspects of the Earth which bear closely on the relation of man to her. The motherland is invoked here as a goddess and her conception is highly tintured with religious emotion and fervour.

Patel, Manilal—Bharadvāja's Hymns to Agni (Rg. VI, 1-16). BaV. II, Pt. 2, pp. 244-251; III, Pt. 1, pp. 90-98. [1189]

Annotations on the 6th Maṇḍala of the Rigveda, known as the Book of Bharadvājas, most of the hymns of which are ascribed by the Annkramanī to the ancestor Bharadvāja.

Pillai, P. K. Narayana—The Rigveda Padapāṭha: A Study with Specical Reference to the Rigveda Prātiśākhyā. BDCRI. II, Pts. 3-4, pp. 247-257. [1190]

Discusses the original Veda, the Saṁhitāpāṭha and the Padapāṭha; The devices employed to analyse the Saṁhitāpāṭha, Splitting up of the Vowel-Sandhi and Consonant Sandhi, Restoration of the Visarga, the employment of Avagraha for analysis, etc., and concludes that Padapāṭha is not the work of a single author.

Raghavan, V—The Sūta Saṁhitā. ABORI. XXII, Pts. 3-4, pp. 236-253. [1191]

Describes the Sūtasamīhitā, and determines its lower limit of the date. Basing on epigraphic records the work is said to have been composed prior to c. 1000 A. D. The thought of the work is characterised as Advaita with a definite place for Śaiva bhakti such as is found in the Śvetāśvataraopaniṣad. It is predominantly 'Aupaniṣad' and not 'Paurāṇika', 'Āgamika', or 'Tāntrika.' Gives summary of the contents of the work.

Raja, Rao M.—The Eclipse-Code of the Rigvedic Āryans as Revealed in the Śunahṣepa Hymns and the Brāhmaṇas. PO. VI, pp. 1-28. [1192]

Gives an outline of the story of Śunahṣepa and attempts to give a "correct interpretation and proper assessment of the values of Vedic texts and rites." Fixes the methods adopted in the Vedas of interpreting the interval between two eclipse-Nakshatras, and notes the devices adopted by the Vedic Rishis to indicate the Nakshatras themselves.

Ravi Varma, L. A. Ed.—Agniveśa Grhya-Sūtra. With an Introduction in English. pp. xii + v + 183 + xv. Trivandrum, 1940. [1193]

Saraswati, Sivanandī—Ten Upaniṣads. pp. 277. Sivananda Publication League, Calcutta, 1941. [1194]

Ten Upaniṣads which mostly deal with the theory and practice of the Rāja Yoga. The English translation of the aphorisms is followed by annotations.

Sastri, P. P. Subrahmanya, Ed.—Navamañjari by Śrimad Appayadikṣita, (Sanskrit text). $9\frac{1}{2}'' \times 3\frac{1}{4}''$, pp. ii + 16 + 114. Sri Sankaragurukulam, Srirangam, 1941. [1195]

A commentary on the Brahma Sūtras with a Sanskrit Introduction by Sri Sacchidanand Tirtha Swamigal. It is composed fully in verse, each adikarana of the Brahmasutra being represented by at least two slokas, one putting forth the Pūrvapaksha and the other the Siddhānta's Śaṅkara's view is clearly adhered to and explained. The distinguishing merit of the Navamañjari lies in more than 182 different metres, many of which are rare and not easily met with even in standard works.

Satavalakar, Bhattacharya S. D.—Daivata-Saṁhitā. 4 Vols. (Sanskrit text). $9\frac{1}{2}'' \times 7''$, Svadhyaya Mandala, Oundh, 1941. [1196]

Vol. I. Agni Devata, pp. 274.
 II. Indra Devata, pp. 348.
 III. Soma Devata, pp. 136.
 IV. Maruti Devata, pp. 55.

The Daivata Saṁhitā is not an independent Vedic Work: but it is a combination of all the four principal Saṁhitās, presented with a different arrangement of the hymns therein, so that all the hymns addressed to a particular deity like Agni or Indra may be found together in one place.

— Rigveda Saṁhitā, (Sanskrit text). Critically edited with the help of Pandits and old MSS. 2nd Edn. $9\frac{3}{4}'' \times 6\frac{1}{2}''$, pp. 72 + 978. Svadhyaya Mandala, Aundh 1940. [1197]

A study on the Rules laid down to Baudhāyana for performing various sacrifices.

— The Solar Eclipse in the Rigveda and the Date of Atri. JRASBL. VIII, Pt. 1, pp. 91-113. [1199]

Finds the time of the solar eclipse described in the Rigveda, the time which was undoubtedly that of the rṣi Atri who was the author of the hymn V, 40, 5-9. The date found is July 26 of 3928 B. C. Concludes that Atri lived about 4000 B. C. in a cave of a hundred openings at the bottom of a snow-capped peak either of the Himalayas or of the Karakoram range and the eclipse of the sun spoken of in the hymn attributed to Atri, happened on the vishuval day, i.e. on the summer solstice day either correctly ascertained or estimated, and in the fourth part of the day of the meridian of Kurukṣetra.

Shamsastry, R.—Test of the Vedic Eclipse-cycle. In No 1434, pp. 428-437. [1200]

A short study of the astronomical knowledge the Vedic poets had. Deals with the "puzzling description of the nodal year or the period during which the sun returns to the same node which he left about 346 days before."

“... besides the whole text of the R̥ksāṁhitā we have here, in the introductory part, the complete R̥idevata-sūci, the Devata-sūci, the R̥ṣi-sūci, and the Anuvāganukramani, etc. After the Sāṁhitā-text we have in this volume firstly the Khila-sūktas which differ considerably in text from the Khilas as published by Scheftleowitz ... The variant readings given in both editions do help us to reduce the difference between the two versions, but cannot fully reconcile them. It seems to me that the editors of the Svadhyaya-mandala were too much under the influence of Aufrecht's text of the Khilas. Then comes the whole gamut of the eight Vikṛtis, with due illustrations; then the whole text of Kātyāyana's R̥gveda-sarvānuksramaṇi and Śaunaka's Anuvāganukramani. The whole volume ends with an index of verses”. Batakrishna Ghosh, IC. VIII, pp. 121-122.

Upadhyā, Bhagwat Saran—Women in Rigveda. With a Foreword by Sir Radhakrishnan. 2nd Edn. $9\frac{1}{2}'' \times 6''$, pp. 241. Nand Kishore & Bros. Benares, 1941. [1207]

The first edition was published in 1933.

"The book is divided into ten chapters. The first chapter deals with the various goddesses in the Rigveda. A description of these goddesses, as opposed to the gods, reveal various points regarding the status of women in the Rigveda, in so far as a nation conceived of gods and goddesses according to their fashion. In the next chapter there is the treatment of what an unmarried girl was at that time. The next two chapters deal with marriage, the first with marriage in general and the next with its features, customs and usages. The fifth chapter is devoted to a consideration of the wife and the mother. Dress and ornaments form the subject matter of the sixth chapter. The seventh deals with education. The eighth chapter treats of women's liberty and the ninth treats of morality. In the tenth and last chapter there is a summary of the whole subject followed by a bibliography and index. From this brief description one can notice that the treatment is very full and comprehensive. The subject has been thought out and arranged in an ordered and logical sequence. The work establishes very firmly that the Rigveda represents a very advanced state of society, where marriage had become a well recognised and regularised institution." BmV. VI. Pt. 3. pp. 250-254.

"Not content with widow-remarriage and levirate, he has calmly declared that after the death of her husband the wife" "could not remain a widow even for a day" (p. 94), and he repeats the substance of this statement in a more piquant form on p. 97. But the fact is that the word devykama does not occur at all in the Rigveda. In the passage (RV. 1. 85. 44) referred to by Mr. Upadhyā in this connection I read devakama, and that is all the editions of the Rigveda known to me. Oldenberg too in his Textkritische und exegetische Noten (Vol. II, p. 289) decided in favour of this reading. Rigveda devykama is in fact a fiction of Böhtlingk-Roth, accepted by generations of uncritical writers."

Vedantatirtha, Vanamali—The Grhya Sūtra of Gobhila (In English) with copious notes. Calcutta Sanskrit Series. $9\frac{3}{4}'' \times 6''$, pp. 6 + 14 + 170. Metropolitan Printing and Publishing House, Calcutta, 1941. [1208]

This English translation with notes is primarily meant for people educated in Indian Universities, be their interest religious, social or anthropological.

Vedantin—Early Vedic Religion. JTSML. II, Pt. 1, pp. 1-3. [1209]

Deals with the question of the country where the pre-Vedic ancestors dwelt when they practised the Asura religion. Based on the Vedas the writer infers that the country in question was one to the east of India; it was certainly not India.

Discusses the cult of Agni and Soma.

Veda-sāstra Dīpikā—A collection of essays in Marathi and Sanskrit on Vedas, Vedāngas, Nyāyas, Mīmāṃsā etc., by learned Pandits. pp. 34 + 540 + 28, Poona, 1941. [1210]

Velankar, H. D.—Hymns to Indra by the Bharadvājas. (Rv. VI. 17-47). Translated into English and briefly annotated. JUB. X, Pt. 2, pp. 88-111. [1211]

First part of the fifth instalment of author's English translation of the Indra hymns in the Rgveda. Contains hymns 17 to 29 from the 4th Maṇḍala.

— The Story of Saptavadhri and Vadhrimati. (Rgveda V, 78). In No. 1434, pp. 547-551. [1212]

Discusses the Rgvedic Hymn V, 78 which deals with the resue of Atri and the safe delivery of a woman.

Venkataramanayya, N.—Rudra-Śiva, (Dr. S. Subrahmanya Aiyar's Lectures, 1939-40) 9½"×6", pp. 83. The University of Madras, Madras, 1941. [1213]

"It has been generally held by scholars that the Saivism of today is a product of the Aryo-Dravidian culture-contact. But according to the author of this work all the available evidence definitely points out that the attribution which are considered to be the hall-marks of Dravidism are the product of the "natural evolution" of the elements present from the beginning in the Vedic religion. . . . According to him Śaivism was part and parcel of the Aryan religious heritage and nothing need be attributed to the non-Aryans of India nor to the Dravidians which according to him is a doubtful racial designation for the people of South India. He tries to trace the passage of Śaivism right from the Caspian sea to the north-west frontiers of India along with the Indo-Aryans who brought with them into India. Whatever of Śaivism we see in later times was evolved naturally from what was inherited about Rudra-Śiva either from the Aryan ancestors or from their neighbours outside India. D. R. Patil, BDCRI. III, pp. 403-404.

Venkateswaran, C. S.—The "Cosmic House" in the Rig-Veda.
BDCRI. II, Pts. 3-4. pp. 258-262. [1214]

In many hymns of the Rgveda, the idea of world-creation is conveyed more in a poetic than in a philosophic process of mechanical production in which the artistic skill of the 'architect' is called into play. The author sees, with reference to the relevant verses, how the Rgveda-poets viewed the world as the work of an artisan-god.

Marathi Literary Conference—Memorandum on Konkanī. $9\frac{3}{4}'' \times 6\frac{1}{2}''$, pp. 24. The Marathi Literary Conference, Karnatak Printing Press, Bombay, 1941. [1230]

A Memorandum discussing the Konkanī Language, drawn by the Committee appointed by the Marathi Literary Conference held at Sholapur. The Memorandum was sent to the Census authorities pointing out that the classification adopted in the last two census reports is unscientific and misleading. If Konkanī were to be treated as a separate language, almost every other dialect all over India will have to be treated as a separate language; that Konkanī is a dialect of Marathi.

Muttra—Annual Report on the working of the Curzon Museum of Archaeology, Muttra, for the year ending 31st March, 1940. $9\frac{3}{4}'' \times 6\frac{1}{2}''$, pp. 25, 2 plates. Superintendent, Printing and Stationery, United Provinces, Allahabad, 1941. [1231]

Mysore—Annual Report of the Mysore Archaeological Department for the year 1940. $11'' \times 8\frac{1}{2}''$, pp. x + 216, 26 Plates. Assistant Superintendent at the Government Branch Press, Mysore, 1941. [1232]

Divided into seven parts. The first part deals briefly with the administration of the department. The second part contains an account of the conservation work carried out during the year 1940. Among the monuments repaired, special mention may be made of the Mahalingesvara temple, the Mallesvara, Lakshmi-Narayanaswami, Kesava, Kallesvara, Virabhadra, Gopalakrishna, Ghennakeseva and Mallikarjuna temples in Mandya district, the tomb of Shaji, father of Shivaji in Shimoga district. In the third part are given many accounts of monuments and sites. The fourth part deals with excavations. The excavation carried out at Brahmagiri is of importance; it gives a detailed and scientific account. The important point in this connection is that this site serves as a link between the historic civilisation of the Maurya age and the prehistoric civilisation of the Deccan. There is also an account of the excavation carried out at Chandragiri. The fifth part is devoted to Numismatics; coins found mainly of Pallava, Chera, Kadamba and Minor Kadamba dynasties. In the sixth part, an account of manuscripts which have been found. Epigraphy is discussed in the sixth part; altogether 48 new inscriptions of which English translation and notes are given. Three Appendices give list of photographs, list of drawings and list of books acquired for the library of the department.

Dr. Puri has offered several new suggestions among which one is in connection with "ring-Well" found in various sites in India. In his opinion they may have been soak-pits, and he has offered fairly sound reason in favour of the view. Certain parallel brick walls have been supposed by him to have been foundations of a special kind. The brief general account of punch-marked coins, and the sumptuous illustrations which enrich the text, are special feature of the volume.

Shatri, D. K.—Gujarati Sahitya Parishad: Thirteenth Session, Karachi, (Gujarati text). Gujarati Sahitya Parishad Office, Andheri, 1941. [1237]

Records the activities of the thirteenth session of the conference held at Karachi and includes the large number of papers read there.

Shows with the help of contemporary, official manuscript records, that the Sudder Nizamut Adalat was first established in Calcutta.

— The Accession of Nizam-ud-Dowla to the Throne of Bengal and the Position of the East India Company. BPP. LX, pp. 19-34. [1242]

Narrates some of the events that followed the death of Mir Jafar in February 1765, and indicates the position of the Nawab of Bengal vis-a-vis the East India Company in the sixties of the 18th century. The paper is based mainly upon manuscript records, in most cases hitherto unpublished, in the Imperial Record Office of the Government of India.

Banerjee, Indubhusan—[Alivardi and his Times] by Kalikinkar Datta, Calcutta, 1939. See ABIHI. II, No. 180. [1243]

"It would be a mistake to regard the history of Alivardi's reign merely as an episode in the local history of Bengal, Behar and Orissa. His efforts to check the Marathas (so ably described in Chapter III of Dr. Datta's book) and to 'restrain the growing ambition of the foreign trading companies' (Narrated with many interesting details in Chapter V) merge it in the stream of general Indian history. Dr. Datta has done ample justice to the political and administrative abilities of this masterful Nawab". CR. LXXIX (104), pp. 83-84.

Chandradas, Prangopal—The New Year or the Bihu Festival in Assam. TMR. LXX, pp. 144-148, 7 illus. [1246]

Narrates how the festival is celebrated. The New Year of the Assamese falls on the fourteenth day of April.

Chatterjee, Nandalal—Some Anglo-French Disputes in Bengal during Post-Diwany Period. IHQ. XVII, pp. 324-339. [1247]

Narrates the disputes which culminated in strong measures taken against the authorities of Chander Nagore which provoked acrimonious complaints from the French Court to the Government of England, as a result of which, after Verelst's departure from India, a representative was appointed by the Crown to report on the differences between the servants of the two Companies in Bengal.

Das Gupta, A. P.—The Settlement of Dacca, Sylhet and Tipperah in 1772. In No. 1222, pp. 73-77. [1248]

Describes the Settlement of the Committee of the Lands in the Dacca district including the arrangements arrived at for Sylhet, Tipperah and Chittagong.

— [Verelst's Rule in India] by Nandalal Chatterjee, Calcutta, 1940 (?) See ABIHI. III, No. 1498. [1249]

"This is a detailed study of the problems of Verelst's administration in Bengal (1767-69). The subject is undoubtedly an important one and deserves special study, particularly because the period illustrates the dual system at actual work. Clive the author of the dual system had left Verelst to run it, and from the point of view of the history of the development of British administration in Bengal, Verelst's rule is of interest as showing how he sought to work it and failed."

Gives some letters in connection with the precaution taken by the English to defend the city of Patna.

— Defence of the Frontier of Bihar and Orissa against Maratha Pindari Incursions. BPP. LX, pp. 49-57. [1256]

Narrates the predatory inroads of the Marathas and the Pindaris in Bihar and Orissa, and the measures taken to prevent the incursions.

Roy, N. R.—The Muslim Conquest of Bengal (Under Ikhtiyaruddin Muhammad bin Bakhtiyār). IHQ. XVII, pp. 92–96. [1257]

Narrates the episode of the Muslim conquest of Bengal based on Tabaqat-i-Nāsiri.

Sarkar, Benoy Kumar—Bengal Culture as a System of Mutual Acculturations. CR. LXXIX, pp. 6–14. [1258]

The Bengali genius for conquering and dominating new cultural institutions and ideologies and establishing the empire of Bengalicism on all and sundry was in perpetual evidence likewise in the mediaeval times for five centuries and a half from Bakhtiyar Khilji to Sirajdaula. Politically speaking, it is worth while to observe that during this period Bengal was directly connected with Delhi, i.e. Northern India for not more than eighty-five years.

Sircar, Dines Chandra—[Nandpur] (A Forgotten Kingdom). Part I, by Kumar Bidyadhar Singh Deo, Cuttack, 1939. See ABIHI. II, No. 422. [1261]

“Attempt to give an account of the old kingdom of Nandpur, which is the same as the modern Jeypore State. . . . The author does not appear to be quite up to date. His remarks about the religion of the Nandas (p. 147) and the Salakenoi of Ptolemy (p. 153; cf. Sircar op. cit., p. 71) are not supported by evidence. The real name of the author’s Vijayachandrakhya (p. II et passim) seems to be Vijayachandra.

In spite of the shortcomings, the book is interesting for its wealth of materials and for the fact that it deals with an important period of Orissan history.” CR. LXXIX, pp. 84–85.

Srinivasacharyar, C. S.—[The Santal Insurrection of 1855–57] by Kalikinkar Datta. Calcutta, 1940. See ABIHI. III, No. 1507. [1262]

“The Santal Insurrection of 1855–57 in Bhagalpur has not been studied in any fulness till now. . . . Dr. K. K. Datta who has utilised in the monograph the available contemporary documents and other material, finds its main cause in the economic grievances of the Santals which were worsened by the action of Bengali and up-country merchants and money-lenders. The movement was not anti-British in the beginning, but was chiefly directed against the oppressive mahajans and traders. JIH. XX, p. 230.

Upadhyaya, S. C.—[Nandpur: A Forgotten Kingdom] by Kumar Bidyadhar Singh Deo. Cuttack, 1939. See ABIHI. II, No. 422. [1263]

“The author has very successfully attempted to put together the various loose parts of the chain of the history of Nandpur. The narrative is carried down to the time of the first occupation of the Northern Circars by the East India Company under a farman from the Emperor Jehangir when Vikram I., held sway over Jeypore.”

Munshi, K. M.—The Early Aryans in Gujarat. Thakkar Vassanji Madhavaji Lectures, University of Bombay. 7" x 4½", pp. iii + 120. University of Bombay, 1941. [1275]

"Mr. Munshi elaborates a theme which he had touched upon in a short article in the Indian Antiquary about 20 years ago. The lectures undertake the admittedly difficult task of giving an account of the entry and achievements of the Aryans in Gujarat in prehistoric times. The main thesis of Mr. Munshi is as follows:—The Bhrigus and the Haihayas were Aryans of 'the outer band' who had entered India much earlier than the Aryans of 'the inner band', who were mainly the authors of the Vedic literature. The Bhrigus were closely associated with the Saryatas, who were the first Aryan tribe to occupy Gujarat. Children of Saryata, Anata, Reva and Revata have given their names to northern Gujarat, the Narmada and the mount Raivata respectively. The Haihayas where the eastern neighbours of the Bhrigus and the Saryatas were occupying the territories between the Betva and the Jumna and often carried their victorious arms right up to Bénares. Later on there arose a conflict between the Bhrigus and the Haihayas, the battle of which were fought in Gujarat. The famous Battle of Ten Kings mentioned in the Rigveda is also connected with this conflict". A. S. Altekar, JBHU. VII, Pt. 2, pp. 221–222.

Mahalingam, T. V.—Administration and Social Life under Vijayanagar. Madras University Historical Series No. 15. 9 $\frac{3}{4}$ " x 6 $\frac{3}{4}$ ", pp. xiv + 476, 8 plates, Madras University, Madras, 1940. [1291]

"The book is divided into two parts, part I, dealing with administration and part II, with social life. Besides a short introduction, part I, six chapters discussing such interesting topics as central government (II), revenue administration (III), law, justice and police (IV), military organisation—warfare and diplomacy (V), provincial government (VI), and local government (VII). Each of the chapters is sub-divided into several sections; Ch. V on military organisation, e.g., has sub-divisions discussing strength, recruitment, divisions of the army, the march and the fight, the fort and the siege, military organisation, character of the wars, and foreign policy. Part II dealing with social life is divided into four chapters discussing such topics as society (VIII), religion (IX), education and literature (X), and architecture, sculpture and painting (XI). Here also the chapters are sub-divided into different sections, that on society e.g., having sub-divisions dealing with castes and communities in the empire, social institutions, women, court life, habitation and food and dress, luxuries, and games and amusements. The book contains genealogical tables of the four Vijayanagara dynasties and an exhaustive index". Dines Chandra Sircar, IHQ. XVII, pp. 275-276.

"The author has brought together a mass of relevant information on each subject, and cited authorities for all important statements. His method is strictly critical and objective, and his style is concise and simple. In a book of nearly five hundred pages, full of detailed information, it is not difficult, perhaps, to specify errors, or mistakes here and there. But we are deeply impressed by the industry, sincerity and honesty of the author who has tried to depict the administration and social life of Vijayanagara in a scholarly and interesting manner".

R. G. Majumdar, TMR. LXX, p. 177.

"Ever since 1900, when the last Mr. Robert Sewell published his Forgotten Empire, the kingdom of Vijayanagar, in which all the powers of mediaeval Hinduism were rallied in magnificent union, have deservedly attracted keen attention among students of history Now Mr. T. V. Mahalingam, followed on somewhat similar lines, has given us his Administration and Social Life under Vijayanagara, a useful and generally judicious survey of the data, chiefly from inscriptions and characters, relating to public and private life in the great empire..... It is regrettable that Mr. Mahalingam should have fallen into the gross error of writing Jina with a long i (Jinalaya and Jinanatha on p. 316) is almost as bad. We wonder too, where he picked up the pedantic and incorrect spelling 'Hoysala',.....Finally, we are surprised to find in his account of professional associations and guilds no mention of the Virabananjus or Vira-va; anjiyar, the great syndicate of traders extending over Southern India and beyond, which survived into the seventeenth century, and probably even later".

Vol. I, by S. Srikantha Sastri. Mysore, 1940. See ABIHI.
III, No. 1676. [1303]

"The learned author has collected and arranged in an approximately chronological order passages relating to the history of the Karnāṭaka region from inscriptions and works in Kanarese, Telugu, Tamil, Sanskrit and Marathi. There are also a few passages from translations of works in Greek (the Periplus, Ptolemy's Geography, the farce in the Oxyrhynchus Papyri No. 4137), Chinese (Yuan Chwang's Si-yü-ki) and (Persian Tabari). The extracts in the volume under notices refer to the Śātakarnīs and Kadambas of Kuntala, the Cālukyas of Bādāmi and Kalyāṇī, the Rāṣṭrakūṭas of Mālkhed, the Kalacuryas of Kalyāṇī and the Yādavas of Devagiri His short introduction deals with such interesting topics relating to Karnataka as its geography, political history, arts and literature, religion, social and economic conditions and Karnataka culture. The volume contains no less than twenty genealogical tables". IHQ. XVII, pp. 133-134.

Cadell, P. R.—[Warren Hastings and Oudh.] by C. Collins Davies, London, 1939. See ABIHI. II, No. 332. [1306]

"It is satisfactory to find that Mr. Davies in his careful and well-documented study agrees with the verdict, now generally accepted by impartial historians, that in these cases Hastings was either justified, or, at the worst, was compelled by circumstances, for most of which he had not responsibility, to take a line sterner and more unbending than his own inclination or unfettered judgment would have suggested".

— The Provinces of the Delhi Sultanate. JBHU. VI, pp. 110–114. [1308]

Deals with the type of provinces grown under the Sultans of Delhi and the system of administration prevalent under their rule. Shows also that the Sultans, though hard pressed by numerous problems had not altogether neglected the provinces.

Dutt, S. K.—[Warren Hastings and Oudh] by C. Collin Davies, London, 1939. See ABIHI. II, No. 332. [1309]

“This is a monograph on Warren Hastings’s relations with Oudh and is based on original manuscript sources at the India Office Library and the British Museum . . . Critics in the past have often been misinformed and the violence of their language has defeated its own purpose. In the present day the pendulum has swung in the opposite direction and the tendency now is to shower offerings at his shrine. One can be an admirer of Hastings without upholding every action of his. For there was much in this action that cannot be justified. It is precisely in this respect that Dr. Davies has belied our expectations to some extent. His defence of the Rohilla War is not convincing.” IHQ. XVII, pp. 134–136.

Gurbax, G. R.—An Account of the Accession of Nawab Sa’adat Ali Khan to the Musnad of Oudh. (From Unpublished Sources). In No. 1222., pp. 158–162. [1310]

On the death of Asaf-ud-daula, Nawab-Wazir of Oudh in 1797, Wazir Ali’s succession was secured through the influence of the Begum and Alma Ali Khan. Sa’adat Ali Khan claimed the right of succession on the ground that Wazir Ali’s birth was spurious. The events are narrated.

Discusses the Tarikh-Mohtasham of Mohtasham Burhanulmulk’s time (1732) to the rest of Munna Jan. (1837). Concludes that Mohtasham Khan’s contribution to history of Oudh proves the best and the most authentic record on the period yet discovered.

Prasad, Bisheswar—The Presidency of Agra. JUPHS. XIV, Pt. 1, pp. 78-88. [1312]

By the Government of India Act of 1919 a Governor with a Council was appointed for the United Provinces. But long before this date an attempt was made to create a full government for these territories to be known as Presidency of Agra with a Governor. The Parliament provided for it by statute, the Directors sanctioned its institution, Sir Charles Metcalfe "assumed charge" as Governor, yet the Government did not function, and before a year had elapsed the Legislature suspended its creation and authorised the Company to have a Lieutenant-Governor instead. It is the story of its creation and the powers and functions assigned to it, that the writer describes in this paper.

Sen, S. N.—Lord Auckland on Delhi. BPP. LXI, pp. 1-12. [1313]

"Step by step the Khan's activities are traced down to his expulsion of the Afghans and submission to Maratha suzerainty in 1758..... During his short life he witnessed four stages of struggle for power in the Punjab made respectively by Nadir Shah, Ahmad Shah, the Marathas and the Sikhs. The bibliography for this monograph on Adina Beg is equally sumptuous and efficiently annotated. The work is an authoritative chapter in the tangled web of mid-eighteenth century Punjab History.

Aiyangar, S. Krishnaswami—The Gold Charter of the Foundation of British Power in India. In No. 1222, pp. 4-9. [1317]

The authority of the British foundation in Madras rests upon a couple of gold charters, sometimes reckoned as three, which gave them the bit of land, their first territorial possession in India. The charters are stated to be respectively gold cowle given them by Damarla Venkata, governor of the province of Wandiwash and the principal minister of the empire of Vijayanagara. The second cowle is stated to be that granted by Venkatapatiirayalu the emperor of Vijayanagara. The third is said to be a cowle granted by emperor Srirangarayalu.

Banerjee, A. C. — [Sawānihāt-I-Mumtāz of Muḥammad Karim.] Tr. by Dr. S. Muḥammad Husāyn Nainar, Madras, 1940. See ABIHI. III, No. 1655. [1319]

"This volume contains the major portion of the English translation of Sawānihāt-i-Mumtāz, a Persian chronicle which gives a detailed history of the reign of Wālājah II (Nawab of the Carnatic, 1795-1801 A.D.), with a brief account of the last years of the reign of his father, Muḥammad Āli (Wālājah I), together with a summary of the events in the reigns of Wālājah III, Wālājah IV and Wālājah V. The author of this chronicle is Muḥammad Karim, a grandson (daughter's son) of Muḥammad Āli.....Dr. Nainar is a competent and conscientious translator, but his Introduction offers little assistance to readers who are in touch with the Carnatic history. He could have given us valuable supplementary information if he had consulted the documents preserved in Madras and New Delhi. The volume contains useful glossary, but unfortunately there is no index".

"It carries the history of the Nawabs of the Carnatic from the battle of Ambur to the capture of Pondicherry (1749-1761), a decisive period in the struggle between the French and the English for supremacy in the Carnatic. Clive, Coote, Dupleix, Lally all appear on the scene side by side with the numerous Indian chieftains: these latter on account of their internal feuds, and above all on account of their financial liabilities to the Company, are little more than tools in the hands of their European friends". *MR. "This is an excellent book on Madras. It traces the history of the growth of the town of Madras from its foundation to the present day. In 1639 Francis Day obtained a grant of the village from the Raja of Chandragiri through the good offices of the Damarla brothers. Ultimately the British abandoned Masulipatam and made Madras the seat of the Presidency. Incidentally, it was their first territorial acquisition in India, if we leave out the significant fort at Armgaon."

Gopalachari, K.—Early History of the Andhra Country. pp. xvi + 226, University of Madras, Madras, 1941. [1324]

"As regards the general treatment of the work itself, Dr. Nilakanta Sastri has aptly remarked in his Foreword: "Dr. Gopalachari's thesis does not claim in any way to revolutionise our interpretation of the history of the period; its value consists in a large number of detailed suggestions confirming results now generally accepted by stronger arguments or bringing forward fresh points of view."

In spite of this, it may be pointed out incidentally that some of the authors' conclusions will not pass by unchallenged, especially as regards the original habitat of the Satavahanas or the family name of the Vaingeyakars. There is also the distinction made by Dr. Sukthankar between the Satavahanas and the Andhras—a distinction to which the author takes exception, but which for all that, will still prove attractive to many. However, these remarks in no way detract from the general excellence of this historical account."

Iyer, K. V. Padmanabha—Early History of the Sourashtras.

JTSML. II, Pt. 1, pp. 8-9.

[1325]

A broad description of the Sourashtras who are said to be people scattered in the South.

Kuriyan, George—The Distribution of Population in the City of Madras. IGJ. XVI, pp. 58-70, illus. [1326]

Shows how Madras has grown up on a strip of land of very tame topography.

— The Geographic Basis of the Legendary Origin of Kerala. IGJ. XVI, pp. 240-354, 2 sketch maps. [1327]

Narrates two legends in connection with the origin of Malabar, similar to the two legends of the creation of the Konkan by Parasurama; one by throwing a surpa into the ocean, and the other by throwing an axe. The writer attempts to show that these legends are based on geological disturbance.

Majumdar, R. C—[A History of the Holy Shrine of Sri Venkatesa in Tirupati] Vol I, by S. Krishnasvami Aiyanagar, Madras, 1940. See ABIHI. III, No. 1629. [1328]

"The general account of the political, literary, and religious history of South India is given at such great length that the temple of Tirupati recedes into the background. To devote long chapters to the history of Sangama literature and Alwars including the controversies over their chronology or to describe at length the history of the Pallavas and other ruling dynasties simply because passing references are made to Tirupati in the former, and a remote connection might or might not exist between the temple and individual rulers of the latter, is not only uncalled for, but positively interferes with the continuity of the narrative. The volume before us would appear to many to be more a scholarly, though somewhat rambling, discourse on some aspects of the culture of South India than a history of Tirupati in the strict sense of the term". TMR. LXX, pp. 382-383.

Narasimhachari, K.—Annals of Old Madras. Judge-Advocates : Admiralty Court. JIH. XX, Pt. 1, pp. 111-119.

Pawar, A. G.—Extracts from the “Letter Book of Thomas Pitt”, (October 1699—October 1709). JIH. XX, Pt. 3, pp. 314–330. [1330]

A selection of letters written by Thomas Pitt, Governor of Fort St. George. The letters were written by the Governor in his personal capacity and are contained in nine volumes in the British Museum, Add. 22, 842 to 22, 850. They throw light on historical events during 1699 and 1709.

Pillai, K. Appadurai—Kumari Kandam, (Tamil text). pp. 96. 8 plates. South Indian Saiva Siddhanta Works, Madras, 1941. [1331]

An account of a portion of Tamil land being at one time, submerged in the Indian Ocean.

Pisharoti, K. R.—Vikrama the Great of Calicut. BRVRI IX, Pt. 1, pp. 19–41. [1332]

Introduction and chapter II, of the author's history of Vikrama the Great of Calicut. The date of the Great Vikrama is not known but the writer tentatively puts down the age to the middle of the latter half of the 15th century.

— The Collateral Branches of the Travancore Royal Family. Note. ER. LXVII, pp. 96–99. [1333]

One of the pet theories of Travancore historians is the theory of collateral branches of the ancient Venat, which is equated with the modern Travancore Royal Family. According to this theory, it is assumed that all the various kingdoms in South Kerala were but different branches of the same family. The author examines the bases on which the theory has been propped up; and comes to the conclusion that in spite of its wide acceptance, the theory has no historical evidence in its support.

Qanungo, K. R.—[Sources of the History of the Nawabs of the Carnatic, Part II] Burhan's Tuzuk-i-Walājāhi by Dr. Muhammad Husayn Nainar. Madras, 1939. See ABIHI. II, No. 666. [1334]

“Dr. Muhammad Husayn Nainar, Head of the Department of Arabic, Persian and Urdu, has rendered a valuable service by publishing a lucid and very faithful English translation of Burhan's Tuzuk-i-Walājāhi. He has added copious extract from English Records to enlighten the text here and there, and given a useful glossary of Persian words. This translation is a much needed contribution to historical literature of South India from 1749 to 1761 A.D.”

TMR, LXX, p. 178.

Reddy, D. V. S.—Dr. Samuel Brown: Physician and Proprietor of Madras in the 17th Century. JMU. XIII, pp. 84-97. [1335]

“Dr. Samuel Brown was a prominent person in the early days of Fort St. George. He was popular and famous as a physician and surgeon in Madras and its environs. But his friendly dealings with the Moors and his attempt to become a Zamindar were viewed with suspicion by his superiors and employers. His guilt in the accidental poisoning of Mr. Wheeler and his duel with Dr. Blackwell made him still more notorious”. The writer narrates the various incidents, and gives briefly Dr. Brown's personal achievements.

Saraswati, S. K.—[A History of Tirupati] by S. Krishnaswami Aiyangar, Madras, 1940. See ABIHI. III, No. 1629. [1336]

“In seventeen chapters the author has given us the history of the Tirupati establishment from its foundation down to the end of the 18th century A. D. He has drawn his material from literature as well as from inscriptions and should be congratulated on the vast mass of information that he has been able to gather”.

CR. LXXVIII, p. 71.

Sarkar, Jagadish Narayan—Mir Jamla and the English in Madras, (1655-58). JBORS. XXVII, pp. 96-112. [1337]

A brief study of the incidents which led to Mir Jamla to lay siege to Madras in 1657.

— The English in Madras and Mir Jamla (1652-55). Based on English Factory Records. JIH. XX, Pt. 2, pp. 144-158. [1338]

“Details plainly show the pre-occupations of both the E. I. Co., and Mir Jamla with their respective interests and troubles during the period under review. The former endeavoured to maintain outwardly friendly relations with the Nawab, as in the past, and to secure the defences of Madras against all possible emergencies both internal and external. The Nawab in his turn, did not want to be embroiled with the English, at a critical juncture, when his attention was taken up with the task of consolidation of his position in the Carnatic and with his efforts to be independent of the Sultans of Golkonda”.

Sastri, K. A. Nilakanta—Historical Method in Relation to Problems of South Indian History. Bulletin of the Department of Indian History and Archaeology No. 7. 9 $\frac{1}{4}$ ” x 6”, pp. 56. University of Madras, 1941. [1339]

The main object of the author is “to consider the different types of historical evidence bearing on the specific problem of South Indian History and the methods of dealing with them". After having discussed certain general principles in Chapter I, the author devotes the rest of the booklet to a detailed consideration of the different types of literary and archaeological evidence available for the study of South Indian History.

Sastri, K. A. Nilakanta—Tirumala Naik, the Portuguese and the Dutch. BPP. LX, pp. 35-43. [1340]

A brief study of the relations of Tirumala Naik with the European Trading Companies, especially the Portuguese and the Dutch. Tirumala Naik was the ruler of the kingdom comprising the extremity of the Indian peninsula, roughly Salem and Trichinopoly and the country south of it. During Tirumala's reign the Portuguese power in India was on the decline, and the Dutch were beginning to put forth strong efforts to drive the Portuguese out of Ceylon and the Madras Coast.

— Some Dutch Documents on the Siege of Jinji and Capitulation of Pondicherry, 1692-93 A. D. In No. 1222, pp. 34-38. [1341]

Summarises six documents bearing on South Indian History from Vol. 4 of Corpus Diplomaticum Neerlando Indicum. (1935).

Sastri, K. N. Venkatasubha—History in the Maps and Government Records Relating to the Island of Seringapatam. In No. 1222, pp. 178-181. [1342]

Compares three maps of the island of Seringapatam, dated 1775, 1885 and 1937, and draws conclusion.

Sinha, N. K.—Hyder Ali's Relations with the British (1760-67). Based on unpublished records in the Government Record Office, Madras. In No. 1222, pp. 67-72. [1343]

Describes the events after 1760. Hyder's negotiations with the Nizam. Madhava Rao's attempt to plunder Mysore and the East India Company.

Sinha, Narendra Krishna—Haidar Ali, Vol. I,—1721-1779. 8 1/4" x 5 1/4", pp. 294. Pub. : Author, Calcutta, 1941. [1344]

"Dr. Sinha has utilised materials collected from many places.... He is to be specially congratulated upon his successful handling of a vast mass of Marathi material, which has given a new perspective —for Haidar's contact with the Marathas was very intimate throughout his career—and enabled him to throw new light upon little known aspects of Maratha policy after Panipat. Hardly less interesting is Dr. Sinha's unqualified condemnation of the bungling diplomacy of the Madras Government, based on a thorough analysis of unpublished official documents." I. Banerjee, IHQ. XVII, p. 405.

Based on Marathi, Portuguese, Dutch and French sources, attempts to throw new light on the career and character of one of the most intransigent opponents of the English in India. The volume carries the story to a point within three years of Haidar Ali's death which occurred on December 7, 1782. The author is very severe upon the 'incredible bungling' of the Madras Presidency in their conduct of foreign policy. 'Their hollow alliances and diplomatic counterplots, he writes, 'were completely foiled by Haidar, who made them look ridiculous'. Editor.

Sircar, Dines Chandra—[Burhan's Tuzak-i-Walajahi, Part II.]
by S. Muhammad Husayn Nainar, Madras, 1939. See
ABIHI. II, No. 666. [1345]

"The first half of the translation of the Tuzak-i-Walajahi by Burhan ibn Hasan was published by Prof. Nainar in 1934. Since then students of Indian history had been eagerly awaiting the publication of the concluding portion of this very interesting work which throws much light on the rise of British power in the Deccan. Walajah (literally, "of elevated dignity") was the title of Muhammad Ali, the celebrated Nawab (1749-95) of Arcot or of the Carnatic, son of Anwaru'd-Din. It was conferred on Muhammad Ali by the Mughal emperor Ali Gawhar Shah Alam (1759-1806) after the capture of Pondicherry by the former in 1761." IHQ. XVII, p. 274.

Srinivasachari, C. S.—The Madras Sepoy. NR. XIII, pp. 367-385. [1346]

An attempt to give a brief historical account of the Madras Indian Army, and to remove from the people of South India the stigma of their non-martial character and temper which came to be attached to them.

Rajputana and Central India

Muni, Kantisagarji—Chittodni Gazal ane Sankshipta Itihas, (Gujarati text). SFGST. V, Pt. 4, pp. 458-472. [1353]

The Ode of Chittor and its history in brief. Hitherto unknown poem regarding the fort of Chittor a copy of which was discovered by the writer in an old Jain Library of Anantanathji in Bombay. The manuscript is in three pages. Another copy of the same poem with certain variations was discovered by the writer in another Jain temple at Nagpur. Here the poem is edited with notes. The poem is in Rajasthani Hindi; dated 1708 V. S. (A. D. 1692), and throws a flood of light on the history of the fort as well as the dynasty. The author of the poem is one Khatal.

Reu, Bisheshwar Nath—False Challenge against the Seniority of the Jodhpur House. JIH. XX, Pt. 1, pp. 22-27. [1354]

Discusses the statement in Ojha's History of Rajputana (See ABIHI. II, No. 672) that Bikaner was senior in lineage over Jodhpur. Concludes: So far as history is concerned Jodhpur was the seat of the Government of Jodhaji the father of Bikaji, and was succeeded by Satalji, the elder brother of Bikaji, and if he (Satalji) adopted one of the younger brothers of Bikaji (though it has not yet been proved), Bikaner cannot claim its seniority over Jodhpur.

Reu, Bisheshwar Nath—Maharaja Abhai Singh of Jodhpur and Maharaja Sujan Singh of Bikaner. In No. 1222, pp. 202-203. [1355]

Gives an English translation of a letter of Maharaja Abhai Singh written from Nagpur addressed to his ambassador at the Mughal Court, giving the terms of a treaty between Jodhpur and Bikaner. The letter exposes the weakness of the Mughal Court and the invasion of the Marathas of Gujarat, Malwa and Rajputana.

(2) A translation of a sanad granted to Raja Qadir Ali, the grandson of Raja Muzaffar Ali, who was restored to the Raj in 1780 by Cleveland, the Civil Collector of Bhagalpur through the Parwana of restoration was issued a year after Warren Hastings.

The writer then investigates: The status of Captain Browne, the scope of rights created by the sanad, and the status of Raja Qadir Ali.

Clawson, H. Phelps—By Their Works. Illustrated from the Collections in the Buffalo Musuem of Science. pp. 21 + 236, 1 coloured plate, illus. Buffalo Society of Natural Science, New York, 1941. [1399]

This handbook briefly describes the history and culture of the various peoples represented in the archaeological and ethnological collections in the Buffalo Museum of Science. The student or casual reader may find something to awaken his curiosity and make him wish to learn more about these people who are gone, and of those who, like the Indians, Africans, and South Sea Islanders, still retain something of their ancient culture.

The author deals with the general life of each period; with its dwellings, its graves, as well as clothing worn, the implements and weapons used.

Datta, Kalikinkar—Some Unpublished English Letters of Historical Importance. BPP. LX, pp. 58-73. [1400]

An account of the career of Paolo di Avitabile the best known of all the European adventurer who entered the Sikh service in the early part of the last century.

— European Adventurers of Northern India. AR. Vol. 37, pp. 785-794. [1407]

Gives a brief account of the rise and growth of the Sikh kingdom—the last great independent state in India—and the scene of various exploits. He then gives a short account of the European adventurers, and in particular, of those whose careers fall into the earlier part of the nineteenth century. These are: General Jean Francois Allard, Jean Baptiste Ventura, Claude Auguste Court, Alexander Gardiner, Charles Masson, Dr. Josiah Harlan and Dr. Martin Honogberger.

Gense, J. H.—[A College Text-Book of Indian History, Vol. I, India Down to A. D. 1200]. By R. Sathianathaier, Madras, 1940. See ABIHI. III, No. 1876. [1408]

"The book opens with an introductory chapter, in which Prof. Sathianathaier discourses on various topics, either of general historical interest, or in a special manner connected with the work in hand, which is the orderly marshalling of events, whose congeries is limited under the heading "Indian history".....There is no doubt about it Professor's book contains a wealth of information, and his work also bears the seal of personal craftsmanship. Prof. Sathianathaier is not a mere compiler; he is a roadmaker and a traveller: he has himself trodden the long road of centuries; and he has made it easy for those who wish to walk in the footsteps to undertake the weary journey".

Guenon, Rene—East and West. Translated by William Massey, $8\frac{1}{2}'' \times 5\frac{1}{4}''$, pp. 257, Luzac, London, 1941. [1416]

“Maintains that only the East has gained and retained this true knowledge, of which religion and philosophy are but a part. In his enthusiasm for this true metaphysic he deprecates modern Western trends of thoughts. He goes even so far as to deny any permanent value to Western science and scholarship. He voices his plea in such an uncompromising way that even one who takes, for instance, philosophy more as a necessary and reliable means than as a final aim in itself, feels inclined to take the part of his opponents”.

Betty Haimann. BSOS. X, p. 1047.

Guha, Satisa C.—Advancement of Knowledge by means of Writing and Printing. JBHU. VI, pp. 56-62. [1417]

A study of the development of writing; when printing on paper in the modern ages was introduced in India.

Gupte, Y. R.—The High Road between Nasik and North India. BISMQ. XXI, Pt. 3, pp. 79-81. (Marathi text). [1418]

Points out that the ancient road went via Chandwad and that the temple should be ascribed to a period between the 11th and the 13th centuries A. D.

Gyani, S. D.—Ancient India and the Outer World. (Continued) BaV. III, Pt. 1, pp. 77-86. [1419]

A brief account of the spread of Indian culture both in the East and the West from the earliest times down to the tenth century of the Christian era.

Harshe, R.G.—Subandhu's Home. In No. 4434, pp. 214-220. [1420]

Admits that owing to the want of authoritative evidence it is a matter of speculation to talk of Subandhu's home, but does not agree with Mr. Manomohan Ghosh that Subandhu's home was in Bengal. Speculates that Subandhu's home was in Central India.

Hornell, James—Sea-Trade in Early Times. Aty. XV, No. 59, pp. 233-256, 1 plate, 8 illus. [1421]

Deals with the rise and fall of the Ghaznavid dynasty. Besides the narrative of political events some chapters have also been devoted to the cultural activities and the form of Government of this period.

James, E. O.—[Holy Images: An Inquiry into Idolatry and Image Worship in Ancient Paganism and in Christianity] by Edwyn Bevan, London, 1940. See ABIHI. III, No. 652. [1426]

"The repudiation of idolatry be certain of the higher religious—notably Judaism, Zoroastrianism, Islam and some forms of Christianity and Hinduism—has arisen from the conclusion that the object bears no real resemblance to the divinity portrayed rather than from any refusal to associate the divine with the natural.....This volume, by a distinguished historian and Hellenist, is a mine of valuable information excavated with supreme skill and precision." Man. XLI, (1941), p. 23.

Johnson, Helen M.—Grains of Mediæval India. JAOS. Vol. 61, Pt. 3, pp. 167-171. [1427]

A study of grains mentioned in Nemicandra's Pravacanasāroddhāra and in the commentary of the Kalpasūtra named Subodhikā. The word grain dhānya is used here in the wider sense of the word. The list gives a fair picture of agriculture in Western India in the 12th century and the same grains are cultivated to-day, with a possible exception of flax.

Joshi, V. V.—Clash of Three Empires. A study of British Conquest of India with Special Reference to the Maratha People. With a Foreword by Sir Shafaat Ahmad Khan. 8" x 5 1/4", pp. 207. Kitabistan, Allahabad, 1941. [1428]

"In this book Mr. V. V. Joshi examines the general events of the eighteenth century India, and shows clearly the causes that led to the decline of the Moghul empire, and the ruin of the short-lived Maratha empire. The study takes us again to the fall of the Maratha empire and the final establishment of the British power in India."

V. R. R. Dikshitar, JIII. XX, pp. 340-341.

"We agree in a general way with Mr. Joshi's treatment and conclusion in the latter half of the book dealing with the establishment of the British power. The Marathas could not step in the shoes of Akbar and so the British did it." BDCRI. III, Pt. 3, p. 401.

"This is an epoch-making work in Indian history. The seventeenth and eighteenth centuries are reviewed with special reference to the rise of Maratha people. It answers two fundamental questions—the nature and reason of the Maratha power and the causes of easy British conquest of India. It is indeed an unusual book."

Law, Bimala Churn—India as Described in Early Texts of Buddhism and Jainism. 8vo. pp. xiii + 315, 2 maps. Luzac, London, 1941. [1438]

"The work is divided into five chapters dealing with Geography, Kings and Peoples, Social Life and Economic Conditions, Religion, and Education and Learning. It is at once obvious that Dr. Law had undertaken to put himself to vast labour and effort in compiling his facts from the complete Buddhist and Jaina canon, and it may be admitted that his resolute will has made him triumph over the difficulties of his self-imposed task. The result is the presentation in a volume of limited extent of a comprehensive picture of ancient Indian life as lived both in the places of the rich and the hamlets of the poor. A vast array of facts effectively marshalled presents to us kings and courtiers, saints and knaves, calculating money-lenders with their promissory notes (pāṇṇā) and records of wealth on gold and copper plates, resourceful merchants and skilled craftsmen...Dr. B. C. Law's work, careful and accurate in every detail, represents the intensive phase which Indian historical studies are now entering as a result of the labour of Indian scholars in this country. The copious index at the end in 25 pages has greatly increased the utility of the book."

General history of India.

Menon, T. Sudhakara—Our Iron Industry. BRVRI. IX, Pt. 1, pp. 11-14. [1443]

A brief sketch of the industry followed from very ancient times. The industry is referred to in the Manusmṛti, Matsya Purāṇa and other ancient literature.

Mirashi, V. V.—Tritasaurya, In No. 1434, pp. 290-293. [1444]

Discusses the word Tritasaurya which occurs in the Ratanpur inscription, as the name of the country from which Kalingaraja proceeded to conquer Dakṣiṇa Kosala.

Misra, Padma—Vāhika and Bāhlīka. IC. VIII, Pt. 1, pp. 85-89. [1445]

Vāhika as the name of a country and of a people is generally found in Sanskrit literature. The late Dr. K. P. Jayaswal identifies it with Sind. The author does not agree with Jayaswal. Concludes that Vāhika was an earlier name of the Punjab, as it is mentioned not only by Pāṇini but also in such an early work as the Śatapātha Brāhmaṇa. After some time it became confounded with Bāhlīka from the occupation of the Punjab by the Kuṣāṇas, who had originally emigrated from Balkh. The two names were interchangeable, for some time, as both are found in the Mahābhārata, but later on Vāhika was completely replaced by Bāhlīka, which alone is to be found in the Rāmāyaṇa and the Purāṇas.

Misra, S. C.—[Pre-Buddhist India]. by Ratilal N. Metha. Bombay, 1939. See ABIHI. II, No. 262. [1446]

The book is a valuable and comprehensive commentary on the materials in the Jatakas and will be helpful to all students of the subject particularly to those who would study it and check up the information in the light of other sources exactly here that both the merit and shortcoming of the book come into view. The author himself puts it in his preface that he had considerable doubts in his mind regarding the appropriateness of the title he chose for his subject, namely Pre-Buddhist India, as the word being based entirely on the Jatakas, he was treading on uncertain grounds. But there is something more. It is not only the uncertainty of the Jataka stories that is to be kept in view, but also the very fact that they are folklore and hence in many instances contain a mixture of facts and fancies which can never be adequately understood without reference to other more formal sources". JBORS. XXVII, pp. 279-282.

Mitra, Kalipada—Confession of Two Mutineers. BPP. LXI, pp. 38-45. [1447]

Gives an account of meeting of two companies of the 8th Regiment Native Infantry at Hazaribagh in 1857.

Mookerjee, Dhirendranath—The Contemporaneity of Samudragupta and Augustus Caesar of Rome. ABORI. XXII, Pts. 3-4, pp. 264-271. [1448]

Discusses the identity of the various Indian monarchs named by Greek writers, and concludes that, most of the mighty Gupta monarchs, Candragupta Vikramaditya, Samudragupta Parakrama or Kṛtānta-Paraśu, Kumaragupta and Skandagupta, were known to the Greek and Roman writers of the 1st and 2nd century A. D. This, he says, points unmistakably that the Guptas flourished from the 1st century B. C., of whom Samudragupta Parakrama or Kṛtānta-Paraśu, a mighty monarch, was contemporary of Augustus Caesar of Rome, and as the Greek and Roman writers of the 1st and 2nd century A. D., and downwards mention Samudragupta Parakrama mistakenly in place of the name of Bindusara the Maurya monarch Candragupta's son there remains now not a shadow of doubt that Candragupta I Vikramaditya began to rule from 58 B. C., and he was the originator of the Vikrama Era.

Muni, Kantisarji—Palanpur no Sankshipta Itihas (Gujarati text). SFGST. VI, Pt. 3, pp. 325-344. [1449]

Nadkarni, S. D.—Rāma-Rājya. pp. 128. The Rationalist Association of India, 41, Queen's Road, Bombay, 1941. [1450]

This book was first published in 1932. This is the second edition. The author appraises the age of Rāma. The denunciation of Rāma and of the past ages is too strong and too insympathetic.

Natha, Agarchand—Shabdāṅka arthāt Samkhyā Suchak Shabda Saṅkét. (Hindi text). NPP. XLVI, Pt. 2, pp. 113-134. [1451]

Explains the symbolic expressions, words, and letters in Sanskrit and other Indian languages and literature, that stand for dates, names of persons and places. There are large number of variations of chronograms found in Indian literature. The writer gives large number of illustrations from different sources.

Newton, A. P.—A Hundred Years of the British Empire. Duckworth, London. [1452]

"Prof. A. P. Newton has set out to write a straightforward historical narrative for the intelligent general reader. The arrangement is based upon a threefold division into self-governing dominions, dependencies, and India. . . . The exposition is clear and interesting, the interpretation orthodox in its political stand-point but modern in its historical judgments." EHR. LVI, (Oct. 1941) pp. 676-677.

Oldham, C. E. A. W—[Studies in Indo-Muslim History] by S. N. Hodivala, Bombay, 1939. See ABIHI. II, No. 1103.

"The eight volumes of that monumental work, History of India as told by its own historians, completed about sixty years ago, had attained a well-deserved reputation as indispensable to all serious students of Indo-Muslim history. Since it was compiled, however, many new sources of information have come to light, and scholars have from time to time drawn attention to defects, largely inseparable from a pioneer work of such magnitude. Professor Hodivala, by making a close and systematic study of these volumes, along with relevant original texts, inscriptions, and other data, has been able to suggest an enormous number of correction of interpretation and reading, as well as of identification of persons and places named, thus elucidating a very large number of obscure passages hitherto unexplained or erroneously interpreted. Another useful, though toilsome, task undertaken has been to establish the chronology, where variously recorded, by means of the week-day test, where this could be applied." JRAS. 1941, pp. 78-80.

"A survey to which seventeen British and Indian writers have contributed, giving a synopsis of the nature, extent and effects of the influence which western civilisation has had upon the life and thought of India since the beginning of the sixteenth century, to show what have been the reaction of different classes at different times, and how they have been expressed in word and deed, and to trace the far smaller influence which India has had upon the West. Apart from the editor's share, a conspectus admirably written, of the whole Indian situation, there are a number of special chapters in which the various channels through which the stream of western influence flows are separately traced in considerable detail." LOL. Pinkham, Milfred Worth—Woman in the Sacred Scripture of Hinduism. pp. xii + 239. Columbia University Press, New York, 1941. [1462]

"In the opening paragraphs of her preface, Dr. Pinkham makes it quite clear that she herself is not clear as to the purpose of her book. Further perusal of the pages do not help the reader to make any decision for herself. In the lines quoted above there is more than a suggestion that the volume is intended as a sort of inspirational hand book for Hindu women, as 'material in order to test and evaluate.', but it is difficult to believe that this is a serious intention, for the questions are all from English translations and provide neither a comprehensive list or references, nor sufficient context to be very useful".

Powell-Price, J. C.—Note on the River Sindu of the Malavikagnimitra. JUPHS. XIV, Pt. 2 pp. 125-127. [1463]

Does not agree with B. S. Upidhya in several matters given in JUPHS. XIV, Pt. 1, pp. 9-20.

Prasad, Bisheaswar—The Origins of Provincial Autonomy. Being the History of the Relations between the Central Government and the Provincial Governments in British India from 1860-1919. $8\frac{1}{2}'' \times 5\frac{1}{4}''$, pp. iii + 428. Kitabistan, Allahabad, 1941. [1464]

A history of the relations between the Central Government and the Provincial Government from 1861 to the Montagu-Chelmsford Reforms of 1919. The author traces, by reference to copious and authentic documentary evidence, the steps by which the provinces which were once in a position of utter subordination to the Central gradually came to occupy a position of limited autonomy prior to the Act of 1935.

Pusalkar, A. D.—Signed Arrows: A Note. NIA. III, pp. 414. [1465]

Ramaswami, K. V.—Ancient Indian Republics. IR. Vol. 42, pp. 421-422. [1466]

Points out some of the city-states which existed in ancient India; these were the sanghas forming a type remarkably analogous to the city-states of Greece and Italy.

Ramsden, E. H.—The Halo: A Further Enquiry into its Origin. BM. LXXVII, pp. 123-131, 1 plate, 2 illus. [1467]

Inquires into the origin of the halo which is common on the coinage of the Guptas, where it is found in conjunction with a Parthian motif. Concludes that the Halo of Buddhist and Christian art is not a symbol of doubtful origin and meaningless value, but a specific attribute of kingly glory.

Rao, P. Kodanda—[The Viceroy and Governor-General of India], by A. B. Rudra. See ABIHI. III, No. 1860. [1468]

"The office of the Viceroy and Governor-General of India has no precedents or parallels; it is unique. Its occupant combines in himself the status and functions of the King, the Prime Minister and the Civil Servant. He has the status and immunity from criticism of the King, the responsibility and power of the Prime Minister and the duty of the Civil Servant to carry out orders of the Secretary of State. He is, like the President of the United States of America, not responsible to the Legislature, but, unlike him, can legislate without its consent. He is like himself and like nothing else". TMR. LXX, p. 278.

Raychaudhuri, Hemachandra—The Tapestry of Ancient Indian History. IC. VIII, Pt. 1, pp. 9-21. [1469]

Presidential address (Section I), delivered at the Indian History Congress, Fifth Session, Hyderabad, December. 1941.

Recounts briefly the progress of the study of history in all its phases.

Raychaudhuri, S. P.—A Short Account of the Agricultural Methods Practised in Ancient India. SC. VII, pp. 10-17. [1470]

An account of the agricultural methods employed in prehistoric India is obtained mainly by archaeological evidences, whilst the account of the times of early Indo-Aryans and the Buddhist and Hindu Kings are obtained from early vedic and post-Vedic literature.

Rawlinson, H. G.—The History of the 3rd Battalion, 7th Rajput Regiment (Duke of Connaught's own), pp. 324. Oxford University Press, 1941. [1471]

"The volume is very well produced, adequately supplied with maps, and the story is clearly told, if rather fuller accounts of some of the Sikh war battles would have been helpful. An interesting appendix on uniforms is contributed by the regiment's Colonel, Lt.-General Sir, A. Bingley". EHR. LVI. (Oct. 1941), p. 676.

Regmi, D. R.—How Drink Developed in India: Liquor Control of the 19th Century. NR XIV, pp. 40-53. [1472]

Discusses the use of drink from the Vedic time, and concludes that the British Policy of excise administration was solely responsible for, the unprecedented rise of drink in India during the 19th century.

Sabnis, R. S. K. G.—Find of the Tomb of Ramachandrapanta Amatya. (Marathi Text). BISMQ XXII, Pt. 1, pp. 7-9. [1473]

The spot was unknown till now; recently on the Panhala Fort in course of some repairs to the Rama Temple owned by the descendants of Ramachandrapanta, two tombs were discovered, one of which bears the inscription Sri Ramachandra Nilakantha, which the author identifies as that of Ramachandrapanta Amatya.

Sankalia, H. D.—Parasika and Simhala. BDCRI. II, Pts. 3-4, pp. 401-404. [1474]

Does not agree with the Baroda Archaeological Department with the identification of Parasika with Parsis and Simhala with the Island of Ceylon. Discusses the question and leaves the matter unsolved.

Sankar, K. G.—The Hun Invasion of Hindusthan. NIA. IV, Pt. 1, pp. 36-43. [1475]

Attempts to discover the nucleus of facts underlying the myth of the Hun invasion of Hindustan. Concludes that the Huns invaded Hindustan in Gupta year 136, but were decisively defeated by Skandagupta, and that Toramāṇa and Mihirakula were not Huns but Parthians or Kṣatriyas.

Sarkar, Jagadish Narayan—Administration Interference in the Saltpetre Trade of India in the Seventeenth Century. JIH. XX, pp. 31-48, after p. 136 of the original paging.

A study of the nature and the extent of the interference in saltpetre trade, and shows that Gujarat in the middle of the 17th century was the scene of numerous administrative scandals.

Sastri, K. A. Nilakanta—Caturmahadvipas. JIH. XX, Pt. 1, pp. 61-64. [1477]

Discusses the passage relating to the four islands making up the world which occurs at the end of chapter 41 of the Vāyu Purāṇa.

Sastri, K. S. Ramaswami—The Evolution of Indian Mysticism. AP. XII, Pt. I—What is Mysticism, pp. 243-247; Pt. II—The Way of the Mystic, pp. 310-315; Pt. III—Mysticism and Science, pp. 354-356; Pt. Privately printed for subscribers only by T. Werner Lawrie, Cobhan House, 24/26, Black Friars Lane, London, 1941. [1483]

Treats with the nature and evolution of phallic worship and the diffusion of phallic worship and the character of its ceremonies and symbolism. Chapter XI treats with the Phallic gods of India; the religion of the Hindus; the origin of Hindu phallicism; lingam versus yoni; the nature of the Hindu phallic emblems; the rites of Hindu phallicism and modern Hindu phallic worship.

Sen, Surendra Nath—Survival of some Asokan Forms in Seventeenth Century Bengali In No. 1434, pp. 417-419. [1484]

Points out briefly the nature of a Bengali work by Dom Antonio do Rozario who was a Bengali prince, a son of the king of Bhusna; he was carried away by the Magh pirates of Arakan and sold into slavery. A Portuguese missionary rescued him from his fate and taught him the tenets of Christianity. Antonio returned home and preached Christianity to his countrymen. He compiled a dialogue in Bengali, entitled Arguments Disputos sobre a Ley, which is the subject of the writer's study.

— The Modern Age in India. CR. LXXVIII, pp. 92-101. [1485]

Presidential address, Modern History Section, India History Congress, Lahore, 1940.

After a brief survey of the unity of history, the writer concludes: "The History of modern India has yet to be written. To outsiders India is a land of complexities and contradictions. Her culture has never been exclusive, her civilisation has never been aggressive, her conservation has always been tampered with a toleration all her own. Reverence for the old has never degenerated here to aversion of the new. Assimilation and not annihilation has been her racial policy. It is the future historian to say whether India has been true to herself in the commercial clashes and racial conflicts of the last two centuries. It will be our task to bring together and preserve for the future generations this rightful heritage, the raw materials of Modern history. It will be our duty to rescue from decay and dissolution these indigenous records on which Modern Indian History must be based. It will be our care to rouse the public conscience and to persuade the custodians of the public purse to do their duty by the archives in India, public and private".

Sen, Surendra Nath—“Steam” Johnson. BPP. LX, pp. 6-18. [1486]

Narrates the story of James Henry Johnson who did more than any of his contemporaries to popularise steam navigation in India.

This article is also published in Proceedings of Meetings: Indian History Records Commission, Vol. XVI (1940). See ABHI. III, No. 1879.

Seth, H. C.—Identification of Parvataka and Porus. IHQ. XVII, pp. 172-179. [1487]

Discusses identity of Parvataka or Parvatesvara of the drama Mudrārākṣasa, and is convinced that Parvataka is Iorūs of the Greek historians.

Shah, Tribhuvandas, L.—Ancient India from 900 B. C. to 100 A. D. Vol. IV, $8\frac{1}{2}'' \times 6\frac{1}{2}''$, pp. 20 + 468, 18 plates. Shashikant & Co, Baroda, 1941. [1488]

New theories, said to substantiate with facts and figures from coins, inscriptions and authoritative writers. Begins from the Kuśāṇas and ends with the Śatavāhanas.

— A Plea for a study of Local Records and Traditions. In No. 1222, pp. 99-102. [1492]

Pleads for the study and collection of sources of history, particularly of social history, and the local traditions recorded or unrecorded.

Sherwani, H. K.—“Gangū Bahmanī”. JIH. XX, Pt. 1, pp. 95-99. [1493]

Discusses the term “Gangū Bahmanī” described by Ferishta as the sobriquet of the first Bahmani sovereign. Concludes that the word Bahmani has absolutely no connection with the Brahmans. It only reminded the king of his Zoroastrian origin, which the wise genealogists connected with Bahman and Isfandar.

Singh, Ramadhani—Yaudheya gana ka Itihas (Hindi text). VBQ. June, 1941, p. 640. [1494]

Discusses in brief the growth and location of the Yaudheya republic. A study based on Sanskrit literature and coins.

Sircar, Dines Chandra—The Chain of Justice. IC. VII, pp. 364-365. [1495]

Points out that the Indo-Chinese contemporary of Jehangir also adopted the practice of hanging bell to attract his notice when some injustice was done in the kingdom, as did Jehangir at Agra. See interesting note on this matter by H. C. Raychaudhuri in IC. VII, pp. 1-2. (See ABIHI. III, No. 1854).

— An Account of the Fifty-six Countries in and on the Borders of India. IC. VIII, Pt. 1, pp. 33-64. [1496]

Gives a reading of the MS. entitled Śatpañcāśad-dīśa-vibhāga, and tries to identify the countries mentioned therein.

Srinivasacharyar, C. S.—[Calendar of Persian Correspondence]. Ed. by S. N. Sen, Imperial Records Department, Calcutta, 1940. See ANIHI. III, No. 1786. [1497]

“This volume presents the crowded canvas of Indian historical personages and doings in the year 1785-7, and forms the seventh of the series. In these three fateful years there happened much for the deeping tragedy of the reign of Emperor Shah Alam who was forced into the humiliation of submitting to unscrupulous adventurers and of requesting an English captain to restore peace in his very capital and palace. The Nawab Vazir of Oudh had also been reduced in status by the grim reality of British protection which he so needed and for which he had to submit to additional and exacting financial burdens. The Nawab of Bengal was equally a puppet and left miserably poor. The Nawab of Arcot was allowed to gamble with the revenue of Tanjore by an unscrupulous Madras Council. It was only Tippu Sultan and the Marathas who had some reality of power; and it is well that Mahadaji Scindhia was firmly rooted in his alliance with the English. All these made obvious the predominant political position acquired by the Company. Most princes were reconciled to their lot and the only one who did not accept the inevitable was soon to be humbled.....All these commendable features, along with the brilliant introduction, should enhance the solid reputation for a scholarship enjoyed by the Editor, Dr. S. N. Sen, who has completed the preparation and the bringing out of this volume in the short period of two years". JIH. XX, pp. 222-223.

Srinivasan, V.—Medical Men in Modern Indian History.

Stoll, Dennis—Musical Instruments and Mythology in Southern India. AR. Vol. 37, No. 132, pp. 817-823. [1499]

The writer tells of his experience in an old peasant's hut, and the music he heard the peasant play on his bamboo flute.

Tamaskar, G. D.—Some Observations on Kauṭilya's Measure of Time. In No. 1434, pp. 492-505. [1500]

A study of time measure adopted in Kauṭilya's time.

Tampy, K. P. Padmanabhan—Velakali. ER. LXVII, pp. 320-322. [1501]

Describes the entertainment, a "Scientific and technical war dance peculiar to Travancore". The Velakali actors represent the hundred and one Kauravas, the enemies of the five Pandava brothers in the Mahabharata.

Topa, Ishwara—The Minister as A King-Maker. A Study in Kauṭilya's views and ways on the basis of his Arthaśāstra. With a foreword by the Rt. Hon'ble Sir Akbar Hydari. $7\frac{1}{4}'' \times 5''$, pp. vi + 162. Kitabistan, Allahabad, 1941. [1502]

"This book contains three chapters. The first is on Fundamentals. It is well said that Kauṭilya philosophy of activism is nothing but a forceful attempt at the culturisation of man and society in all its manifold activities. The objective of daṇḍanīti or science of government is said to be lokayātrā or the progress and welfare of the world. The second chapter is a study of Kingship. In the Kauṭilyan politics there is no nominal king. His is a dynasty personality shaped by laws or discipline. He should feel that in the happiness of his subjects his happiness is truly laid. The Vijigīṣu occupies the central place in the Kauṭilyan scheme of kings.....The last chapter is on State.....The book is well written and adds to the existing literature on the subject". V. R. R. Dikshitar, JIH. XX, pp. 339-340.

Upadhyā, Bhagwat Saran—Sabera. (Hindi text). pp. 170. Sarasvati Mandir, Benares, 1941 (?). [1503]

— The River Sindhu of the Mālavikāgnimitra JUPHS. XIV. Pt. 1, pp. 9-20. [1504]

Identifies the river' Sindhu of Kālidāsa's Mālavikāgnimitra, and indicates incidentally, the north-western frontier of the Sunga empire. The discussion is not free from difficulties and it incidentally brings to the fore some very important points. There is an important section of the Early History of India devoted by Dr. Vincent Smith to a discussion of the invasion of Manander on India of which several incidents and conclusions, which the writer indicates as unfounded and mistaken.

— On the River Sindhu of the Mālavikāgnimitra. JBHU. VI, pp. 171-179. [1505]

Meets the criticism of Mr. J. C. Powell-Price of the writer's article in the JUPHS, XIV, and shows that the Sindus of the Mālavikāgnimitra is the Indus.

Wadia, Sophia—Preparation for Citizenship, Foreword by Rabindranath Tagore, $7\frac{1}{4}'' \times 4\frac{3}{4}''$, pp. xii + 72. International Book House, Bombay, 1941. [1508]

This is a reprint of a series of three Mysore University Extension Lectures delivered in September 1937. Mrs. Wadia's theme is that democracy is essentially a spiritual principle, in keeping with the ideas of ancient India and based on the teachings of the Gitā and the Upanisads. She believes that the failure of democracy in the West was the result of its materialistic foundation and proceeds to show how India can make a contribution to humanity be revived and practising spiritual democracy, which she translates as Sva-Rāj or rule of the Self." L. Pereira, NR. XIV, p. 438.

Deals with the beginnings of French and British interests in Burma, Indonesia and Thailand; the Indo-China Peninsula, Garnier's Expedition; the Sladen and Browne expeditions, Government of India's lack of interest; British annexation of Upper Burma and the later rivalries.

Dharmabala, Devamitha—The Works of Sinhalese Scholars. See No. 199.

Motwani, Kemal—University of Ceylon. pp. 51. Adyar, Madras, 1941. [1516]

Hints upon many an important phase of University education in general and that in the East in particular. The inseparable bond of Ceylon with India has been stressed.

Paranavitana, S.—Art of Ancient Ceylon. NR. XIII, pp. 185-195. [1517]

Describes briefly some of the Buddhist temples and sculpture of Ceylon.

Ray, Nihar-Ranjan—Theravāda Buddhism in Burma: From the Introduction of Theravāda Buddhism in Pagan in 1057 to the Fall of the Pagan Dynasty, c. 1287 A. D. [1518]

Gives a broad survey of sources and source-material; the early phase and the work of Shin Arahan; Mramma Samgha and Sihala samgha, and the monastic scholarship. Tells the story from the events of the sack of Thaton and the eventual introduction of Theravada Buddhism into Pagan.

Saletoke, B. A.—[The Early History of Ceylon or the Indian Period, of Ceylon History] by G. C. Memdes, Calcutta, 1940 (?) [1519]

"It starts with the legendary period of Vijaya's landing, as given in the Mahavamsa, and passing through the ancient period when the beginnings of the history of Ceylon depended on events that took place in India (p. 20), the early mediaeval period (A. D. 362-A. D. 1017), it reaches the Polannaruva period (A. D. 1017-A. D. 1235), and concludes with an account of the Drift to the South-west (A.D. 1235-A.D. 1509), when the Portuguese arrived in Ceylon. Four Appendices, twenty illustrations, and eleven maps add to the value of the work".

Observations upon Professor Cœdis' review in JTRS. xxxi, (Dec. 1939). He does not agree with many of the professors' remarks.

Moulik, Monindramohan — The People and Politics of Thailand. TMR. LXIX, pp. 290-296, 23 illus. 1 sketch map. [1528]
A short account of Siam and its people. The first contact of Siam with Europe dates back to 1511 when the Portuguese traders landed there.

Pendleton, Robert L. — Laterite and its Sculptural Uses in Thailand and Campodia. GR. XXXI, Pt. 2, pp. 177-202, 62 illus., 1 sketch map. [1529]
The author believes that the art of quarrying laterite, as well as architectural forms and other cultural features, was brought to Farther India from India. The art of working laterite may have come directly, and also through the intermediate civilisation of Ceylon, Sumatra and Java. At any rate, the ancient ruins, largely built of laterite, which still stand in so many and widely scattered parts of Farther India, were built by different races from different regions.

Puri, Satyananda and Sarahiran C.—The Ramakirti. Birla Oriental Series. 8vo, pp. 142. Dharmashrama Press, Bangkok, 1940. [1530]

Narration of the Ramakirti, without curtailing any of its peculiarities. Such a narration has been once before attempted by the late Monsieur Kené Nicholas of the Royal Pages College, Bangkok. It came out in Extrême-Asie Nos. 19, 21, 23, 29 and 25 in 1928. It was a shorter summary and was written in French under the title of Le Rāmāyana Siamois.

Ratchathon, Phya Anuman—Explanation of the Funeral Customs (Thai text). 2 Vols. pp. 199. Bangkok, 1940. [1531]

Many of the customs seem revolting and unwholesome, and are due to disappear.

Seidenfaden, Erik—The Name of Lopburi. JTRS. XXXIII, Pt. 2, pp. 147-148. [1532]

A note discussing the original name of Lopburi, and suggests that, while in India Lavapuri has been changed to Lahore, in Thailand it has become Lopburi.

Thompson, Virginia—Thailand: The New Siam. $9\frac{1}{2}'' \times 6''$, pp. xxxii + 865, 1 map. Issued under the auspices of the Secretariat, Institute of Pacific Relations. International Research Series. Macmillan, New York, 1941. [1533]

One of the great merits of this study is that it illuminates various obscure aspects of Siamese-British rivalry for the Malay Peninsula and the consequent loss of the rich States of Kelantan, Trengganu, Kedah and Perlis.

Indo-China

Seidenfaden, Erik—Cahiers de L'école Française d'Extrême-Orient. (French text). JTRS. XXXIII, Pt. 1, pp. 23-48. [1534]

A useful summary, arranged according to countries, of the contents of the Cahiers Nos. 1-22 published by the French School of the Far East regarding the work of research and temple-restoration carried out by itself during 1934-1940.

Malaya

Cœdes, George—Talānai. JGIS. VIII, Pt. 1, pp. 61-62. [1535]

Points out the word Talānai in the Buddha inscription at Grahi dated 1183 A. D., and the difficulties in identification of the personage who bore the name.

Sastri, K. A. Nilakanta—Recent Progress in Malayan Archaeology. JGIS. VIII, Pt. 1, pp. 1-16. [1536]

A lengthy review of Archaeological Researches on Ancient Indian Colonisation in Malaya, by Dr. Quaritch Wales (JMBRAS, 1940). Does not agree with Dr. Wales on many points, and especially on the location of the ancient Kadaram in Perak.

Sircar, Dines Chandra—Date of the Earliest Sanskrit Inscription of Campa. IHQ. XVII, pp. 107-110. [1537]

A short study of the Vo-cañh inscription which is assigned by scholars on palaeographic grounds, to 2nd or 3rd century A.D. The writer is not convinced that the date of the inscription is earlier than the 4th century, A. D.

Thompson, Virginia—The Landward Side of Singapore. Pacific Affairs, Vol. 14, pp. 21-34. International Secretariat, Institute of Pacific Relations, New York, 1941. [1538]

"At the time of writing it was under three flags, its political components British, Malaya and Burma, French Indo-china and the buffer state Thailand..... The whole area, geographic and economic unit that it is, lacks a common purpose and ideas, both regionally and as individual nations." GR. XXXI, p. 352.

Moens, J. L.—The Talking Tree. TITLV. LXXXI, Pt. 1, pp. 57-64. [1552]

Discusses the legendary country where the talking trees grow. Identifies the tree as Bruguiera gymnorhiza, the fruit of which has a human shape, suspended by the hair, with arms and legs tightly stretched and therefore helplessly crying "wak-wak" when dropping, body first, into the mud as soon as they are fullgrown. The tree grows in Malaya, Sunda and Philippines.

Nag, Kalidas—[Dvipamaya Bharat (Bengali text).] by Suniti Kumar Chatterji, Calcutta, 1940. See ABIHI. III, No. 606. [1553]

“The bulk of the book is naturally devoted to a graphic description of the Periplus of Bali. Many books have been published on that island, but I doubt if any one of them can stand comparison with Dr. Chatterji's work, in which we find the precision of an expert philologist combined with the profound sympathy of a humanist. The Hinduism of Bali has nowhere been analysed with greater understanding and thoroughness”. TMR. LXIX, p. 213.

“This book may be very properly called the “Who's Who and What's What” of Pacific Ethnology. As such it will surely prove to be a valuable guide to most of us blissfully ignorant of even the existence of the problems concerned”. Buṭakrishna Ghosh, IC. VIII, p. 113.

“An honest attempt has been made to appraise the part played by the Man from India, from the prehistoric times right down to the glorious days of the Guptas and the T'angs and later, in helping the men of the Far East and other distant lands to come to the full height of their being. For this task, Dr. Nag, as it will be admitted by all those who know him and who will read this work, is eminently fitted ..We have thus in the present volume a unique study of the problem regarding the origin and development of civilised life among more than half of the human race which the author has written with enthusiasm which also infects his readersThe titles for the different chapters will indicate the scope of the work: The Pacific Basin—A Cultural Survey; Cultural Migrations in Oceania; Maori Land and Culture; The Polynesian World; Cultural Organisation of Hawaii; the Peoples and Cultures of the Philippines; India and the Archæology of Malaysia and Indonesia; Art and Archæology of Sumatra; Java in Asiatic History and Culture; China and the Dawn of Asiatic Culture; Problems of Chinese Art and Archæology; Buddhism and the Evolution of Chinese Art; Collections of Chinese Art and Archæology; Prehistoric Japan; Japanese Art and Religion in its various Periods; the National Art Treasures and Museums of Japan; Art and Archæology in Japan, Asiatic Back-ground and Pacific Civilisation and India. In the first instalment, the writer deals with the cultural back-ground and the position of women. Against the cultural back-ground he shows the social life of the Hindu-Javanese population of Central Java. The position of women in the Central Javanese society, he says, was fairly high. The study is based on epigraphic and sculptural evidence.

Barger, Evert, and Wright, Philip—Excavations in Swat and Explorations in the Oxus Territories of Afghanistan. A Detailed Report of 1938 Expedition. Memoir of the Archaeological Survey of India No. 64. $12\frac{1}{2}'' \times 9\frac{1}{2}''$, pp. 67, 11 plates. Manager of Publications, Delhi, 1941.

“Messrs. Evert Barger, and Philip Wright have recorded a series of labours carried out from June to December 1938, which were mainly designed, as they modestly say, ‘to pave the way for further British work on the Indian Frontier and beyond’. The field within their purview was the broad area between the Oxus and the Indus expedition was planned in order to find more light on its cultural and political history in the centuries following Alexander’s invasion of India. Within this region two typical districts were studied, necessarily somewhat cursorily, namely the Swat Valley on the north-west of India and Afghan Turkistan in the Oxus Territories. In Swat, the ancient Suvastu, surface-surveys and excavations were made in the Barikot district at Kalungai, Kanjar, Kote, Gumbat, Amluk, Chinabara, Najigram, Abarchinar, Nawagai, Parrai, and Charbagh, yielding some interesting products of Gandhara art, among which may be specially mentioned the frieze with Hellenistic reliefs at Gumbat (p. 17), which, as the writers say, are ‘fresh and striking examples of the copying of the Mediterranean motifs’ (p. 36); some sculptures of Amluk representing a scene from the Buddha’s life, and a head of the Buddha of rare type indicating contact between the school of Gandhara and Mathura; which may belong to the second or third century A.D., the schist lamp, with a Kharoshthi inscription, found at Chinabara (p. 23) and the good stucco heads from Abarchinar (p. 26). The inscription on the Abarchinar lamp, as given by Merrs Barger and Wright, contains the letters agisala; and it is very surprising that they have failed to recognise in this word the name of the craftsman Agisala (probably a Prakrit form of the Greek Agesilaus) which occurs on the famous casket found in Kanishka’s monastery at Shahji-ki Dheri, Peshawar. EHR. LVII, pp. 526-527.

Gupta, H. R.—Some Observation on the Life and Letters of Mohan Lal Kasmerian. CR. LXXVIII, pp. 51–62. [1568]

Reproduces what Ghulam Sarwar says about the army of Timur Shah of Afghanistan. Ghulam Sarwar's account was originally written in Persian. Its English translation from the Imperial Record Department, New Delhi has been used. The writer is reproducing the account corrects the misspelt names of persons and places.

Hackin, J.—Iranian Influence of Archaeological Finds in Afghanistan. ILQ. XI, Pt. 2, pp. 86–87. [1570]

A short review of Prof. Hackin's lecture in the Mazdazman Hall Bombay.

MacLagan, E. D.—[A History of Afghanistan,] by Sir Percy Sykes, London, 1940. See ABIHI. III, No. 2026. [1571]

“As a mere chronicle the book is of marked importance, but it is much more than this and its value is enhanced by the distinctive personality of the writer. With many of the sites, incidents, and characters recorded he has had a personal connection and at a rough calculation there must be some fifty or sixty occasions on which he introduces personal recollections, which add greatly to the picturesqueness of the narrative”. JRAS. 1941, pp. 60–70.

Marshall, John—[Recherches Archeologiques a Begram.] by J. Hackin, avec la collaboration de Madam J. R. Hackin, Paris, 1939. See ABIHI. II, No. 1260. [1572]

“The author's object has been to put other archaeologists as soon as possible in possession of these supremely interesting materials, and he has done this in the most practical way by devoting the bulk of the two volumes to a detailed catalogue of the objects (numbering 365), illustrated by 238 first-rate photographs and other sketches, and by adding an illuminating chapter on the date, technique, provenance and artistic affinities of the more important finds.”

Rawlinson H. G.—Excavations in Swat. IAL. XV, Pt. 2, pp. 83–85. [1573]

Iran

Abdul-Ghani, Muhammad—Pre-Mughal Persian in Hindustan. pp. xlivi + 505, 1 plate. The Allahabad Law Journal Press, Allahabad, 1941. [1574]

A literary history of Persia from the Tahirids to the Tughlaqs from an extraordinary Indian point of view.

Agrawala, V. S.—Irāni Samrāt Dārā kā Susā se milā hua Silālékh. (Hindi text). NPP. XLVI, Pt. 2, pp. 97-112.

[1575]

An inscription of the Persian Emperor Darius from Susa. Gives the Hindi report of Darius published by various scholars, and useful information such as architectural details and the material utilised in the construction of the Palace at Susa, the Elamite capital. Also shows the similarity of the Persian words with the forms in Sanskrit language. Points out the importance of the inscriptions for the student of ancient Indian history.

Ali, Manzur Ed.—The Tazgira-E-Benazir (Persian text). Arabic-Persian Series Vol. I, pp. 154 + 12. Allahabad University, Allahabad, 1940. [1576]

A memoir of Indian and Persian poets of 1200 A. D. by Mir Ghulam Ali, Iftkhar. While he utterly lacks the honest and sane standard of literary criticism and is full of sweet words of compliments for the poetic achievements of his teacher, Azad Bilgrami, he cannot brook a discordant note of criticism on the poetic flaw of the latter by Siyal-koti Mal, Warusta. The value of the work lies in its inclusion of notices on some of the hitherto unknown obscure poets, both Indian and Persian, who lived during the first seventy-two years of twelfth century of Hijra.

Bank, A.—A Plaque with the Image of Alexander the Great flying upwards (Russian text). TOSHM. III, pp. 181-194.

[1577]

Gives an interesting study of the myth, familiar to every student of the Shah-nama, about Kay-ka us flying to the sky with the help of eagles. The motive is an ancient one, is usually associated with Alexander the Great, and its expression in painting is common in different Eastern and Western countries.

A history of the past in this cradle of European culture. The summary of the records of Asia Minor, Persia and Turkey, are given in the first chapter.

David, H. S. — Some Remarkable Similarities Between Firdausi's "Shahnameh" and the Hebrew-Christian Scriptures, Part II. ILQ. XI, Pt. 4, pp. 236-243. [1582]

In the Part I of this article the author has discussed the word Havareno and its origin. In the present article he examines the matter in detail, and concludes that basically the two concepts Havareno and Ahura are identical.

Day, Florence E.—A Review of "The Ceramic Arts". A History in A Survey of Persian Art. AI. VIII, pp. 13-48. [1583]

A lengthy review pointing out several faults in A Survey of Persian Art, by A. U. Pope and P. Ackerman, London and New York, 1938-39.

— A Review of "The Ceramic Art in Islamic Times: Dated Faience". AI. VIII, pp. 49-58. [1584]

"The study of dated inscriptions is one of the essentials of any field of art history, particularly so in Islamic pottery, where not enough has been done in archaeological excavations or in the finding of kiln wasters. These three types of evidence, together with literary accounts, form the foundations of sober historical research and do away with the uncertainty of merely subjective criticism and interpretation of style".

Dimand, Maurice S.—A Review of Sasanian and Islamic Metal work in A Survey of Persian Art, by A. U. Pope and P. Ackerman. AI. VIII, pp. 192-214, 6 plates. [1585]

Points out the unsatisfactory portions in the work.

Elwell-Sutton, L. P.—Modern Iran. 9"×5½", pp. xii + 234, 8 plates, 5 plans. George Routledge, London, 1941. [1586]

"Here is an up-to-date book describing modern Iran. Beginning with a chapter descriptive of the country and the people to-day; the author then gives a brief history of Iran from the time of the 'Medes and Persians' to the rise and decline of Islam. A valuable chapter on Iran under the shadow of the West with the competing diplomatic and economic penetration of Britain, Russia and Germany leads to the Russian Invasion, the coup d'état of 1921 and the new regime of Reza Shah Pahlavi, and the book concludes with a study of the economic foundation of modern Iran, its social and cultural progress, its foreign relations up to a month ago, and the probable developments of the present situation and Iran's place in the world".

A review of A Survey of Persian Art, by A. U. Pope.

Field Henry—The Iranian Plateau Race. ILQ. XI, Pt. 2, pp. 88-96. [1588]

A general survey of the evidence of early human migration from the plateau. General trend seems to be apparent the physical relationship of the peoples of South-western Asia to the inhabitants of Asia, Africa, and Europe appear to emerge.

Ghosh, Batakrishna—Iranian and Sanskrit. IC. VII, pp. 335-359. [1589]

The Iranians, particularly the eastern Iranians whose ancient culture and language are represented by the Avesta, were in both these respects a sister tribe of the ancient Indo-Aryans. The writer here discusses the principal characteristics of the Iranian group as a whole as also those of its principal ancient dialects.

An account of the life and works of the well-known lyrical poet of Persia, Khwaja Shamsu'd-Din Muḥammad, of Shirāz, poetically surnamed Hāfiẓ.

Kühnel, Von Ernst—Stoffe. In A Survey of Persian Art. (German text). AI. VIII, pp. 109-120. [1595]

A review of A Survey of Persian Art, of A. U. Pope and P. Ackerman. Touches upon Textiles through the Sasanian Period, Textiles of the Islamic period. A Russian Document on Persian Textiles, Persian Weaving Techniques, and two Safavid figural satins.

Kurz, Otto—The Date of the Tāq-i-Kisrā. JRAS. (1941), Pt. 1, pp. 37-41. [1596]

Discusses the most famous monument of Sasanian architecture and assumes that the Tāq-i-Kisrā was built under Khosrau I, A. D. 540, the year of the conquest of Antioch, which he regards as terminus post quem but suggests that its erection was, most likely begun a few years later during one of the truces, interrupting the wars between Persia and Byzantium; at any rate before 565, the date of the death of Justinian.

Matson, Frederick R.—A Review of "The Ceramic Art in Islamic Times: Techniques". AI. VIII, pp. 59-63. [1597]

A review of Pope and Ackerman's A Survey of Persian Art, indicating the need for an objective technical study of Islamic ceramics based on materials that are of known provenance preferably from an archæological excavation. For technological purposes shards, are far more useful, when documented, than are whole vessels, because chips of both the body and the glaze can be removed from the former for microscopic study without serious injury to the piece, and an accurate mineralogical determination of the body composition and the nature of the glaze can be obtained.

Matson, Frederick R.—Review of “The Ceramic Art in Islamic Times: Contemporary Techniques.” AI. VIII, p. 46. [1598]

A short note pointing out the method of manufacture of faience vessels and tiles, of haft-rangi tiles, and of mosaic faience.

Mehta, H. P.—Mazdakism: A Plea for a Better Estimate. BDCRI. II, Pts. 3-4, pp. 397-401. [1599]

Points out that neither the Zoroastrian writers nor the Arab historian have been able to give a true and critical judgment on Mazdak and his doctrines, the former on account of their religious prejudices and the latter, through want of original sources which were completely destroyed by Noshirwan. Mazdak is considered as the first Bolshevik. The rise and fall of Mazdak stands for an important phase in the history of Iran and is indicative of the state of Iranian society of those times.

Miles, George C.—Epigraphy. AI. VIII, pp. 105-108. [1600]
Gives a list of Persian Inscriptions of Iran.

Paruck, Furdoonjee D. J.—On the Term ‘Persia’. ILQ. XI, Pt. 3, pp. 145-153. [1601]

The two terms Persia and Eran are synonymous. The kingdom which in English is called Persia, the Persians or Eranians themselves call Iran. But each of these words has a somewhat complicated history, which the author discusses.

— On the Term ‘Aneran’. ILQ. XI, Pt. 2, pp. 97-101. [1602]

‘Aneran’ is the word found in inscriptions and coins of Ardashir I (A. D. 226-242) of Iran. The author discusses the historical events of the reign of Ardashir and concludes that the term Aneran means ‘non-Eran’ which signifies the sovereignty over non-Eranian countries.

— The Emblem of the Crescent and Star. ILQ. XI, Pt. 4, pp. 232-235. [1603]

Discusses the adoration of the sun and the moon in ancient Iran. The Venus cult and the significance of Venus, moon and crescent on the Parthian and Persian coins.

Saklatwalla, J. E.—Imaginary Conversation Between Omar Khayyam and Al-Ghazzali. ILQ. XI, Pt. 4, pp. 256-258. [1604]

An imaginary conversation between Omar Khayyam and Al-Ghazzali when they both met by the side of Rubdar talking on life, soul and and mortality, with corroborative and parallel thoughts culled from the Diwan of Shams-i-Tabriz.

Schmidt, Erich F.—Flight over Ancient Cities of Iran. $16'' \times 11\frac{1}{2}''$, pp. xxii + 104, maps and illus. Oriental Institute, University of Chicago, Chicago, 1940. [1605]

“This is a dramatic example of archaeological discovery with the aid of air photography The archaeologist and the historian will delight in the details so clearly shown in the pictures themselves and further elucidated in the text and means of supplementary maps, transparencies, and line drawn on some of the views themselves to emphasize particular features. The text is a pleasant blending of archaeology with informal accounts of flights and journeys”.

GR. XXXI, p. 339.

Sen, Sukumar—Old Persian Inscriptions of the Achæmenian Emperors. pp. 288. University of Calcutta, 1941. [1606]

“The countries of Iran, Irak and Asia Minor are fertile fields for recovering connecting links in the most important culture-complex staged in human history conveniently expressed in one Vedic word as Daivāsuram, the conflict between the Aryan and the Asura. The discovery of Mohenjo Daro and Harappa cultures within the boundaries marked by the Sindhu casts on the Indian historians a new responsibility to view things comprehensively and acquaint themselves with the sources of the history of their western neighbours”.

V. S. Agrawala, JUPHS. XIV, p. 131.

“Those interested in the history of ancient Persia will find here the Achaemenian monarchs speaking to them directly in a Iranian culture will experience a pleasant surprise to find in the Daiva inscription (discovered in 1935) a striking corroboration of the daring theory launched by Prof. Benveniste that inspite of Zarathustra and his royal converts the religion of the Iranian people remained essentially Daivic. But Dr. Sen has planned his book specially for our students interested in philology. With this end in view he has given a Sanskrit Chaya—even at the risk of coining new forms at every step—to every Old Persian text. Over and above this, every Old Persian word has been philologically analysed in the copious notes added to every inscription”.

Batakrishna Ghosh, IC. VII, pp. 498-499.

Trever, (Mrs.) C.—Gopatshah: Shepherd King. (Russian text). TOSHM, II, pp. 71-86. [1607]

“A comment on the find of the archaic drawing of the “manbull” scratched on a piece of pottery, found in the upper pre-Achemenian or lower Achemenian layer in Tali Barzu. Only the upper part of the image is preserved, sufficient, however, to see that the creature was wingless and had no tiara, which usually adorns such images; they are well known to every student from the Assyrian, Babylonian, Achemenian, Persian, and other sculptures. It seems quite obvious that the deity developed from the totem of a pastoral pre-Aryan people, probably inhabiting Central Asia at a distant period. We have no indication as to whether ancient Iranian people adopted the deity itself, or simply used the Assyro-Babylonian iconographic forms or their own idea which was close to it by its nature. In her erudite article, Mrs. C. Trever stresses the fact that the fragment, found in the Tali Barzu excavations, could not be the result of the influence of the Achemenian iconography, because it is of an earlier origin. She tries to prove that it was connected with the land of Gava, which apparently was the ancient name of Soghd, the original site of the sacred Airyena Vaenjo of the Avesta, the older portions of which were composed there. The Gopat, bull-man, and the king of bulls, was a deity connected with water and irrigation, just as the mythical bull Hadayash. It is possible that the name of the Zoroastrian Adam—Gayomart, was an evolution of the earlier Gavomard, i.e., primæval bull-man. In later times Mithra and the bull consecrated to him are possibly later phases of the same idea in which both parts of this mythical conception have split into their original elements. The honorific title borne by the Sasanian heirs of the Throne, 'Kushanshah', was apparently a substitute for the earlier title Gopatshah. W. Ivanow, JBBRAS, Vol. 17 (1941), p. 37.

Trever, (Mrs.) C.—A Sasanian Banner-top (Russian text). TOSHM. III. [1608]

Describes a silver dragon head which was used as a top of the banner carried by the Sasanian troops.

Description of the author's journey in Iran and the romance of map making.

Wilson, C. E.—Contributions to the Classical Persian-English Vocabulary. IsC. XV, pp. 349-378; 473-509. [1611]

Gives quotations from Persian Works, and vocabulary of certain words occurring therein.

Tibet

Bailey, F. M.—The Spelling of Tibetan Place Names. G.J. XCVII, pp. 120–122. [1612]

In Tibetan spelling of place names there are many silent letters, consonants are sometimes used solely to modify the sound completely, and many letters in combination with others entirely change their own sound. Several examples are given.

Chömpell, Geshe—Two Famous Bengali Pandits in Tibet. M-B. Vol. 49, Pt. 1, pp. 31–32. [1613]

Points out that the founders of Lamāism in Tibet was a Bengali—Pandit Shantarakkhita. He visited Tibet together with Padma Sambhava, and all the Tibetan monks are his followers.

Macfarlane, Eileen W. E.—Tibetan and Bhotia Blood Group Distributions. JRASBS. VI, pp. 1–5. [1614]

Gives the result of blood tests carried out on 112 mixed Bhotias at Darjeeling. The term Bhotia is a general one for Tibetans and certain hill people of Bhutan, Nepal and Sikkim States who possess some Tibetan intermixture.

Majumdar, R. C.—Political Relations of Tibet with India. JGIS. VIII, Pt. 2, pp. 92–97. [1615]

Gives a broad outline of the foundation of the kingdom of Tibet, and how the king of Tibet was drawn into Indian politics at various times.

Mei, Y. P.—Kumbum: The Cradle of Protestant Lamaism. Asia. XLI, pp. 676–678. [1616]

Describes the Lamasery and the type of Lamaism in Kumbum.

Shafer, Robert—The Vocalism of Sino-Tibetan. JAOS. Vol. 61, Pt. 1, pp. 18–31. [1618]

Part 2. Consonantal Finals. Shows that phonetic equations for Sinho-Tibetan languages are possible, contrary to the opinion of Wulff and others. For previous instalment see JAOS. Vol. 60, pp. 302–337. (See ABIHI, III, No. 2096).

Smith, A. D. Howell—The So-Called “Devil Dancers” of Tibet. IAL. XV, Pt. 2, pp. 95–99. [1619]

Points out that the name ‘devil dancers’ is misleading, for the idea conveyed by it is that of rites to placate evil spirits. Gives the origin, the development and the significance of the dance.

Mesopotamia, Syria, Asia Minor, Palestine

Bool' Chant—Anglo-French Conflict in the Near East, 1839-1842. JAHRI, I, Pt. 1, pp. 44-62. [1620]

The Anglo-French conflict which arose from the rivalry between Mehmet Ali, the Pasha of Egypt and his old master, Sultan Mahmud of Turkey, over the tobacco trade.

Burrows, Millar—What Mean these Stones? The Significance of Archaeology for Biblical Studies. 8vo. pp. 306, illus., maps., indices. American School of Oriental Research, New Haven (U.S.A.), 1941. [1621]

The archaeological discoveries of the past century in the Near East have brought to light innumerable remains of forgotten ancient civilisations. During the past twenty years the tempo of excavation and exploration became so accelerated that even specialists seldom were able to control more than a segment of the vast field.

It is small cause for surprise, therefore, that very few scholars were sufficiently at home in both philology and archaeology to write competently on both subjects, and that few of them possessed balance and historical training enough to combine such divergent studies in really good syntheses.

Diakonov, I.—On the Origin of Writing in Mesopotamia. (Russian text). TOSHM. III, pp. 27-48. [1622]

Drower, E. S.—The Alf Trisar Suialia "The Thousand and Twelve Questions". JRAS (1941), pp. 101-126. [1623]

Discusses MS. copies of Alf Trisar Suialia, which is not a single composition, but a collection of writings or fragments under the title of one of the texts incorporated. It is important when considering the origins of the Mandaeans and their religious system.

Ingholt, Harald—Denmark Excavates in Syria. Asia, XLI, pp. 199-202, 2 plates. [1624]

Describes the finds excavated in Syria.

— Tombs in the Syrian Desert. Asia, XLI. pp. 506-511, 2 plates. [1625]

Under the direction of Henri Seyrig, the French Department of Antiquities in Syria has done brilliant work in Palmyra, especially in the temple of Bel. Describes the antiquities.

Melkonian, Vartan—The Rufa-i Shaikhs: The Miracle Workers of Iraq. ILQ. XI, Pt. 2, pp. 83-85. [1626]

The Rufa-i are a clan in the upper parts of Iraq. They belong to the Dervish sect who are known as Rufa-i Shaikhs. The author describes their home and their miraculous performances.

— Some Historical Notes on Shadi and Baghailah. ILQ. XI, Pt. 4, pp. 246-255. [1627]

A brief account of Baghailah (now known as Namaniyah) and Shadi lands on the Tigris.

Satakopan, R.—Iraq Through the Ages. NR. XIV, pp. 155-168. [1628]

Begins from the earliest period known to history, nearly 600 B.C., the advent of the Europeans; the great war 1914-1918, and the Anglo-Iraq treaty.

Speiser, E. A.—The Beginnings of Civilisation in Mesopotamia. Aty. XV, No. 58, pp. 162-175. [1629]

Printed from the Supplement to the JAOS 'The Beginnings of Civilisation in the Orient', a symposium at the meetings of the American Oriental Society, 13 April, 1939.

Concludes that the foundations of the historic civilisation of Mesopotamia were laid in Uruk times. The next stage was one of intensive co-ordination and readjustment. Increasing wealth brought in new elements, specifically from Elam and the West. But the Sumerian framework had been established and was gaining strength. Presently it was ready for emergence into the Early Dynastic order and the full light of history.

Stein, Sir Aurel—The Ancient Trade Route Past Hatra and Its Roman Posts. JRAS. (1941), Pt. 4, pp. 299-316, 1 plate, 1 sketch map. [1630]

A survey of ancient remains along a portion of Rome's Mesopotamian Limes in the extreme north-west of Iraq.

Bishop, Carl Whiting—The Beginnings of Civilisation in Eastern Asia. From the Smithsonian Report for 1940. Publication No. 3625. 9½" x 6", pp. 436-445. Smithsonian Institute, Washington, 1941. [1634]

It is shown that civilisation appeared earlier in the Near East. There, certain animals were domesticated, certain plants brought under cultivation; there, too, various basic inventions were made and city life first arose. In Eastern Asia, the author finds things quite otherwise. Many of the above culture traits appeared there too; but they invariably did so far later, and, relatively speaking, at an already fairly advanced stage of evolution. Nothing has been found to suggest their independent origin there, while in certain instances he finds definite evidence of their ultimate derivation from the West. These traits displayed in the Far East, moreover, just that archaic and fragmentary nature characteristic of marginal areas everywhere. Many, therefore, it would appear, to the stimulus imported by cultural diffusion from the ancient Near East must have been due to the origin and fundamental type of that civilisation which eventually took form in eastern Asia.

Borisov, A.—An Interpretation of the Images on the Biya-Nayman Ossuaria. (Russian text). TOSHM. II, pp. 25-49. [1635]

"Shows that Ossuaria, or Astudans, i.e., ceramic coffins for bones used in Zoroastrianism, were of different origin. Some of those, found in different excavations belonged to Christians, and others to Jews, and this is also testified by written sources. Comparing a considerable number of fragments, he analyses the meaning of different figures, the images of which are often found on the astudans, and comes to the conclusion that some of them are personifications of the four elements, and others of Zrwan, identified with Chronos."

— A Terra-cotta Figurine of Zahak, (Russian text). TOSHM. III, pp. 195–208. [1640]

Collating the Vedic, Avestan, and Sasanian sources, she comes to the conclusion that originally Zohak (Azhi Dahaka), Arabicised into Dahhak, was a parallel of the vishapas of Transcausasia, who were the deities of fertility and water, developments of the ancient totems of fish or snake. Originally connected with Yima, he was portrayed as a three-headed deity; later on, when turned by myth into a diabolical Arab prince, he received two snakes growing from his shoulders as substitutes for the additional heads.

Field, Henry, and Prostov, Eugene—Excavations in Uzbekistan. Asia. LXI, pp. 243–244. [1641]

The second Uzbek expedition, organised by the Uzbekistan Committee for the preservation and study of monuments of material culture in Tashkent and the Institute for the History of Material Culture in Leningrad, during 1940, continued the excavations of tumuli near Kaunchi-Tepe.

Grigorieff, G.—The Expedition of Tali Barzū (Russian text). TOSHM. II, pp. 87–104. [1643]

The Tali Barzū, together with the original site of Samarcand itself are apparently the oldest inhabited places in Soghd, as excavations prove. These were started in 1936, and continued in subsequent years.

"The earliest traces of habitation are found by a square enclosure, built on the basic rock. It yielded some interesting archaic figurines, shards, etc. The second, Achemenian layer, contains more traces of habitations; the third Hellenistic period apparently witnessed considerable revival; its yield includes a fair number of statuettes of clearly Greek type. The next, Kushan layer, adds traces of Buddhistic influences, and several inscriptions in Soghdian. The Sasanian, fifth layer, introduces quite new forms,—typical Sasanian art technique, and figurines with Turkish features and maces. In the sixth layer appear green-bluish glazed pottery and Soghdian coins, casts and with a square hole in the middle, after the Chinese fashion".

Ivanow, W.—Some Recent Russian Publications on Archæological Research in Central Asia. JBBRAS. Vol. 17 (N.S.), pp. 25-41, 2 plates. [1644]

Takes stock of a few Russian publications on Oriental subjects, which have been received in Bombay.

Jain, Hiralal—Paiśācī Traits in the Languages of the Kharoṣṭhī Inscriptions from Chinese Turkistan. NUJ. No. 7, pp. 40-45. [1645]

Notes how far the Paiśācī tendencies are noticeable in the language of the Kharoṣṭhī documents discovered by Sir Aurel Stein in Chinese Turkistan, and assigns to the language a place amongst the varieties of Prakrit known to ancient grammarians, and calls it Paisaci or a form of Paiśācī Prakrit. The conclusion throws some fresh light upon the question of the original home of Paiśācī.

Kurdian, H.—An Armenian MS. with Unique Mongolian Miniatures. JRAS. (1941), pp. 145-148, 3 plates. [1646]

Describes a MS. composed of two different Armenian texts. One of Haismāvourk written about 1630, and the other of Jāshots (church ritual). In the fragmentary Jāshots there are two full page miniatures: The Nativity and the Crucifixion, which have been executed over the original writing of the MS. The writer considers that the technique of the miniature is not Armenian but Mongolian. Concludes: "Perhaps through plunder or in some other way the MS. came into the possession of a Mongolian miniaturist who then produced these compositions solely to satisfy an urge to miniature a large and important looking MS."

Lattimore, Owen—Inner Asian Frontier of China. American Geographical Society (Research Series No. 21), 8" x 5½", pp. xxiv + 586, New York, 1940. [1647]

The area considered includes virtually the whole terrain of Central and Eastern Asia with which China has had close contact, and the time sequence embraces a detailed survey of the different forms of social evolution from the neolithic to the imperial age and a broader but most suggestive discussion of modern developments and contemporary tendencies and possibilities.

Piotrovsky, B.—The Scythians and Transcaucasia (Russian text). TOSHM, III, pp. 71-90. [1648]

Refers to the conditions of the 8th century B.C., when the Scythians made their appearance in Asia Minor. Their relation with the Scythians in Transcaucasia, Northern Caucasus, and the steppes further North is traced.

Poppe, N.—The Karasakpay Inscription of Timur (Russian text). TOSHM, II, pp. 185-188. [1649]

Prawdin, Michæl—The Mongol Empire: Its Rise and Legacy. Translated by Eden and Cedar Paul. pp. 581, George Allen & Unwin, London, 1940. [1650]

"A vivid picture of the time when the Mongols were but a caglomeration of nomadic clans, scattered over wide inhospitable areas, and traced the stages through which, mainly by the genius of one person, they were transformed into the most powerful nation that Asia had yet seen. The history Jenghiz Khan, who worked this great miracle, reads almost like a romance in the pages of this interesting volume, and even the interminable stories of war, accompanied by rapine, massacre and wholesale destruction, do not tire the reader or distract his attention from the underlying unity of the theme.....The subsequent history of the Mongols has been traced with equal skill and ability and the outstanding personality of Tamerlane has been sketched in bold outline". R. C. Mazumdar, TMR. LXX, pp. 73-74.

Yakoobovsky, A.—Paykand Expedition of 1939 (Russian text). TOSHM, II, pp. 51-70. [1651]

Many interesting finds are reported, including more than 200 coins of the Kushan, Sasanian, Soghdian, Samanid periods, and later. Interesting data were collected about the conditions of life in this part of ancient Soghd". W. Ivanow, JBRAS. Vol. 17, p. 28.

— The Zarafshān Valley Expedition of 1934 (Russian text). TOSHM, II, pp. 113-164. [1652]

The Zarafshān valley expedition of 1934 was undertaken for the purpose of the survey of historical sites along the ancient wall, built to protect the Bukhara oasis from the raids of the Nomads some time before the 8th century A.D., and abandoned in the tenth century. It defended the cultivated lands, and at different intervals had rabâts inhabited spots, near different gates at which trade was carried on with the nomads of the desert, as was also the case with the Chinese wall. The wall is known under the name of Kampir-duwal, i. e. 'the wall of the old women'. As indicated by the archæological remnants found in the different strata, life continues in these places much after the standards of Sasanian times: pottery, etc., show great affinities with similar objects found in the corresponding strata of the more ancient spots in the locality, such as Samarcand. The largest town, Dabusiyya, reveals an interesting circumstance: potsherds found in the ruins prove the fact that habitation continued up to the Mongol invasion". W. Ivanow, JBBRAS, Vol. 17, p. 27.

Yakoobovsky, A.—A Review of the History of Excavations and other forms of Archæological Work in Samarcand (Russian text). TOSHM. II, pp. 285-337. [1653]

Greater attention by far has always been paid to the surface monuments of the Timurid time. Guri Amir, i.e., the mausoleum of Tamerlane, the chief mosque, Bibi Khanim, the madrasas, Aq-Saray, Ruhabad, etc., and especially the sepulchral group of Shah-Zinda, were carefully measured and photographed.

One of the last interesting finds in the excavations in Afrasiyab before the last war was the discovery, in 1913, of Buddhist building was unearthed, containing some frescoes.

Zouber, S.—Musical Instruments in the Khara-Khoto Iconography (Russian text). TOSHM. III, pp. 325-337. [1654]

Describes different types of musical instruments of Chinese or Central-Asian origin.

Islamic World

Abbot Nabia—Arabic Paleography. AI, VIII, pp. 65–104,
2 plates. [1655]

Reviews the paleographical materials offered in A Survey of Persian Art, by A. U. Pope and P. Ackerman. Disposes some points raised by Arthur Jeffery in a review of the writer's study, The Rise of the North Arabic Script and its Kuranic Development. (See ABIHI. III, No. 2093), and presents new materials that lead to some suggestions on the development of early Islamic secular script.

Ali, A. Ysuf—Muslim Culture and Religious Thought. In
No. 1455, pp. 382–416. [1656]

Analyses the causes of the hostility of the Indo-Muslim mind to British education and British culture at the beginning of British rule in India, and concludes some of its consequences.

Bawa, Peer—Sufism: Ancient Knowledge of Man. pp. 29.
The Sufi Movement of Ceylon, Kandi, 1941. [1657]

An argument in favour of the mystic path of the Sufis as the means for the realisation of Truth embodied in the self. But the symbolic interpretation of the life and teachings of the prophets seems to be somewhat extravagant.

Bhatnagar, Ishwar Chandra—Mystic Monasticism During the Mughal Period. IsC. XV, pp. 79–90. [1658]

With the development of Sufic Philosophy and thought monasticism in Islam came into being. Discusses such monasticism in India during the Mughal period.

Blyth, Estelle—The Druzes: The People of the Mountain.
AR. Vol. 37, No. 131, pp. 582–588. [1659]

Gives a short account of the Druze. The Druze creed was originally an offshoot of the Ismaileyah, a Shiah sect founded by Ismail, eldest son of the sixth Shiah Khalif, which split in two after his death.

Bohdanowicz, C.—The Muslims in Poland. AR. Vol. 37, No. 131, pp. 646-656. [1660]

These Tatars were the descendants of the old Turco-Mongols who so often plundered Poland in the latter part of the Middle Ages, advancing as far as the walls of Cracow in 1241. The writer's elementary ideas about the origin and the history of the tribes, which has never been large, and now comprises about 15000.

Buchthal, Hugo—Indian Fables in Islamic Art. JRAS. 1941, Pt. 4, pp. 317-324, 4 plates. [1662]

Discusses some Bidpai miniatures, which he says are from the Fables of Indian origin.

Divavi, A. S.—Fazail-e-Quran (Gujarati text). 2nd Edn. Royal 8vo. pp. 20. Din Electric Printing Press, Ahmedabad, 1941. [1663]

A collection of forty Hadis from the Quran with explanations.

Dunlop, D. M.—The Spanish Historian Ibn Hubaish. JRAS. 1941, Pt. 4, pp. 359-362. [1664]

Points out the importance of Ibn Hubaish and his writings.

Farmer, Henry George—The Jewish Debt to Arabic Writers on Music. [1665]

Shows how much the Jews borrowed music from Arabic sources.

— Music: The Priceless Jewel. JRAS, 1941, Pt. 1, pp. 22-30; 127-144. [1666]

Gives translation with comments of the text on audition of Al-iqb-al-farid of Abu Umar Ahmad Muhammad ibn Abd Rabbihu better known as Ibn Abd Rabbihu, (860-940). Dhāmm al-malāhi by Ibn Abi l-Sunya is a censure of audition. In it, music is linked with gambling, drunkenness, fornication, and luwat, among the malāhi or forbidden pleasure. The Al-iqd-al-furid written in defence of audition which the writer offers here in its entirety, together with other sections on music from the same treatise.

Ghosh, Ramesh Chandra—Constitutional Development in the Islamic World. With a Foreword by Dr. Kalidas Nag. 8½" x 5", pp. ix+323. The Book Company, Calcutta, 1941. [1667]

An interesting and reliable survey of public administration in the Near East. The treatment is non-technical and yet it is based on a scientific sifting of evidence and criticism of available materials.

Gibb, H. A. R.—Islamic Society and the West. A Study of the Impact of Western Civilisation on Moslem Culture in the Near East. Vol. I. Islamic Society in the Eighteenth Century. Demy 8vo. pp. 376, Royal Institute of International Affairs. Oxford University Press, 1941.

[1668]

Grunebaum, Gustave von—Arabic Literary Criticism in the 10th Century A.D. JAOS. Vol. 61, Pt. 1, pp. 51-57. [1669]

Shows that in literary theory the 10th century was an age of specialists, of people who abandoned the unscientific generalisations that make for the charm and the weakness of their great predecessor, al-Jahiz. Rational treatment of detail, little discoveries in the rhetorical field, progress to a safer and more elaborate system of critical qualifications.

Habeebunissa (Begum)—The Conception of Fate in Islam. HYJMU. II, pp. 7-10. [1670]

Discusses the different Muslim Schools of thought. All try to reconcile religion with philosophy. The writer sees all these schools have an element of truth and merely emphasise different aspects of the same truth.

Hamidullah, M.—Muslim Conduct of State. IsC. XV, pp. 1-44; 157-206; 271-316. [1671]

A treatise of Muslim public international law, consisting of the laws of war, peace and neutrality together with precedents from orthodox practice.

Hasrat, Bikrama Jit—[Arabic Thought and Its Place in History.] by Dr. DeLacy O'leary. Kegan Paul, London, 1939. [1672]

“Even the theory of neo-Platonic origin of mysticism is as much doubtful as the association of its fundamental doctrines exclusively with Vedantism or Buddhism, and here Dr. O'leary has been overzealous in establishing his hypothesis.....the doctrine of Fana which is universally admitted on all hands to be of Indian origin, has been exclusively associated with teaching of the neo-Platonists, a fact which the author has failed to establish. In the case of the doctrine of “unitive state”, he is quite uncertain whether it was borrowed from Buddhism, Gnostism or neo-Platonism, but strange, as it may appear, he says: “But in this as in other parts of Sufi speculation it seems was neo-Platonic: even in mysticism the Greek mind exercised its influence in analysing and constructing hypothesis.”

VBQ. VI, pp. 282-284.

Hassan, Zufar—A Farman of Farrukhsiyar. JAHRI. I, Pts. 2-3, pp. 179-188. [1673]

The farman in favour of Hafiz Mohammad Hasan for teaching the Quran to the neo-Muslims; the award being half a rupee in excess to the emoluments of other Hafizes.

Hussain, Sultan Ed.—Shahid-e-Azam-Husain, (Urdu text). Demy 8vo. 15 pp. Sultani Press, Bombay, 1941. [1674]

Poems dealing with the martyrdom of Hazrat Husain at the battle of Karbala, by various poets.

Ivanow, W.—Early Shi'ite Monuments. JBBRAS. Vol. 17, pp. 1-23. [1675]

A brief study of the early Shi'ite monuments which manifested itself in a long series of sectarian formations, and especially Shi'ite risings, led by hundreds of different numbers of the gradually increasing family of Alib b. Abi Talib. Gives the story of this rising from Sharhu'l-akhbar in a condensed form, and ends with three pages of Index to the work.

Jafri, S. N. A—Islamic Mysticism: Its Effect on Urdu Poetry. AP. XII, pp. 511-513. [1676]

Shows how a Sufi regards the mystics practices as indispensable for illuminating his heart and for edifying his soul. This high philosophy permeates the Urdu poetry of the early days when the Urdu poets were themselves Sufis.

Jeffery, Arthur—[The Qur'an. Translated with a critical re-arrangement of the Surahs] Edinburgh, 1939. See ABIHI. II, No. 1297. [1677]

"As this part includes all the earlier and more difficult passages, the dividing up of the Suras into component parts is in many places confessedly less certain than in the earlier volume, and as we know so little of the back-ground of the early pronouncements of the Prophet, many of the interpretations of this early material are necessarily more speculative.....Perhaps the most significant thing that emerges from this analysis of the Surahs, is that, contrary to earlier opinion, we have relatively little early Meccan material in the Qur'an, while much more than we had allowed must be considered as Madinan in origin, and still more as Madinan in its present form, even though it may contain early material." JRAS. Klein, Walter C., Tr.—'Ali ibn Ismā'il al-As'ari's al-Ibānah 'an usul addiyānah. (The Elucidation of Islam's Foundation). Translated with introduction and notes. American Oriental Series, Vol. 19. 8vo. pp. xiii + 143. American Oriental Society, New Haven, 1941. [1685]

Lewis, B.—British Contributions to Arabic Studies. With preface by A. J. Arberry. 8vo. pp. 29. [1686]

McPherson, J. W.—The Moulids of Egypt (Egyptian Saints-Days). With a foreword by Prof. E. E. Evan-Pritchard; full glossary and Index. 8vo. pp. xiv + 351, 50 illus., many maps. Giza, 1941. [1687]
"It is a description of the Moulids of Cairo, and of some of the principal moulids in the provinces, and, as such, has great scientific value. It is a contribution to our knowledge of Egyptian life, a worthy supplement to the immortal writings of Lane. Major McPherson has paid to the people of Egypt the debt which he freely acknowledges he owes them for the hospitality and kindness he has enjoyed at their hands for close on half a century." Preface.

Meyerhof, Max—The Philosophy of the Physician, Ar-Razi. IsC. XV, pp. 45-58. [1688]
A brief description of works of Abu Bakr Muhammad ibn ar-Razi, known as the greatest clinical genius among the physicians of the Islamic World during the Middle Ages.

Nainar, S. Muhammad Husayn—Some Tenets of Islam. AOR. VI, Pt. 2, pp. 1-13. [1689]
Explains a few points in Islamic Creed.

Ptitsin, G.—Poetical Works of Sayyida (Russian text). TOSHM. II, pp. 275-284. [1690]

Ritter, H. Ed.—Ilahi Name, by Fariduddin Attar, pp. 30 + 440 + 16. Ma-arif Press, Istanbul, 1940. [1691]
Persian poetical work of the famous Sufi poet. The poem consists of a dialogue between a father and his son; the father admonishes the son and illustrates his points of view with stories which fill the bulk of the volume. The foreword of the editor is in German and Persian.

Rizvi, S. N. Haider—Music in Muslim India. IsC. XV, pp. 331-340. [1692]
Describes the introduction of Muslim music in India, and its development.

Roychoudhury, Makhanlal—The Din-I-Ilahi or The Religion of Akbar. $8\frac{1}{2} \times 5\frac{1}{2}$, pp. xlivi + 337. University of Calcutta, 1941. [1693]
Endeavours to probe into the inner strands of the great religious upheaval that marked the age of Akbar as they manifested themselves not only in India, but in other parts of Asia. The work shows how in the genesis of the Din-i-Ilahi, the Central Asian forces stretching back into early Mongol culture wound their course through the Semiticism of Arabia, filtered through the Monism of Iran and were ultimately Aryanised by the touch of Hindustan. The time at which Akbar's stage was to set marked by a spirit of Eclecticism prepared by Hindu Saints and Muslim Sufis and by other forces of liberal Islam".
C. S. Srinivasacharyar, JIH. xxi, p. 128.

Sadiq, A.G.M.—Behesti Zevar Athna Swarganum Gharennum, Part 6. (Gujarati text). Surat, 1941. [1694]
A collection of customs alleged to be bad prevailing in the Muslim Society.

Salmin, M. A. Al-Haj—Imam Hasan: Chief of Youth of Paradise. $7\frac{1}{2} \times 5$, pp. 206, Bombay, 1941. [1695]
Intended as an introduction to a more comprehensive series of the "Biographies of Muslim Saints", which the author had in contemplation. The present is a biography of Imam Hasan, the grandson of the Prophet and completes the series of the "Holy Five".

Samin, Mohammad Ali Al-Haj—Imam Hasan. $7 \times 4\frac{3}{4}$, pp. 203. Pub. : Author, Bombay, 1941. [1696]
A biographical sketch of Imam Hasan, intended by way of introduction to a more comprehensive series of the "Biographies of Muslim Saints."

Sastri, M. L. Roy Choudhury—Library in Islam. BPP. LXI, pp. 65-70. [1697]

Describes the book-writing, book-binding and the Libraries of the ancient Islamic World.

Schloessinger, Max, Ed.—Ansab al-Ashraf of al-Baladhuri. Vol. 4B. pp. 172 + 48 + 28. University Press, Jerusalem, 1928-1940. [1698]

"The chief events narrated are those connected with the death of Yazid I, the battle of the Harra, the siege of Mecca, the expulsion of 'Upaidullah from Basra, the attempt to detach Basra from Ibn Zubair, and also the murder of 'Amr b. Sa'id . . . The volume is disappointing, because it contains little that is both new and important. It is tempting to say that every fact in muslim history is contradicted by some authority or other. There is much interest in addition to the main history". A. S. Triton, BSOS. XI, pp. 221-222.

Sekandar, Jalaluddin Hossain—The Meaning of Islam. 7" x 4½", pp. 60 Pub. : Author at 5/2B, Dilkush Street, Calcutta, 1941. [1699]

Attempts to explain the meaning of Islam to the English-speaking world.

Sherwani, H. K.—A Muslim Political Thinker of the Ninth Century A.C., Ibni Abi'r-Rabī. IsC. XV, pp. 143-156. [1700]

A study of political ideas couched in Ibni Abi'r-Rabi's work Sulukū'l-Mālik fitadbirī'l-Mamālik, written during the reign of the eighth Abbasid Caliph.

Subhan, Abdus—Mu'tazilite View on Beatific Vision. IsC. XV, pp. 422-428. [1701]

Mu'tazilites means the seceders from the Orthodox church of Islam. They were a sect of Muslims with whom reason was the higher form of knowledge, even revelation presupposing it. The rationalist movement they started came into being towards the end of the Ummayed period and subsequently flourished during the heyday of the Abbasides only to collapse physically on the rise of the Imam Abul Hasan al-Ash'ari. The writer presents the point of view of the Mu'tazilites on the Vision of God.

Syed, Md. Hafiz—Nawab Jaffar 'Alī Khān Asār's Mystical Poetry. AP. XII, pp. 516-519. [1702]

Appreciation of the mysticism of a leading Urdu poet Asār.

Syed, Sulaiman Nadvī—Gujaratmān Paigamber Kathan nā Sikashndatao. (Gujarati text). SFGST. V, Pt. 4, pp. 441-450. [1703]

Preachers of the Sayings of the Prophet in the original Urdu text of Imamuddin S. Dargahwala. It is an account of different religious Arabic scholars versed in the study of Hindi. The translation is only of the portion of the text which relates to Gujarat.

Umaruddin, M.—Idea of Law in the Philosophy of Al-Ghazzali. MUJ. VII, pp. 80-95. [1704]

A short study of love of God according to al-Ghazzali.

MISCELLANEOUS

(Pertaining to countries not included in this work but having reference to Indology)

Acharya, P. K.—Maya Architecture of Central America.
JUPHS. XIV, Pt. 2, pp. 36-40. [1705]

Discusses the word Maya of the several architectural texts and says that it need not be the name of the same person; like Manu, it appears to be a generic name. Then he goes on the Maya remains discovered in Mexico and concludes that the Central American civilisation was directly derived from India.

Chaman Lal—Hindu America. $9\frac{1}{4}'' \times 6''$, pp. 247 + xvii, 84 illus. 2nd Edn. New Book Company, Bombay, 1941. [1706]

Parallels between the culture of the American Indians and that of the ancient Hindus. It is difficult to be certain about direct influence or borrowing by one culture from another. Undertakes to prove the pre-historic wave of emigration from India found its way to the Western Continent long before Columbus reached its islands in the East.

Chand, Bool—The Evacuation of the Island of Karrack, 1841-42. In No. 1222, pp. 163-169. [1707]

Narrates a case of conflict between the Government of India under Lord Auckland and the British Foreign Office, in 1841. The conflict of view related to the small island of Karrak in the Persian Gulf, which had been occupied by the Government of India on 19th June, 1838, as a counterblast to the Persian invasion of Herat.

Flines, E. W. v. O de—Chineesch porcelein uit den Portugeeschen tijd. TITLV. LXXXI, Pt. 3, pp. 438-440, 2 plates. [1708]

Points out some Chinese porcelein having decorations of Portuguese Coat-of-Arms.

Heras, H.—The Hamitic Indo-Mediterranean Race. NR. XIV, pp. 185-196. [1709]

Discusses the origin of primitive nations from the Biblical point of view. Identifies the Dravidians of India as the original nucleus of the Hamitic race; the identity of the Aryans with the descendants of Japheth is deduced from the innumerable lexical similarities between Dravidian languages and Sanskrit.

Mac Fadden, Clifftor H.—A Bibliography of Pacific Area Maps. With an Introduction by Robert Burnett Hall. A Report in the International Research Series of the Institute of Pacific Relations. 9"×6", pp. xxiii+107, 1 map. Studies of the Pacific No. 6. Institute of Pacific Relations, New York, 1941. [1710]

Seven major regional divisions, the World, the Pacific Ocean, Asia, Australia, Oceania, N. America and S. America, are used as the primary basis of organisation of the nearly 300 maps and sets of maps included in the bibliography.

Reilly, Bernard—Aden and its Links with India. AR. Vol. 37, No. 129, pp. 65-80. [1711]

Deals with the Fortress and Port; British Administration; The First Governor, Captain Haines; Administrative Changes; Indian Mercantile Community and the Protectorate that lies behind Aden.

Sansom, Clive—The First Teacher: The Life and Religion of Akhnaton. AP. XII, pp. 163-165. [1712]

Reconstructs the life of the Egyptian king Akhnaton. Ancient as the civilisation of Egypt is, India has greater claims to be the oldest cradle of human civilisation and Egypt herself derived her inspiration from old Aryāvarta.

Sternbach, Ludiwik—Similar Social and Legal Institutions in Ancient India and in Ancient Mexico. PO. VI, pp. 43-56. [1713]

Gives some examples for legal and social institutions identical, or similar in Ancient India and in Ancient Mexico. He does not know the source of the origin of the life, of the customs, of the moral and legal rules, of the thoughts etc., in Mexico, and he does not know where they originated but sees similarity in ancient Mexican and ancient Indian social and legal institutions.
